

Learning from the Learners

by Kazi Alauddin Ahmed

A teacher teaches only after he learns. And while he learns he is as good as a learner by all standards. The only advantage he however, enjoys is that he learns from the pulpit of a greater knowledgeability than the general learners seemingly devoid of the knowledge they specifically seek to learn.

not know the proper path to its exposition. The proverb goes like this: "He who knows not, and knows not that he knows not, is a fool - shun him; He who knows not, and knows that he knows not, is ignorant - teach him; He who knows and knows not that he knows, is asleep - wake him; But he who knows and knows that he knows, is a wise man - follow him."

Feigning that there is no break ostentatiously, the teacher punctuates his lecture with humorous anecdotes which keep the listeners briefly released and prepare them to take the second spell.

A TALE OF TWO PRIME MINISTERS

Mahathir in Dogged Pursuit of the Promised Land

Under Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad, Malaysia has become a nation that punches well above its weight. He is driving it on relentlessly to industrialisation. And as he travels the world, he is fervent in defence of Asian values. The West, he argues, should stop promoting its own model as universal.

Derek Ingram writes from Kuala Lumpur

TWO target years are fixed in the minds of every hustling Malaysian these days - 1998 and 2020. The first is the date of the Commonwealth Games, for which hotels, tower blocks, stadiums, a mass transit railway, a new airport and a whole new centre of Kuala Lumpur are being built.

"It is not healthy thinking to see in this phenomenon the spectre of the clash of civilisation, of conflict and war. Surely no-one has a monopoly of prosperity. Asia has as much right to prosper as anyone else. It is much healthier to participate and to share in this prosperity than to strangle it at birth."

Some Malaysians feel the economy is overheating and that the boom must bust, the latest surveys indicate that it is steady, and all eyes are on the year of the Games-1998.

This will be by far the biggest event ever held in Malaysia. The main stadium for 100,000 spectators is more than half built. The new airport, 50 miles away, is scheduled to be in use in time to land the athletes.

Derek Ingram writes from Singapore

IN Singapore, it seems as if the very leaves on the trees are disciplined. They hang limply and neatly in the gardens and green spaces of this most organised of cities. The traffic flows, pedestrians cross in safety, pollution is minimal. Even the stunningly beautiful flowers know their elegant place.

Mahathir Mohamad (right), who is driving Malaysia towards industrial parity with the West by the year 2020, and is not afraid to shout about it; and Lee Kuan Yew (left), chief architect of the super-efficient city-state who suddenly and shockingly faced questions over property purchases - and dealt with them in his usual no-nonsense style

Singapore and Malaysia, two of the star performers in booming Southeast Asia, have done it again: Singapore has announced further plans for the wiring up of the population, to provide computer access to government departments and to international information and entertainment networks; Malaysia has announced a record trade surplus for March

My Wife Signs the Cheques, Says Lee Kuan Yew

Lee Kuan Yew, who was Singapore's prime minister for more than 30 years, always had his critics, but no-one ever doubted his integrity. Now he has found himself having to explain a personal property deal to parliament. Impropriety was not an issue, but it was a most unusual event in the island state's history.

The Lees had not known about any discounts since these were routinely part of such deals and included in the final price that was quoted. One of several family details that came out was the fact that Lee had not made out a cheque for 20 years or so - his wife handled all such matters.

Learning in human life terminates only in death. Otherwise it is a continuous process. And truly none can claim absolute knowledge in every subject under the sun. Your learner son today can apprise you, his old father, of anything that you did not come across in your time.

It is not always good to assume the learners as being of inferior stocks. At times, the teacher faces the potentials of many a learners catching him unaware. At the onset of his lecture a good teacher does not behave a teacher at all. Instead, he sinks himself in totality with the learners, identifying himself with them with an overt plea that he is as good as others and that he is present to learn with them.

goaded by the training institutes to send one or two nominees. However, the nominees having relevance to the subject or course contents, are the people who are the probable participants in our proposed learning process. I shall consider such group of participants as eligible.

to fall back on your knowledge and experience on many other subjects in which he is yet to have some ideas. Learners are potential teachers of tomorrow. So when they learn with the teacher nearby they would inevitably but silently get to heart, besides the lesson itself, the mimes and delivery styles of the teacher. This they can replicate when they make any attempt at teaching others. It is almost a universal cycle.

Some visitors may find Singapore uncomfortably clean and tidy, but most must secretly wish their own home towns were as well run and pleasant to live in.

On top of that, Singapore prospers. It has just been named again as the world's second most competitive country after the United States. You cannot help admire the achievement. The Prime Minister is the unassuming Goh Chok Tong. His is not an easy task. He walks in the shadow of the architect of modern Singapore, 72-year-old Lee Kuan Yew.
