AS: No. I don't think so because the Kenyans or the Nigerians do not hold any such conference for making a champion team. You need proper planning and execution of a system in the sports arena. Besides you have to improve training facilities not only in the capital but also in the remote areas because the aim of this conference is to find out a proper scouting system in the grass root level. If you do not look upon their minimum training facilities, how will you get talents?

DS: What is your expectation from this conference?

AM: In fact, I am a thana level organiser. We do not have any training facilities or sports activities in our thana. There is no inter-school or inter-union level competitions. I will try to say this things in the conference.

DS: Do you have any scope of doing that

AM: It's very shocking that we have been allowed only to participate in the question and answer sessions after each paper has been read and discussed upon. There is nobody from the remote areas who will speak at any one of the six sessions of the conference. Besides, we have come last night (Tuesday) and the Prime Minister has already inaugurated the conference this morning. But, we are yet to receive any programme schedule

DS: What do you expect from this conference?

MA: I hope the stagnant sit uation prevailing in our sports arena will get some light through this conference to rise because we badly need an unanimous national sports policy. I wish this conference will not be a fake one as it was in the past We have a very unhealthy and undemocratic sporting system in our country. We need to over come this for our successors.

DS: Do you think this conference will have some bearing in developing our sport?

MA: No it will not. Mere cer emonies and symposiums will not help anything. We have to have a coordinated sports administration to implement what we get from these seminars. If we only listen and sit tight as it happened in the past, this will turn into another comedy.

DS: There will be six semi nars during this three-day conference. Do you know what all discussions have been arranged and are you prepared to participate in those?

MA: In fact, I am not very much aware of this seminar because I am yet to receive a copy of programme Liakat Hossain (District Sports Officer, Narail) DS: Did you attend the previous Sports Conference last vear?

LH: Yes, I did.

DS: What outcome did you get from that conference?

LH: Well there was nothing special. There were some special projects for the under-14 and under-16. But that really did not bring any result because of the poor attention from the capital.

DS: Are you going to project your problems in the conference?

LH: I don't think so because there is not a single district sports officers who will speak in one of these six seminars. We are only allowed to participate in the question and answer phase where we will not be able to say anything not pertaining to that particular subject.

Hingis going great guns

ZURICH. Oct 16: Swiss teenager Martina Hingis, fresh from her first tournament win crushed Japan's Noaka Sawamatsu 6-0, 6-1 in her opening match at the European Indoor Championship on Tuesday, reports Reuter.

Hingis, the fifth seed, continued to display the brilliant form she showed on way to her victory in Filderstadt on Sunday, needing just 49 minutes to dispatch Sawamatsu, ranked a respectable 31 in the world.

Despite the one-sided score, the 16-year-old Swiss actually began play slowly facing breakpoint in the opening game.

But with the partisan Swiss crowd offering support. Hingis. ranked a career-high nine in the world, quickly regrouped overwhelming Sawamatsu with her speed and precision baseine shots. Hingis brought the drubbing to a merciful end with a pair of aces and a winning serve in the final game. A semifinalist at the US and

Italian Opens this year, Hingis can expect a tougher test in the second round when she meets world number 17 Irina Spirlea of Romania American Jennifer Capriati took another step in her comeback with a decisive 6-3, 6-4 over Argentina's Gabriela Saba-Sabatini, who has struggled with injuries this year, doublefaulted four times on the way to dropping the first set. The tournament's top four
