WASHINGTON, May 9: The United States will announce two billion dollars in sanctions on China next week unless Beijing acts quickly and decisively to curb copyright piracy. the White House said yesterday, reports AFP.

President Bill Clinton was to meet in the afternoon with his key foreign policy advisers on how to handle Chinese piracy of US intellectual property rights. White House spokesman Michael McCurry

The aim of the meeting "Is to review where we are," Mc-Curry told reporters. "It is our desire to see our trade agreements, particularly as they relate to intellectual property, adhered to and reinforced."

Under US trade Law, Washington will announce May 15 two billion dollars in planned sanctions - expected to affect Chinese clothing and toy imports - thereby triggering a 30-day period for negoti-ation with Beijing.

The sanctions will take effect automatically after 30 days unless the two sides reach and agreement, officials said. There is time to come into period 1996-98.

compliance, but there is not much time left." Deputy White House spokesman David John-

Deputy US Trade Representative Lee Sands is scheduled to return to Beijing this weekend for further talks on trade mark and copyright piracy issues, McCurry said.

The US software and entertainment industries estimate global loses resulting from Chinese piracy last year at more than two billion dollars.

China maintains that it had undertaken a serious effort in good faith to stamp out illicit copying of US music, software, and videos, and government spokesman in Beijing have issued stern warnings recently against sanctions.

Speaking Tuesday, Shen referred to an April 30 US announcement that China had been designated a "priority foreign country" in the 1996 special 301 review of countries violating intellectual property

Imposing sanctions would amount to "dropping a stone on your own toes," he said, urging the US side to sit down "in a sincere mood" at the negotiating table with China to discuss the dispute.

The plan to announce sanctions comes amid efforts by the Clinton administration to defuse congressional opposition to unconditional renewal of China's Most Favoured Nation (MFN) trade status.

The White House has vowed to fight for MFN renewal after the trade privileges, which grant China normal access to US markets, expire June 4

Congressional sources also expect the White House to announce limited sanctions on China for selling nuclear technology to Pakistan another source of bilateral tension, in its bid to derail efforts to revoke MFN.

US officials have in recent months repeatedly accused China of failing to live up to the February 1995 intellectual property rights agreement, saying piracy has actually worsened since its signing.

While Chinese officials have cracked down on traders of pi rated audio and video goods. they have failed to target manufacturing plants. US officials

China threatens to retaliate in greater measure

BEIJING, May 9; China today threatened to retaliate in even greater measure against any US trade sanctions impose over copyright violations, reports Reuter.

"If the United States announces any sanctions targeting China, we'll immediately release a tit-for-tat package with even greater value involved," the China Daily quoted Zhang Yuejiao, a Director General at the Ministry of Foreign Trade and Economic Cooperation, as saying

"We would not like to see such a situation occur..., but if there is a US sanction, it will be improper for us not to respond," the newspaper quoted here as saving.

In Washington on Wednes day, the United States threatened to impose stiff sanctions on Chinese imports if Beijing failed to enforce an agreement to stamp out rampant piracy.

White House spokesman David Johnson said sanctions still be avoided. But he said a preliminary list of three billion dollars of Chinese imports that could be hit with sanctions would be published on May 15.

Only a substantial improvement in China's enforcement of a February 1995 agreement to stamp out widespread counterfeiting of US music, films and computer software could avert sanctions, he said.

EU economic growth to be less than 2pc BRUSSELS, May 9: The European union's economic growth rate this year will be markedly less than two per cent less than forecast," EU Finance Commissioner Yves-Thibault de Silguy said yesterday, reports AFP.

In his annual economic report to the European Parlia ment. De Silguy also said that the budget deficits of EU members now average five per cent of gross domestic product. against the planned 4.7 per cent.

EU economic convergence criteria call for members wanting to take part in the planned single currency to have a budget deficit of no more than three per cent of GDP. The currency is to be launched at the start of 1999.

But De Silguy expressed optimism about the prospects for a stronger EU economy in the second half of this year because of "the improvement in economic fundamentals" and the end of the deterioration of confidence indices noted in member states since the start of the year
