BSB enters into Internet

Bangladesh Shilpa Bank is going to enter into the latest wave of computer-based communications technology called 'Internet' that would help clients establish worldwide business links, reports UNB.

The BSB is the first institution in the country's banking sector that has taken the decision to avail Internet connection for commercial purpose.

After having the Internet, BSB release said yesterday the bank would be able to exchange information through the international database or information superhighway as per its need.

It will also avail quick communications system with all the Internet users across the world.

As a result, the bank's clients will get the opportunity to immediately collect all kinds of information related to industrialisation including investment, marketing, export and import.

Besides, it will be easy for the bank in the future to collect information about prices of importables, for bank-financed projects, from the manufacturing companies, distributing organisations and other development-oriented investment organisations of different countries.

The Internet facilities will help resist misappropriation of the bank money by resorting to over-invoicing in importing machinery on the part of the entrepreneurs.
