New York council against business with cos involved in Myanmar

NEW YORK, May 15: New York's City Council voted Wednesday to stop doing business with companies involved in Myanmar in a move to use city funds "to do good and not to encourage evil," reports AFP. The council passed the measure by a vote of 50 to 0. Mayor Rudolph Giuliani has 30 days to either sign or veto the measure. The mayor's office has opposed the bill. But backers of the measures say they could easily get a two-thirds majority to override any veto. City Council speaker Peter Valone said the members had heard evidence at a March 4 hearing of serious human rights abuses by Myanmar's ruling military junta, the State Law and Order Restoration Council (SLORC).

No impact of US sanctions: Yangon

Reuter says from Tokyo: US sanctions which bar new American investment in Myanmar are not affecting the country, a senior Myanmar official told a business seminar today.

Budget constraints: Tokyo may cut foreign aid

TOKYO, May 15: Japan, the world's largest aid donor, may cut its foreign aid because of budget constraints, Foreign Minister Yukihiko Ikeda said today, reports Reuter.

"Due to budgetary difficulties, developmental assistance cannot be expected to grow by leaps and bounds as before," Ikeda told an international conference on Asia.

"As a result, Japan will consider other sources of financial flows ... such as expanding market access for goods from developing countries into Japan through deregulation or securing special funds from the private sector," he added. Ikeda's statements under-Ikeda said this reflected a general mood among policymakers to cut Japan's aid, long considered a sacred cow in foreign policy.

"There are people within the government who suggest that development assistance cannot remain sacrosanct," he said. Japan's foreign aid in 1996 fell 35 per cent from the previous year to 9.58 billion US dollars, the lowest dollar value in six years, according to foreign ministry statistics.

Kibria also appreciated the role of OECF in the development of Bangladesh and, in this respect, he referred to major projects undertaken by OECF loan which included Gumti-Meghna Bridge, Jamuna Bridge and the Chittagong Airport Development Project.

He apprised the OECF President of the policy direction and initiatives undertaken by the present government under the leadership of Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina for achieving progress and stability in Bangladesh, a message received here yesterday said.

The OECF President praised achievements of the present government in Bangladesh so far and assured that important project outlined by the finance minister would receive careful consideration after details of these projects were received by the Japanese government.

in current account deficit

ISLAMABAD , May 15: Pakistan's current account deficit is forecast to rise to 4.0 to 4.5 billion dollars in the year to June 1997 from 2.8 billion dollars a year earlier, a government official said yesterday, reports

The higher deficit would represent about seven per cent of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP), up from 4.3 per cent a year earlier, Deputy Chairman of Planning Commission, Hafeez Pasha, told The Associated Press of Pakistan agency.

Pakistan was expected to register in 1996-97 exports of nine billion dollars and imports of 12 billion dollars, leading to a shortfall of three billion dollars.

The agricultural and industry sectors, which form the backbone of the economy, had performed poorly, leading to a sharp decline in economic growth, he added. Pakistan emerged from a political crisis with new elections in February which followed the dismissal of premier Benazir Bhutto by President Farooq Ahmed Leghari in November for alleged corruption and misrule.

The new government led by Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif has introduced wide-ranging economic reforms, including significant tax cuts to stimulate industrial growth and expand revenues. Pakistan's economic growth was around six per cent in 1995-96 but it is likely to be much lower in the current year at around three per cent. Inflation was expected to be in double digits and the budget deficit was expected to be above four per cent of GDP, a target advised by the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

Pasha forecast substantial improvement in the economy during the next fiscal year.

He said the government was hopeful Pakistan would be able to reduce the trade deficit two billion dollars in 1997-98, the trade deficit was 3.3 billion dollars in 1995-96.

The official projected five per cent growth in agricultural output and seven per cent growth in production from the large-scale manufacturing sec-

Pakistan's foreign debt burden stood at 26.5 billion dollars and outstanding domestic loans at 1,003.2 billion rupees (25 billion dollars), according to official figures.

The government has said it has averted the danger of default on international payments but it would take at least two years to turn the economy around with the help of structural reforms and fiscal discipline.

The government, opting to purse its own programme to spur growth and mobilise more revenues, has said it would negotiate with IMF a loan of 1.5 billion dollars covering a period of three years.

The loan, for which negotiations are to start in July, will be sought under the IMF's extended structural assistance facility, a programme aimed at supporting major economic reforms in member states.

The government has collected 234 million dollars from citizens toward a debt repayment fund launched by Sharif so as to help ease its foreign debt problems, officials said. Funds flowing in included outright donations, interestfree loans to the government and fixed deposits for terms ranging between two and five years. The money is to be used before June 30 to repay expen-to accelerate a privatisation programme, saying it would use the proceeds from sale of state units and corporation to reduce the debt burden.

with issues such as the unification of customs procedures, and then with nontariff barriers, such as quotas and surtaxes. Brazil would leave negotia-

The United States feels two years are not enough to negotiate the most contentious issues involved in creating a hemispheric-wide free trade zone.

Defending his country's position, Brazil's Foreign Minister Luiz Felipe Lampreia, told the same business executives that more time was needed to accommodate the needs of the hemisphere's less developed economies.

Egypt urged to adopt more aggressive privatisation policy

CAIRO, May 15: Financial experts and international investors have warned Egypt to adopt a more aggressive and transparent privatisation policy or risk losing out on foreign investment, reports AFP.

"As long as Egypt does not privatise completely flagship companies such as telecommunications, oil and gas, the process of privatisation will never be taken seriously," said Paul Raphael of US investment bank

Merrill Lynch. Raphael, Director of emerging markets in London, was addressing a conference here Tuesday organised by the American Chamber of Commerce on the theme: "Egypt: An emerging market." Business Sector Minister Atef Ebeid told the conference Egypt has no plans in the near future to privatise the state-run telecom sector "because we first want to show Egyptian public opinion that the private sector can be efficient." "Egypt needs eight billion dollars of investment each year to reach a growth rate of 7-to-8 per cent by the year 2000," Ebeid told the more than 500 participants from 22 countries.

"What the minister said may be interpreted very differently, it is not conducive at this point ent.

to attract eight billion dollars per year," Raphael said.

For Marcello Guigale, an economist at the World Bank, Egypt should speed up the privatisation programme it launched in 1991 and under which so far mainly consumer goods firms have been offered to investors.

"You have had three years to ask yourself how quickly you should sell public companies, my answer is to sell them as quickly as possible.

He also urged Egypt to improve its social policies, stressing that "one out of three Egyptians live in poverty while five million Egyptians live on one dollar or less a day."

Egyptian economist Khaled Sherif cast doubt on the seriousness with which the country is moving towards a market economy.

"I don't think that the sale by the state of 50 per cent of a firm means privatisation," Sherif said, stressing that no giant multinational firms are investing in Egypt.

Raphael said that the only way Egypt can attract giant firms was to "offer to investors first rate strategic companies and ensure that the privatisation process is totally transpar-
