Thailand's Economic Policy Approach

THAILAND'S modest economic growth in recent years can be attributed to favourable external developments such as the reduction in oil prices, the appreciation of the yen and major European currencies leading to rapid growth of exports and lower international interest rates. The role of the government is to create an environment conducive to economic growth.

The economic policy management of the Thai government has been relatively conservative with policies evolving according to current needs and conditions.

The government has consistently recognised the importance of private sector as the engine of economic growth and has played a supportive rather than interventionistic role.
