

Kibria claims much progress in many areas

As the Bangladesh Aid Group sits here today for a mid-term review of the country's economy, Finance Minister Shah AMS Kibria said much progress has been achieved in many sectors and he is fully braced to meet the donors.

"I'm fully equipped and prepared for the two-day meeting with the donor countries and agencies who bankroll the country's development projects. I thought that it would be useful to review the progress of the implementation of the programmes and policies at a time when the government will be in the office for some months," Kibria said.

The present government, he said, feels that there should be good understanding between the government of Bangladesh and the development partners so

WB report ahead of today's review meeting Macro-economic stability threatened, BOP fragile

By Inam Ahmed

The government and the donor community sit in the city this morning for a mid-term review of the economy, taking stock of the developments in it and the commitments made to the donors.

The meeting is being held at a time when the World Bank has noted in its just prepared economic update that macro-economic stability is threatened and signs of growing weaknesses in the fiscal accounts are emerging. "It seems very likely that the government will once again be confronted with a financing problem in FY '97," the update said.

It also pointed out that balance of payment is becoming increasingly fragile.

Representatives of all the 30 multilateral and bilateral institutions and countries who are members of the Aid to Bangladesh Consortium will attend the first-ever briefing on the state of the economy, taking place at the NEC auditorium.

In the meeting, spread over two days and six sessions, all to be chaired by Finance Minister S A M S Kibria, the donors are likely to raise a number of contentious issues, mainly weaknesses in project approval and implementation, low level of professionalism of the administration and a weak fiscal situation.

"Even though the external current account deficit through November 1996 — amounting to 310 million dollars — was less than half of the FY '96 current account deficit through November 1995, the fragility of the balance of payments appears to be increasing," observed the World Bank report.

It also noted, "With respect to bank credits, there are worrisome developments which could lead to aggregate demand pressures with a pick up in manufacturing activity."

About inflation, it said that although the 12-monthly moving average inflation rate through December 1996 was a

The World Bank has recommended that the petroleum and fertiliser prices should be increased immediately to boost revenue collection.

In its economic update prepared for today's mid-term review meeting of the donors with the government, the Bank has said, "Apart from pruning the ADP size, the government should consider measures such as revising some of the administered prices in order to boost revenue collection immediately and thus avoid excessive reliance on domestic borrowing."

The report further added, "among the administered prices, petroleum price is a major candidate for an immediate upward revision."

It said in 1996 crude oil prices in international markets increased almost 21 per cent over the yearly average price in

Load shedding unlikely to improve before June

By Sharier Khan

The irritating load shedding of power in the country is unlikely to improve before June next when the Ashuganj-Bakhrabad gas pipeline is scheduled to be completed, allowing gas supplies from Ashuganj to the gas-starved power stations connected with the Bakhrabad systems in Chittagong.

"The good news is we might add 530 MW power at the end of the year by launching the second unit of the 210 MW Raozan power plant and resuming power generation in eight other old plants which are undergoing maintenance," said a PDB official.

The second unit of the Raozan power plant is expected to go into operation in September. The eight plants will resume power generation in phases by December, the official said. The eight plants, five oil-based and three gas-based, are capable of generating 320 MW power, the official said.

But the bad news is, we will continue to have at least 100 MW load shedding this year, no matter what we do. This is because of the poor gas supply situation and power distribution system which need to be upgraded to meet our ever-growing needs," the official said. "Gas shortage will continue to a certain proportion even when the Ashuganj-Bakhrabad system will be completed."

The current level of load shedding fluctuates between 150 MW and 250 MW in peak hours everyday. The level of load shedding was 240 MW yesterday.

Almost all parts of the Dhaka city are experiencing load shedding more than twice daily. These areas include Uttara, Gulshan, Banani, Mohakhali, Moghbazar, Bangla Motor, Karwan Bazar, Green Road, Dhanmondi, Zigatola, Mohammadpur, Mirpur, Elephant Road, Azampur, Motijheel, Paltan, Shahjahanpur, Goran and all parts of the old town.

In many areas like Jatrabari and Demra power failure is frequent, five to six times everyday. Due to such frequent power failures, residents of these areas are also facing severe water

Pakistan back to weekend holiday on Sunday

ISLAMABAD, Feb 24: Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif ordered Pakistan's return to the weekend holiday on Sunday instead of Friday after more than 20 years, reports Reuters.

He announced the switch yesterday in his first televised address to the nation a week after taking office.

Friday was made the Islamic weekend in Pakistan in the 1970s by then prime minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto in an attempt to appease Islamic clergy.

Sharif said the holiday on Friday had been mostly used for social occasions rather than for Islamic prayers.

To give Friday its due status and to restore its sanctity, we have decided to have holiday on Sunday," he said.

But, he said, offices would close at midday on Friday so that people could go to mosques for Jumma prayers.

Police yesterday tried to evict several families residing at 99 and 99/1 Dhalkanagar under Sutrapur thana in the city, allegedly with the help of 'maastans' who, claiming authority under a court decree, pillaged through the houses. But the residents said they had no prior intimation about any court order. Police said they worked under court order but denied involvement of 'maastans'. Later, the residents obtained a court order which stayed the eviction order. But who would pay for the mess, asked Tajul Islam and Meser Ali, who had been living in these abandoned houses since 1972 taking lease from the authorities.

Shangu gas fields Drilling in 2 more wells begins tomorrow

From Nurul Alam

CHITTAGONG, Feb 24: The stage is set for launching a nine-month-long drilling operation in two more gas wells in the Bay of Bengal near Kutubdia channel from February 26, official sources said.

The two gas wells were identified as Shangu-3 and Shangu-4 located near Shangu-1 and 2 having a huge gas reserve.

A drilling rig unit having a high powered rig vessel is scheduled to arrive at this site tomorrow to carry out the drilling operation in Shangu-3 and 4 wells, the sources said.

The drilling rig is being towed from Singapore to the site in the Bay by two tug vessels.

Earlier, a barge loaded with the required equipment and a helicopter arrived at the site in January this year. The helicopter is meant for keeping contact with the shore as well as the vessels stationed at the Bay, the sources said.

British exploration company Cairn Energy, which has discovered gas in the Sangu Valley in the off-shore of Bay of Bengal last year, is hopeful of supplying gas to the dwellers of the port city by the second quarter of 1998.

Meanwhile, the Chittagong Port Authority issued a notice to mariners to be careful in operating ships and other vessels around the drilling site in the Bay, officials said.

The decision for drilling in Shangu-3 and Shangu-4 was taken after completion of seismic survey at the site about five months ago, the sources said.

Two foreign companies — Cairn Energy Plc and Sea Search Holland Bangladesh — under a joint venture with state-owned Petrobangla signed a production sharing contract in 1994 and then began a survey in the Bay.
