Swimming Lesson for Children

by Talip Chowdhury

Enthusiastic children line up beside the swimming pool of the Officer's Club, Baily Road, Dhaka. Their swimming lessons begin with free-hand exercises under the guidance of a well-trained coach. Once in the water the children receive expert instructions. They receive practical demonstrations on how to move their hands, feet and to stay afloat.

It was the first day of the sixteen-day long swimming course offered by the Officer's Club. The sight was quite splendid. Children splashed around, enjoying their first experiences of being in the water. Most of them were five to ten years of age. But few of them were only three and a half years old. These little ones were first sitting around the pool, experimenting with their toes. But once satisfied that nothing was hurting them, they slowly immersed themselves in the water of the baby swimming pool. The older ones were too enthusiastic and would hardly wait till the instructor reached them. They were continuously going in and out of the water, exploring the new sensation of staying in water. Some worried parents were calling out to their children to be careful about the depth. But soon they relaxed as they watched their children joyfully learn the first strokes of swimming under their instructor's guidance. After all, the first lessons begin for the children in the swimming pool which is only two feet deep. But later on they will move on to the adjacent larger pool.

Each swimming course is for sixteen days. At the end of the course the children can swim quite well. There's no doubt that they will enjoy the newly acquired skill very much. The swimming pool authority of the Officer's Club also offer different swimming courses for adults and youths. These are set on different schedules according to sexes and age group of the participants. The place offers an excellent opportunity to achieve freshness of body and mind. In Dhaka we do not have too many swimming pools where women and children can safely enjoy a good swim. The Officer's Club can certainly boast of its beautiful and well-protected swimming pool.

Many parents were enrolling for swimming lessons after watching their children in the pool. It seems as though they have missed this wonderful sport of joy and health for much too long.

Swimming is a much needed life saving skill in Bangladesh, a country with a network of rivers, lakes and ponds. Natural disasters such as floods, cyclones and tornados are quite frequent. One would be on the safer side to learn how to swim in this land of waters. The swimming pool of the Officer's Club offers excellent opportunities.

The swimming pool was opened to the public in 1993. Many Dhakaites find it a great relief to go for a swim once in a while and to be able to let their children enjoy the benefits of a well-kept swimming pool in the heart of the city.

'Urea may be smuggled to India'

Urea may be smuggled out to India in larger volumes as the Indian government is planning a price hike for it, raising the subsidy on other fertilizers, reports UNB.

The apprehension was raised by trading circles in Dhaka in view of the authorities in New Delhi having recently announced a new concession on imported phosphate and potash fertilizers.

The new measures, which will cut the prices of potash and phosphate fertilizers, aimed at raising the domestic consumption of these two fertilizers, addressing the nutritional imbalance between urea and phosphate.

The fresh subsidies for potash and phosphate, coupled with a 20 per cent price rise on urea because of rise in price of naphtha — a raw material of the fertilizer — could result in a decline in domestic urea consumption.

The Indian government is currently considering a price hike of urea — from Rs 320 per ton to Rs 400 per ton — and a decision on this respect is expected shortly, sources in the fertilizer trade circles told UNB yesterday.

But if the price of urea is raised in India, increased quantity of the fertilizer is likely to be rolling out into Indian markets from Bangladesh as the price level in Bangladesh is far less than that of the neighbouring country.

The current rate of per ton urea in Bangladesh is Tk 3,725 or Tk 186.25 a bag of 50 kilogram, a very lucrative price for smuggling the fertilizer to India where the official price will be Rs 350 a bag.

The price will further increase at the retailers' level, inviting more Bangladeshi urea fertilizer, which is of better quality than that of India, in the neighbour's market, sources said.

Already, they said, there has been huge smuggling of urea from Bangladesh to India and another neighbour, Myanmar, because of a firm world price. The price of urea last time here was downward adjusted in July 1994.

According to available statistics, consumption of urea fertilizer have been jumping every year although the foodgrain output in the country remained static or in a downward trend in recent years.

The consumption of urea, which was 12.21 lakh tons on 1990-91 fiscal, rose to 15.87 lakh tons in 1993-94, 17.45 lakh tons in 1994-95 and 20.42 lakh tons in 1995-96 fiscal year.

The Ministry of Agriculture had projected the demand of 19 lakh tons for the 1995-96 seasons, but the actual consumption surpassed the projection. The ministry projected the demand of 23 lakh for the current 1996-97 fiscal.

"This was an unusual jump. The sale growth last year was 17 per cent," said a source, suspecting a huge quantity of urea fertilizer being smuggled out of the country every year.

As the demand of fertilizer is increasing every year, there is no new fertilizer coming up or in the pipeline since the inception of the Jamuna Fertilizer Factory in 1991.
