we are listening to you (and working hard)

We have not said much lately. In the early phase of our work, it is more important for us to listen to you and tune our system to your needs.

Our work attracted many more customers than our initial system could accommodate, requiring an upgrade of the system. Thus, we may not have provided services to the extent you deserve, and to the extent we wished to provide. It seemed more appropriate for us to work hard to make a system that offers you the best.

We had five base-stations on the day we launched our service. Today we have sixteen. A month from now we will have twenty-six.

Each day our network is becoming bigger and better. Your patience and cooperation help us move forward.

Our motto is to work hard to provide you the best.
