Atherton stays in saddle cess in the important number LONDON, Apr 15:

Micheal Atherton was on Monday given the go-ahead to lead England's summer quest for the Ashes, reports AFP. Atherton was officially reappointed as skipper for the six tests against Australia and the three-match one-day series. The appointment announced by new chairman of selectors David Graveney in London, confirms Lancashire batsman Atherton in a job which he has held since July 1993. England's selection committee of Graverey, Mike Gatting, and Graham Gooch - Atherton's predecessor as captain were always likely to stick with the opening batsman after the back-to-back Test victories against New Zealand in Christchurch and Wellington which ended and often fraught winter tour on a bright note. Atherton, who was 29 three weeks ago, has 10 wins and 13 defeats in his 40-Test reign. Barring injury, he will now equal Peter May's 41-match England record of Tests as captain when the Ashes series kicks of at Edgbaston on June 5. And Atherton will experience one of the greatest moments of his career when he goes past May's mark in the

"If we can keep that for four months in England we will be hard to beat. Australia won 14 and lost only four matches of their 18game tour of South Africa, but Taylor's role as captain has come increasingly into question as his batting form has utterly deserted him. He has not scored a Test 50 since the end of 1995 and in his two one-day appearances against South Africa he was embarrassingly out of touch, making just 17 agonising runs shown wide reluctance to turn their calm and clean capital over to an onslaught of visitors. Recent polls have indicated only about half the people support holding the games in Stockholm.
