Gulf Arab states shelve common currency plan

ABU DHABI, Aug 3: Gulf Arab states have shelved plans to unify their currency exchange rates as part of a longstanding plan to create a common market, a senior Omani official said in remarks published yesterday, reports AFP.

Hamud Ibn Hashem, Executive President of the Omani Central Bank, said the issue had been discussed at several meetings of Finance Ministry and Central Bank officials in the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC).

"All of them affirmed that exchange rates in the GCC are stable and do not constitute any restrictions on the movement of trade, investment and capital among them." he told the United Arab Emirates (UAE) daily Al-Ittihad.

"They agreed to continue with the current arrangements for exchange rates and postpone discussion of the common currency peg," he said.

The GCC states - Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar, Bahrain, Oman and the UAE - had planned to create a single currency called the Gulf dinar for their planned common market. which will also include a customs union.

But they abandoned such a project and opted instead for unification of their exchange rates, a plan that has been under negotiation for years.

India seeks to open farm imports but sets high tariff barriers

NEW DELHI, Aug 3: India has sought between 55 and 100 per cent bindings on customs duties for 18 agricultural products including wheat, rice and grains, and 150 per cent bindings for delible oils in order to open up X government official said here today, reports Xinhua.

Latifur Rahman.

India's several major trading partners are reported to have sought much lower bindings than being sought by India. Bangladesh, for instance, is seeking bindings of between 15 and 45 per cent.

At the balance of payments (BOP) consultation meeting in January this year, India was unable to indicate any timetable for phasing out import controls of farm products because the country's Agriculture Minister Chataranan Mishra objected to the removal of restrictions on import of agricultural products.

Mishra set up a committee to examine the issue and the committee suggested that imports be openedup, but very high tariffs be retained in the agriculture and other sensitive At the early negotiation of agricultural bindings, India started by asking for extremely high bindings for most of the agricultural products ranging from 150 to 300 per cent for most of the items, but its major trading partners found these unacceptable.

Commodity market: Tea, oil firm; cotton dry over week

LONDON, Aug 3: The usually peaceful zinc market was caught up in a frenzy this week. because of risky deals by Chinese producers, reports AFP.

The Chinese smelters early this year had sold 250,000 tonnes of zinc "short" - metal they did not own in the hope that prices would fall and they could meet their contracts at a cheaper price. But the market got wind of the deals, and on the contrary, drove prices up.

This set the scene for several frantic days as prices surged to a seven-year high, before spectacularly crashing by 12 per cent in a single trading session.

Dealers suddenly thought that the Chinese authorities might come to the help of the smelters, or that a deal had been struck between the Chinese and a Swiss trade house, which has large stockpile of the metal. Elsewhere on the commodities markets, trading in sugar, vegetable oils and grains was caught up in nervousness over the threat of drought in China, India, Thailand and North America. GOLD: Hesitant. The yellow metal was shining a little brighter this past week, but prices remained far below the levels reached early in the year. Gold failed to break past the psychologically important barrier of 330 dollars per ounce, and prices ended at similar levels to the previous week, at around 326 dollars per ounce. SILVER: Firm. The firm performance of gold supported silver, which advanced to 4.40 ounce. COPPER: Pressure. The swelling stockpiles of copper in the London Metal Exchange (LME)'s warehouses weighed on prices. Three-month prices fell by 16 dollars to 2,316 dollars per tonne.

Over the week, official stocks of the LME — usually seen as an accurate reflection of supply and demand - grew almost 12 per cent, nearly 25,000 tonnes to 234,950.

LEAD: Weaker. The price of lead, a metal mainly used to make batteries, fell 7 dollars to 640 dollars per tonne. ZINC: Chinese seesaw. The buying frenzy which had driven zinc prices up to a seven-year high, fuelled by expectations of massive Chinese buying, came to a crashing halt on Tuesday. In a single trading session.

zinc prices plunged nearly 12 per cent as investment funds launched a wave of selling. The three-month price of zinc, a metal mainly used in anti-corrosive treatments, remained under pressure for the reminder of the week, ending

159 dollars lower at 1,455 dollars per tonne. ALUMINIUM: Hard. Aluminium prices broke past 1,700 dollars per tonne this week, after heavy buying by investment funds amid a severe squeeze in market supplies stored in the London Metal Exchange's warehouses. NICKEL: Strike. Nickel prices surged as the time ran out for Canadian producer Falcon Bridge to agree on a new wage contract with unions before an August 1 deadline for strike action.

Three-month nickel prices gained 370 dollars to 7430 dollars per tonne. LME stocks were up 540 tonnes over the week to 54,156

Dealers also responded to uncertainties surrounding the resumption of Iraqi oil exports, which have been frozen since the collapse of the oil-for-food deal between Baghdad and the United Nations in June.

TEA: In demand. Demand remained strong for all kind of brews on the London tea auctions. Prices for medium-quality tea gained 15 pence to 143 pence per kg. SUGAR: Cautious. The sugar market remained cautious, despite a calmer environment after the speculative buying frenzy of the previous week. White sugar prices remained close to 323 dollars per tonne on the London market, a high since September 1996. Fears of a poor 1997-98 harvest combined with earlier rumours of buying from Russia.

Analysts expressed concern about the prospect of falling production in Thailand and India after the return of a weather disturbance known as the el nino effect, which could cause severe drought.

VEGETABLE OILS: Nervous. The latest weather reports on the American great plains, where the bulk of the world's soya is grown, continued to hold the market in thrall. Fears that the continued lack of rainfall could wreak havoc on the soya crops drove prices up, amid a burst of buying by investment funds. Soya prices on the Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) closed the week up 16 cents at 7.68 dollars per bushel (of 27.2 kg — for delivery in August). On the Rotterdam market, palm oil prices gained five dollars to 480 dollars per tonne. Sunflower oil prices remained at 540 dollars per tonne.
