Hartal: can be stopped forever

KABIR MD ZAHANGIR
XNIG000@MUSICB.MCGILL.CA
USA:

How can we get ride off "Hartal" from Bangladesh to improve our economic growth. Can we make an constitutional amendment with new Sangsad about "Hartal band".

explosions to hold people hostage.) Another thing that I am sure that we all realize, is that making newer laws wouldn't help much in attaining change in the political practices, as some other things like democracy within the parties and within the nation everywhere would.

Masum Z. Hasan
zmhasan@db.toronto.edu
Canada:

Now here we have something to ponder about. Amendment / clause banning "hartal" is not a bad idea. But hartal/strike is a democratic right. But again there has to be a limit to this "democratic right".

So, how about this? Allow hartal, but place a limit to it. For example, here in the Western countries, if some of the services are considered essential, the strikers providing these services can be ordered/forced back to work or the strike may be considered illegal. So we have to etch something of this sort in our constitution, such as, a political party can not go on a country-wide hartal shutting down everything. Hartal will only be allowed by individual organizations. For example, transport workers may go on a strike (but a political party will not be allowed to shut down transportation in the name of hartal), etc. Politicians can always fight in the parliament, in meetings, on radio, TV (here I absolutely agree with Shabbir (UK) and Dr. Harun uz Zaman that media should be neutral, and politicians should be allowed to debate issues there when necessary). Ideas? (Let's provide some input to our fellow countrymen on this issue keeping in mind that Daily Star will bring this to wider Bangladeshis readers.)

Zia Hassan

USA:

The caretaker government doesn't have the necessary authority to make that change to the constitution or enact it as a law otherwise. The next elected government, can do something in this regard. However, we must remember that calling strikes are part of our democratic rights (But exploding crackers to make sure that it holds is not. Again, hopefully law and order situation under the next elected government would be better and there would be no cracker

In another of my postings/followup, I have suggested that to get rid of hartals, we must find an effective alternative that would not be used for the cause of a person, or of a party, but solely for the cause of the nation.

In that same followup posting I also suggested that perhaps we can have an amendment to the constitution, that would allow us to oblige the government to discuss an issue, or hold a gono vote (this is more expensive) on that issue, provided 10 million people sign (or tip shoi) in favor of that issue.

However, as I have indicated in the original posting that this is merely an elementary idea. Something, perhaps can be done along this line, I don't know. If you guys have anything constructive please feel free to contribute. Thank you.

USA:

I am 100% in favor of HARTAL Band for atleast 20 years in Bangladesh. No ONE can call for hartal period. The constitution amendment must also include if any one calls for hartal, the leader(s) will be responsible for any death and destruction.

Before we rush to yet another election, few things need to be ironed out: When can you call an election (the fairest election held so far) as "karchuppe", when Hasina WINS or when someone else WINS.

Hasina must answer this question before she decides to participate in the next election. What happens IF she LOSES? Is she ready to accept something in this regard. However, we must remember that calling strikes are part of our democratic rights (But exploding crackers to make sure that it holds is not. Again, hopefully law and order situation under the next elected government would be better and there would be no cracker

The articles, or "posts" (to use Internet parlance) published in this page come from the Bangladesh Internet news group called "soc.culture.bangladesh," or SCB. In this newsgroup, Internet users from around the world, mostly Bangladeshis, discuss issues relevant to Bangladesh. BIOSPHERE III: An Unprecedented Ecocide in the Gangetic Bangladesh

M. A. Miah

Pine Bluff, AR 71601, USA

BIOSPHERE III has been used to mean the Ganges-basin in Bangladesh where ecosystem have been destroyed by the unilateral cutting down of the natural flow of the Ganges water over a period of almost two decades by the use of the Farakka barrage. India constructed the barrage upon the Ganges at a place called Farakka on its bank in the district of Murshidabad.

The humanitarian distress is so much that words cannot tell. It has been difficult to convince even the environmentalists of the extent of the damage. This is just a manifestation of the fact that our civilized world can grasp up to a certain extent.

To increase the flow in the Ganges in the postdiversion dry season, India proposed to Bangladesh to divert 2,833 cubic meters per second out of the Brahmaputra's dry season flow of 3,121 cubic meters per second to the Ganges up-stream of Farakka barrage. Bangladesh rejected it because she does not to create another Biosphere III in the Brahmaputra basin.

mentalists of the extent of the damage. This is just a manifestation of the fact that our civilized world can grasp up to a certain extent.

Since the Bangladeshis did not raise their voice in time, a delayed response to this utter destruction rings an exaggeration of the actual state to others.

Bangladesh, the world's largest delta is located at the lower end of the Ganges-Brahmaputra basin, the world's largest agricultural plain. Before 1975, the Ganges river which enters the delta from the northwest had flows of 3,172 cubic meters per second during May to November, and 1,726 cubic meters per second during rest of the year. The combined flow in the Ganges-Brahmaputra was 2.4 times the monsoon water rainfall. The Ganges water would flow through the tributaries and canals to thousands of flood plains, ponds, and ditches which were the breeding ground of 109 species of native fishes. The distributed surface water resources were the "life blood" of the Ganges habitat of an unknown number of aquatic and amphibians was destroyed. Among the main species of fishes, two are extinct and about thirty are endangered. In the early nineties, compared to early seventies, the annual fish production dropped by, at least, 100,000 lbs costing more than 100 million dollars. The cheapest and major sources of animal protein (6.25%) and calcium (25%) for the world's 40 million poorest people living in the Ganges basin people were lost.

The Ganges-Kabodak Irrigation Project serving 14,164 sq km are in jeopardy. About 48,039 sq km of the land has lost the cash crop jute forever. The production of 1,034 million lbs of mangoes annually has been affected, costing over $ 300,000,000. The saline water front has engulfed about 52,000 sq km affecting 45 million trees (60% marketable timber) of the Sundarbans, the world's largest (5,697 sq km) compensate for the surface water resources, about 7,075 cu meters of groundwater are withdrawn annually to irrigate 1 sq km of land. Additionally, the Varendra Research Project extracts 386 cubic meters of groundwater every second.

More than 50% of the families are entirely dependent on groundwater apart from the general use of groundwater in drinking by all people. Due to over extraction and in absence of adequately recharging, groundwater is being depleted at a maximum rate of about one-half meter per year.

Ordinary hand-tubewells cannot extract water from 8 meters depth anymore. About 60,000 Tara pumps have been set up to extract water from 12 meters. The feedback effects of overextraction of groundwater is further worsening the situation.

India has further constructed sixteen more barrages/dams, the most important one is the Tipaimukh Dam on the Barak river in Manipur/Mezoram states. The dam will store 15,900 million cubic meters of water reducing the flow in the Meghna basin, and turning it into another Biosphere III.

monogrove forest. The maximum salinity factor has increased by a factor of more than five. By 1986, the maximum temperature rose from 37.5 degree Celsius to 43.5 degree Celsius, and the minimum temperature dropped from 12.5 degree Celsius to 8.5 degree Celsius. At least, ten million trillion calories of heat are produced during the summertime due to depletion of surface water resources. People live under heatstroke conditions during the summer months.

The monsoon rainfall has decreased by about 50%. To she does not to create another Biosphere III in the Brahmaputra basin.

Further, the 335 km-long link canal for water diversion will cost 1,200 sq km of land for the land-scarce Bangladesh and will make 1 million homeless. Thoughts on BD Constitution

Dr. Nasir Ahmed

USA:

Bangladesh is going through a transition period. It is a joy to hear that people of Bangladesh has made history again. Again against undemocratic ruler. This time happens to be KZ. Although KZ was doing fine in the beginning, but eventually she turned up to be a dictator. Did not listen to the voice of the people. I will not be surprised, if the future PMs of BD behaves in the same fashion that KZ behaved.

It will be very useful to change the BD constitution in correspondence to our reality and benefit of truth. The opposition parties demand to have a caretaker government provision in BD constitution is a very creative thinking. But I am bit confused, based on the information I am receiving whether this is really going to be a part of the BD constitution. If nothing is done (like a written document by all the Opposition parties to introduce the first bill in the new parliament would the Caretaker Govt bill) before the election, my hunch is that, a future PM, when he/she gets power my side track the issue, as KZ has done with the Special Powers act and the autonomy of TV and Radio.

Another issue is Indemnity bill, and this needs to be erased from BD constitution. A democratic constitution can not have an undemocratic provision. Gen Zia gov't did it, and his gov't was not democratic anyway. Cantonment democracy contradict with real Peoples democracy. I also wish to see a commitment from the opposition parties regarding the removal of Special acts provisions and extend autonomy to TV and Radio, and to allow private ownership of TV and Radio stations.

Lastly, I like to see a neutral and non biased judiciary. BD const does not have to copy UK or US model, however, the const needs to ensure independent judiciary system, so that it can challenge the parliament if necessary.

Good news for Bangladesh

The world's 48 least-developed countries are now growing faster economically than the rest of the world according to an annual survey by UN Conference on Trade and Development (The survey to be published today (19/04/96)). The survey said Bangladesh once perceived as basketcase — appear to be well on the road to economic recovery. The report also notes the fastest-growing LDCs focused on exports, and did not rely heavily on a small range of commodities. Bangladesh is named among the best performers!

The report notes a significant drop in the LDCs share of global trade, from 1.7 percent of both exports and imports in 1970 to 0.4 percent of exports and 0.7 percent of imports in 1994.
