Australian DPM visits ICDDR,B, Surovi

Australia gave 425,000 Aus dollars to ICDDR,B for 1997, reports UNB.

Visiting Australian Deputy Prime Minister Tim Fischer handed over the cheque to the Director of ICDDR,B Prof Demissie Habte during his visit to the centre yesterday. The contribution will be used to meet ICDDR,B's core activities. It will play a key role in maintaining ICDDR,B as a centre of excellence dedicated to conducting health research in developing countries, an ICDDR,B press release said. Fischer also presented a cheque for 1,00,000 US dollars to support the clinical services and health education programme undertaken at the centre's hospital. Fischer appreciated the role of ICDDR,B and described the centre as "an excellent and a unique research institution."

Meanwhile, the Australian DPM paid a visit yesterday to Surovi, a voluntary organisation working in the field of literacy. On arrival, Fischer was received by Syeda Iqbal Mand Banu, president of Surovi and briefed about the activities of the organisation by Zubaida Khan, according to a press release. He met with the students of Surovi and showed keen interest about their activities, which include vocational training and painting classes.

Later, Fischer handed over a cheque for further implementation of an educational programme for underprivileged children, run by Surovi in collaboration with the Australian High Commission in Dhaka. Fischer also presented a cheque for 1,00,000 US dollars to support the clinical services and health education programme undertaken at the centre's hospital.
