progress has been made in this regard," Tariq Aziz said after a "brief but constructive" meeting with Security Council President Sergey Lavrov of Russia.

"We hope that the next report of the special commission would reflect this great progress, and we hope that the Security Council would react to this great progress in a fair manner," he told reporters.

Aziz did not say what progress had been made, but said Iraq still rejects a UN plan that would allow Iraq to sell limited amounts of oil sion to buy food and The Security Council, which acts like the board of directors of the United Nations, has refused to lift sanctions until a UN commission determines that Iraq has complied fully with resolutions demanding an end to its secret nuclear, biological and chemical warfare programme.

The United Nations charges Iraq has failed to disclose full details of its programmes and to release complete information on prisoners taken during the invasion of Kuwait.

Iraq has blamed its failure to disclose information on the former head of its weapons programme, Lt Gen Hussein Kamel al-Majid.

Al-Majid defected to Jordan in August. After that, Iraq released about 600,000 pages of documents on its weapons programmes.

Permanent UNSC seat for India

Clinton administration sticks to its view

WASHINGTON, Dec 13 The Clinton administration's view that India should not be given a permanent seat in the UN Security Council in the next round of expansion, remains unchanged, reports

The US favours Japan and Germany for permanent places in the Security Council, according to George Ward, the acting Assistant Secretary of State for International Organisation Affairs.

Clarifying his country's stand on the issue, Ward said at a press conference here that the US view remained unchanged despite talks between the Indian and the US governments.

"India has played an extremely important role in the UN both on the economic, social and the peacekeeping sides. We understand India has a strong interest in the work of the Security Council." he said. Though US supports granting of permanent membership to Japan and Germany, it has not yet considered whether these two countries should also have the right of veto like the present permanent members.

At present there are 15 members, including five permanent members. UN favours raising the Security Council strength to 20, including permanent seats for Japan and Germany. The three additional seats should be allocated to the various regions. The countries of those regions would decide the allocation and rotation.
