

SL names squad for NZ tour

COLOMBO, Feb 7: Sri Lanka has included an 18-year-old bowler in a squad of five fast bowlers for its tour of New Zealand from February 26 to March 27, cricket board officials said today, reports Reuters.

Left-arm fast medium-pace Nuwan Soysa will make his debut with the Sri Lankan national team, winners of the 1996 World Cup championship.

Soysa will be one of five fast bowlers picked for the tour, which will consist of two Test matches and three one-day internationals. The Board of Control for Cricket in Sri Lanka said.

The other seamers are Chaminda Vaas, Promodya Wickremasinghe, Sanjeewa de Silva and Ravindra Pushpakumara. All-rounders Ruwan Kalpage and Upul Chandana were dropped from the 15-man squad.

TEAM

Arjuna Ranatunga (captain), Aravinda de Silva, Sanath Jayasuriya, Romesh Kaluwitharana, Roshan Mahanama, Asanka Gurusinha, Hashan Tillekeratne, Chaminda Vaas, Muttiah Muralitharan, Ravindra Pushpakumara, Kumara Dharmasena, Sanjeewa de Silva, Promodya Wickremasinghe, Marvan Atapattu and Nuwan Soysa.

Acme Div II cricket results

Azad Boys Club, Shantinagar 'A', Lalbagh Anwar Sporting Club, Dhanmondi Pragati Sangha and Kalindi Krira Chakra won their respective Acme Second Division cricket league matches held at different venues in the city yesterday.

At the Dhanmondi Club ground, Azad Boys Club recorded a four-wicket victory over Western Sporting Club.

Needing 179 to win in 40 overs, middle order Ishiaque fired a magnificent 54 off 69 balls as the victors reached the summit in 37.5 overs with four wickets in hand. Former national all-rounder Nadir Shah, who earlier in the first session captured four wickets for 28 runs to restrict Western Sporting to 178 for nine, was the other leading run-scorer for the winning team adding 38 off 71 balls.

Away in Mohakhali T&T ground, Shantinagar 'A' handed Spread Eagles a crushing eight-wicket defeat.

Battling first, Spread Eagles could add only 73 runs to their account before they were bowled out in 24.5 overs. In reply, Shantinagar, took only 6.4 overs to reach home with eight wickets intact.

Lalbagh Anwar Sporting Club defeated Amarjyoti Club by 18 runs at the Uttara Friends Club ground.

Opting to bat first, Lalbagh mustered 186 in 38.4 overs losing all their wickets with middle order Mamun hammering highest 40 off 37 balls.

On the other hand, Amarjyoti were shot out for 168 also in 38.4 overs.

In the day's other two engagements, Dhanmondi Pragati Sangha beat Udity Club by two wickets at the Dhanmondi Cricket Stadium while Kalindi Krira Chakra handed Young Pegasus Club a 19-run defeat at the Mirpur Outer Stadium.

Juan comes to rescue

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Feb 7: With exactly one year to go before the opening of the 1998 Winter Olympics in Nagano, IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch gave embattled Japanese organisers a vote of confidence Friday, reports AP.

"These games will be a great victory for Japan, Nagano and the Olympic movement," Samaranch said at a ceremony marking the 12-month countdown.

The IOC leader departed from his prepared text to try to boost the organisers.

"I have total confidence in the Japanese organisers," Samaranch said, citing the success of the 1964 Summer Games in Tokyo and the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo.

"We are supporting fully the Nagano organising committee. We are truly, truly hoping and have full confidence of the success of these Games in Nagano," Samaranch spoke as the IOC sent out invitations to the world's 197 national Olympic committees to attend the Nagano Games.

Nagano starts countdown

TOKYO, Feb 7: Opening the Olympic Games is a big honour. And at 204-centimeters (6-foot 8) tall and weighing something like 210 kilograms (460 pounds), sumo wrestler's biggest star would seem to be the perfect man for the job.

But as the countdown to the 1988 Nagano Games hit the one-year-to-go mark Friday, the mere idea seemed to be giving Hawaii-born giant Akebono a bad case of the shivers.

"It's hard to imagine," Akebono said at a countdown celebration in Tokyo, one of several held across the country. Smiling sheepishly with each mention of how cold the central Japan Alps can get in the winter, he added: "I'll try my best."

Organisers announced earlier this week that Akebono and other top sumo wrestlers will be featured in the Games' opening ceremony performing a ritual in which they stamp on the ground repeatedly to symbolically crush evil spirits.

The ritual — which has its roots in sumo's ancient religious origins — is performed at the six main sumo tournaments held in Japan each year.

In Nagano, however, it will be done in the snow and the freezing cold. The wrestlers will be wearing only their traditional loincloths.

Friday's celebrations were a much-needed respite for Nagano organisers from a string of squabbles with international sports federations over their Olympic facilities and hotel accommodations.

Organisers say that while the lack of Western-style hotel rooms remains a problem, most of the more serious disputes have been resolved and they are confident the Games will be a success.

"Preparations are on schedule and going smoothly," Eishiro Saito, head of the organising committee, said in a statement.

The Games in Nagano will be the first in Asia since Sapporo, Japan hosted in 1972. Japan has also hosted a Summer Olympics — in Tokyo in 1964.

Some 3,000 athletes and officials are expected to participate in Nagano. NHL stars will be making their Olympic debut in the recently completed "Big Hat" hockey rink, and three new medal sports will be introduced — curling, snowboarding and women's ice hockey.

But while the scale of the Games may prove to be the biggest ever, organisers say they are going to try to keep the opening ceremony simple with a heavy dose of Japanese pomp and tradition.

Instead of glitz and special effects, Nagano is planning a "simple, solemn and spiritual" opening for the 16-day Games, according to opening ceremony producer Man Ara.

The 50,000-seat Olympic stadium will be surrounded by pillars at each of the four compass directions to signify it as a "purified" sanctuary, and the Games will begin with the ringing of a Buddhist temple bell.

World renowned conductor Seiji Ozawa will lead a 2,000-strong choir in Nagano and — with the aid of a satellite link-up — singers spread out over five continents in a rendition of Beethoven's Ode To Joy.

Organisers say a total 1.28 million tickets will be made available for the Games.

Applications for the tickets were distributed Friday. The actual distribution of tickets will be decided later, after a lottery is held to decide the ticket winners.

Prices in Japan range from 35,000 yen (287 dollars) for the opening ceremony and 30,000 yen (246 dollars) for the hockey final to a mere 2,000 yen (16 dollars) to watch the bobbed or luge finals.

UEFA-FA compromise

LONDON, Feb 7: European soccer's governing body backed down Friday and said England could go ahead with its bid for the 2006 World Cup after all, reports AP.

After three hours of talks with English Football Association officials in London, UEFA general secretary Gerhard Aigner said the organisation would listen to presentations from both England and Germany on their rival bids in April.

But Aigner stressed that UEFA remains adamant that Europe put forward only one candidate to FIFA, soccer's world governing body, to stage the sport's premier event.

FA officials said they were satisfied with the compromise agreement.

"All the FA has ever sought is the opportunity to present and prepare a reasonable bid for the 2006 World Cup," FA chairman Keith Wiseman said. "Whether or not that is within UEFA or directly to FIFA only the next month or two will tell. The FA is entirely happy with the talks we've had with UEFA today."

The FA had reacted with outrage last week after UEFA said it was endorsing Germany's bid and suggested England drop out of the race.

Aigner said earlier this week that former FA chairman Bert Millichip knew two years ago that UEFA was backing Germany's candidacy.

Germany announced in 1993 that it would bid for the World Cup, while England decided to mount its own bid after the successful staging of last summer's Euro 96 championship.

"UEFA agreed to put forward one bid, and as long as there was one bid, they supported this bid (Germany's)," Aigner said Friday.

Asked whether UEFA now supported England's right to submit a bid, he replied, "Yes."

Aigner reiterated that UEFA wants only one candidate per continent in order to avoid the bitterness that marked the campaign for the 2002 World Cup between Asian rivals South Korea and Japan.

"We want to maximise our (Europe's) chances to get it," Aigner said. "There should be no excessive competition between associations bidding for such an event."

FIFA said this week that even if UEFA endorses Germany's bid, there is nothing to stop England from submitting its own candidacy directly to the world body.

The deadline for submission of bids is in 1999, with FIFA selecting the host country in June of the year 2000.

The World Cup controversy has become a political issue in Britain, which is in the midst of an election campaign. Both Prime Minister John Major and opposition leader Tony Blair of the Labour Party have criticised UEFA's stance and offered full support for the England bid.

Villa go public

LONDON, Feb 7: Aston Villa have confirmed they are to go public with their stock market value worth an estimated 120 to 140 million pounds, reports AP.

Villa chairman Doug Ellis, who bought control of the club for just 425,000 pounds in 1982, had been against the idea of going public. But he has now had a change of heart.

It is understood the club's aim is to raise 20 million pounds through the floatation towards buying new players and improving facilities at Villa Park.

"I believe it is in the best long-term interests of the football club to gain a listing at this time," the 73-year-old Ellis said.

"The commercial side of football is moving forward at a terrific speed. We must therefore ensure that we have every opportunity open to us to continue to compete with the best in Europe both on and off the field."

Villa hope to cash in after the success of other Premiership clubs who have floated on the stock exchange. Manchester United are worth 462 million pounds, Chelsea around 250 million and Leeds and Tottenham around 120 million each.

Barcelona ruin Real's day

MADRID, Feb 7: Barcelona ended Real Madrid's dreams of a Spanish league and cup double with a 1-1 draw in a dramatic Spanish Cup fourth round tie on Thursday, reports Reuters.

The result in their opponents' Bernabeu Stadium gave Barcelona a 4-3 win on aggregate.

The decisive moment came after 69 minutes when Barcelona's Brazilian striker Ronaldo broke clear down the left wing, leaving behind his marker and compatriot Roberto Carlos.

Ronaldo's first shot hit the post but it rebounded to his feet, and his second effort was turned into his own net by the luckless Carlos.

Real equalised nine minutes later when Croatian striker David Suker was scythed down in the penalty area by Blanco and Suker blasted home the spot kick.

Barcelona defended solidly in the final minutes despite fierce Real pressure to keep the scores level and ensure they went into the next round.

Real though had only themselves to blame for their demise after a scoreless first half in which they had the Barcelona goal under almost permanent siege but failed to score.

Earlier, Rayo Vallecano won 2-1 away at Extremadura to ensure that at least two Madrid sides went through to the quarter-finals.

Russia, SA lock horns

DURBAN, South Africa, Feb 7: The beleaguered Russian team, without the injured Alexander Volkov and Yevgeny Kafelnikov, felt the pressure was all on South Africa in their Davis Cup World Group match here this weekend, reports AP.

"We are without Volkov and Kafelnikov, so they are the favourites to win," said Andrei Chesnokov. "If we lose 5-0 it's okay... but if we win that's also okay."

Chesnokov will face South Africa's number two Marcos Ondruska in the opening match of the tie here today.

Russian skipper Shamil Tarpiishchev selected Chesnokov and Andrei Cherkasov as his number one and two singles players, leaving the doubles to Cherkasov and Andrei Olhovskiy.

Top-ranked Wayne Ferreira and Ondruska were selected as South Africa's number one and two singles players with Ellis Ferreira and Grant Stafford chosen for the doubles.

Neville Godwin, who beat Chesnokov in the opening round of the Australian Open, was left on the sidelines.

Tarpiishchev has been less concerned about the loss of Volkov than he has about Kafelnikov's withdrawal, even though Volkov's absence is likely to be more keenly felt.

The biggest handicap for the Russians at Westbridge Park here, however, is likely to be the oppressive east coast heat.

South African skipper Danie Visser said that, although the doubles team can be changed up to an hour before the rubber, he planned to give Ferreira a break.

"Grant (Stafford) has been playing real good tennis," Visser said. "He and Ellis (Ferreira) seem to be forming a useful team and I feel it's a good time to give them a shot."

Friday: Ondruska v Chesnokov, W Ferreira v Cherkasov. Saturday: E Ferreira/Stafford v Cherkasov/Olhovskiy. Sunday: Ondruska v Cherkasov, W Ferreira v Chesnokov.

Aussies astound hosts

SYDNEY, Feb 7: Pat Rafter won a marathon five-set match and Mark Woodforde cruised in straight sets as Australia stunned defending champion France by taking a 2-0 lead Friday in their Davis Cup World Group first-round match at White City, reports AP.

Rafter rallied from two sets down to win the dramatic opening singles against Cedric Pioline 3-6, 6-7 (5-7), 6-4, 7-5, 6-4 in 4 hours, 15 minutes.

Veteran left-hander Woodforde then dented Arnaud Boetsch 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 to leave the French on the brink of elimination.

Todd Woodbridge and Woodforde, winners of eight Grand Slam singles titles, will combine in Saturday's potentially decisive doubles against Guy Forget and Guillaume Raoux.

Woodforde will face Pioline and Rafter will play Boetsch in Sunday's reverse singles.

Rafter, ranked 64th in the world, was the hero for the Australians. He grew in confidence as the match against Pioline progressed, clearly relishing his favourite grass court surface and the support of a near-sellout 6,000 crowd.

"That's probably the best performance I've ever had," Rafter said. "It just felt fantastic."

Rafter, 24, playing his first Davis Cup singles for two years, never had previously won a five-set match from two sets down.

"I was upset and disappointed I'd lost the second set but I felt I could go the extra mile," he said. "The crowd helped me feel pumped and energised."

Pioline, ranked 26, was playing his first match for over two months after being sidelined by a back injury but said he had not felt tired.

"It was close until the end," he said. "I had a lot of opportunities but he played some very good shots. He played a great match and didn't let go."

The 27-year-old Frenchman was playing for the first time since France's 3-2 victory over Sweden in last year's Davis Cup final and gradually wilted under the summer sun. On-court temperatures reached 36 degrees (97 Fahrenheit).

Rafter won each of the final three sets with one break of serve and threw his sweat-soaked shirt into the crowd after sealing the win on his fourth match point.

Former US Open finalist Pioline, wearing a legionnaires' hat to ward off the Australian sun, served solidly and used his pinpoint groundstrokes to keep Rafter off balance in the first two sets, but the Australian slowly clawed his way back into contention.

Rafter grabbed the only break of the third set, but the ninth game and then a 6-5 in the fourth set thanks to a searing cross court forehand.

The Australian, pumping his fists in joy and relief, then broke for 4-3 in the fifth set and held his serve twice.

Pioline staved off two match points serving in the ninth game and got to 0-30 on Rafter's serve in the 10th, but the Australian kept his nerve and held despite serving a double fault on his third match point.

Rafter sealed the win with an unreturnable serve and said Australian captain John Newcombe had helped keep him calm.

"Newk gave me a lot of inspiration from the side," he said. "It was hot and I started feeling it at the end, but the adrenalin kept me going."

Woodforde's win over Boetsch was considerably less dramatic and lasted just 97 minutes.

The 31-year-old left-hander had won only three of his 12 previous Davis Cup singles matches but was too solid for a spirited looking Boetsch.

Woodforde used his swinging serve to good effect and climbed all over the ball at the net.

"We got off to a great start with Pat; that was one of the most amazing Davis Cup matches I've witnessed," said Woodforde. "My Davis Cup record is not one that I really like, but I've done well on grass."

Eight-time champion France is aiming to avoid the fate of the United States — which arrived in Australia as defending champion on 1993 and lost in the first round.

Only three defending champion teams have won in the first round of the Davis Cup since 1972.

The Australians went into the match without injured star players Mark Philippoussis and Jason Stoltenberg, but Rafter and Woodforde proved more than adequate replacements.

Italians miss Gaudenzi

ROME, Feb 7: Italy go into the weekend Davis Cup World Group tie against tennis minnow Mexico heavily favoured but lacking the services of Andrea Gaudenzi, reports AP.

The former top 20-ranked hero of last year's upset wins over Russia and South Africa on the clay of Rome's Foro Italico is unfit after a virus laid him low following the Australian Open.

The world No. 61, who underwent shoulder surgery last autumn, returned to his parents' home on the Adriatic coast to rest after a discouraging on-court fitness test this week.

Italian coach Adriano Panatta has built his ad hoc team around national No. 1 Renzo Furlan (Ranked 51st on the ATP Tour lists) and has called 28-year-old Omar Camporese to the squad for the first time in four years to play the No. 2 singles today.

At the draw made Thursday, world No. 122 Camporese was drawn to open against Mexican Alejandro Hernandez (ATP 127), aged 19 and a professional for two years.

Furlan takes on Luis Herrera (ATP 177), who has never played an Italian on clay and who was beaten in 1991 by Camporese and in 1994 by doubles player Diego Nargiso.

"We want to take at least one point on opening day," said Mexican coach Raul Ramirez, the Italian Open champion in 1975 as a 23-year-old. "It will be five tough matches."

"Our biggest strength — we have nothing to lose. If we win, it will be a surprise, if we lose, well, it was expected."

Ramirez, a playing contemporary of the 46-year-old Panatta, added: "This is a big opportunity for us. My players are not afraid. The Mexicans each have two arms, two legs and a racket, just like the Italians."

Camporese has had limited playing time recently due to injury and can barely remember the last time he played five sets.

But the Italian remains quietly confident. "There is no pressure on me. I may not have played Davis Cup for four years, but I now have that much more experience. I'm more mature."

"Hernandez is a good young player who I've never seen on clay. This will be a new experience for me."

Panatta had to play down reports in the local press that he gave Mexico no chance in the three-day tie. "I never said I was sure to win, but I'm convinced we are favoured."

"We cannot think about what if of Gaudenzi. We have a tough tie ahead of us, we must think of what Omar can do for us."

After two days of rain, skies began clearing Thursday in Rome, with both teams hoping that the clear — if somewhat chilly — conditions prevail to allow the tie to finish on Sunday.

Philippines takes lead

MANILA, Feb 7: The Philippines won both opening singles matches against Indonesia on Friday to take a 2-0 lead in the Davis Cup Asia-Oceania Group 1 competition, reports AP.

Robert Angelo, the Philippines' No. 2 player, beat Indonesia's top-ranked Suwandi 7-6 (10-6), 7-6 (7-5), 6-3.

Top Filipino player Joseph Lizardo defeated Indonesian Andrian Raturandang 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, 6-2.

Meanwhile, Japan and South Korea split the opening-day singles in the group's preliminary competition in Seoul.

South Korea's ace Yoon Yong-il beat Japan's Takao Suzuki 3-1.

Japan's top player Shuzo Matsuoka, a quarter finalist in last year's Wimbledon, took the other opening-day singles match by beating South Korea's Lee Hyung-tak 3-0 (7-6, 6-3, 7-6).

An AFP file photo shows both the sides of a Nagano Winter Olympic Games' official memorial gold medal.
