International seminar suggests

Plying of non-motorised vehicles should be restricted at city arterial roads

An international seminar suggested restricting movement of non-motorised transport, like rickshaw, on the arterial roads of the city and recommended mass-transport system for increasing the overall efficiency of traffic, reports UNB.

The seminar that concluded in the city yesterday agreed that the arterial roads should be free from non-motorised vehicles (NMV) which need to be gradually phased out from certain roads identified by Dhaka Urban Transport Project (DUTP).

Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP), United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and Dhaka City Corporation (DCC) jointly organised the three-day seminar on integration of NMT (non-motorised transport) in the urban transport system of Dhaka.

The seminar pointed out that improvement of public transport had been recognised as the key element for overall improvement of the city's existing transportation situation. It suggested exploring alternative employment opportunities for the existing rickshaw-pullers so that they do not have to suffer hardship when economic forces limit their operations to certain routes and areas in future.

These can be linked to poverty-alleviation programmes undertaken by various government and non-government agencies in the city, said the draft report of the seminar.

It said donor assistance could be sought to create opportunities of training for fulltime rickshaw-pullers who may have been displaced by economic forces due to introduction of efficient public transport on primary roads.

The city's arterial roads should be used by mass transport system such as buses while feeder services would be provided by NMT. Secondary roads need to be used by both MT and NMT by separating lanes for efficient transport, it added.

The report said the NMT, for safety, needs lights and reflectors, and efficient braking and transmission systems. Drivers' training was considered essential and licences should be recognised by the police, DCC, and others concerned.

There is a need to provide driving licences to those trained, and the system should be institutionalised, it said.

The report further said opportunity could be created for full-time rickshaw drivers to be trained for reemployment in other sectors when the rickshaws get gradually eliminated by economic forces.

It observed that there had to be regulation where the competition for road space was severe. On major roads, preference has to be given to mass transport systems, especially buses.

Jamaat protests imposition of sec 144 around Baitul Mukarram Mosque Jamaat-e-Islami on Tuesday strongly protested the imposition of Section 144 around the Baitul Mukarram Mosque for an indefinite period, reports UNB.

In a statement, Jamaat secretary general Motiur Rahman Nizami said by imposing the Section 144 around the national mosque the government has exposed its undemocratic and anti-Islamic attitude.

The Jamaat leader said mass upsurge in 1969, anti-constitutional movement against Ershad and non-cooperation movement against BNP had been initiated from the mosque premises as many parties, including the ruling party itself, brought out processions from there.

He urged the government to immediately withdraw the Section 144 and refrain from doing politics with the national mosque.
