US to seek increased security measures for its troops in KSA

WASHINGTON, July '30: Defence Secretary William Perry left Monday on a secretive trip for Saudi Arabia to discuss ways for Riyadh to help pay for increased security measures for US troops based there, defence officials said, reports AP.

Perry also intended to visit US forces stationed in nearby Kuwait, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Saudi sources told The Associated Press that Perry would inspect a site where some American troops will be moved as a precaution against more terrorist attacks following one last month that killed 19 US airmen.

Perry will head straight for the Al Khari air base after arriving in Rivadh, 50 miles (80 kilometres) to the north, and then meet with Saudi King

Fahd in the Red Sea port city of Jeddah, said the sources speaking on condition of anonymity The Pentagon's public information office declined to disclose the secretary's travel plans, as it normally does, or even confirm whether he was leaving the country. "The defence secretary is looking after the security and welfare of the troops," said a statement issued by his office. Perry's spokesman Kenneth Bacon, could not be reached for comment. He was described as being out of town for the week

Perry returned over the weekend from a four-day visit to Australia. While there, his plans to visit Saudi Arabia Kuwait and Bahrain on his way home leaked to the news media, and the Mideast portion

Hours before talks in Geneva

China carries out 45th

BEIJING, July 30: China carried out its 45th nuclear test Monday and immediately announced a moratorium, just hours before negotiations on a test ban treaty were set to begin in Geneva, reports AFP.

"The Chinese government hereby solemnly declares that it will start a moratorium on nuclear testing effective from July 30, 1996," the official Xinhua news agency said.

"Such an important decision by China is not only responsive to the appeal of the vast number of non-nuclear weapon states, but also a concrete action to promote nuclear disarmament.

In a statement, China called on nuclear powers to drastically cut their stockpiles and formalise through an "international convention" the banning and destruction of all such weapons.

Until such a ban is in place, said, countries with nuclear weapons should "undertake not be the first to use nuclear weapons and commit themselves unconditionally" not to threaten their use against nonnuclear countries.

Where do they spend rest of the year?

BHUBANESWAR: Lakhs of olive ridley turtles visit the Gahiramatha Beach in Orissa's Kendrapara district twice every year for mass nesting and then disappear into the sea, reports

But where do they spend the rest of the year? it has remained one of the enduring mysteries of nature which researchers have been trying to unravel for decades without making much headway.

First they tied red baloons with long strings attached to the turtles to follow them in the sea. But the baloons soon burst or the turtles dived vanishing underwater with the baloons.

Attempts were made to trail the marine animals with boats, but it did not succeed and efforts at telemetry also failed, says eminent expert and Vice-Chancellor of Sambalpur University, Dr Priyambada Mohanity-Hajmadi.

The endeavours of a turtle expert from Drexel University in the USA, Dr Pamela Plotkin has however, opened an altogether new visit in scientifically tracking the turtles who are believed to be roaming the oceans for the last 150 million

Dr Plotkin attached satellite transmiters on the back of olive ridleys which visited two beaches in Costa Rica and monitored their movement. "It has become possible to track these turtles this way. You dial a number and within six hours you have all information about the turtle you are tracking", she told a press conference in Bhubaneswar on Saturday.

160 opposition activists missing after anti-govt rioting

JAKARTA, July 30: Nearly 160 opposition supporters are missing after weekend antigovernment rioting that left at least two people dead, a party official said Tuesday, reports

The violence erupted after police raided the headquarters of the Indonesian Democratic Party, arresting scores of supporters of pro-democracy leader Megawati Sukranoputri.

Police said Tuesday that they have 215 people in custody. It wasn't clear how many of them may be among the missing. Laksamana Sukardi, a board member of Megawati's party.

said 158 members were being sought by their families.

Sukardi complained that pohee and hospitals won't give out information. Their families are very worried. They don't know where to go, and we fear for their safety." Sukardi said. The rioting was a rare outburst of popular frustration with President Suharto, who has ruled Indonesia for 30 years and rejects growing calls . for greater political freedoms in this nation of 200 million Megawati, 49, is the daughter of the late President Sukarno, ousted by Suharto in 1966. She isn't an immediate threat to Suharto, but he apparently is afraid of her movement - supported by her father's admirers - could challenge his authority.

The Indonesian Legal Aid Foundation, a human rights group, said it has received nearly 80 reports from families of missing persons. "We also have difficulties in getting information from the police and the hospitals but we are still pursuing," Munir, an official of the group who like many Indonesians uses only one name, told The Associated Reuter adds: Indonesia's capital Jakarta was calm today after a weekend riot which was followed by a series of bomb threats. Regular morning rush-our traffic flowed through the city of 10 million people although troops armed with assault rifles were still on patrol.
