The DCC yet to decide on reopening of Public Health Lab

By Staff Correspondent

Dhaka City Corporation (DCC) authorities are yet to take any firm decision to expedite reopening of its Public Health Laboratory — the only official centre for testing quality of food in the city, sources concerned confirmed.

It has been decided that the laboratory would be shifted to the DCC's environment building but nothing else has been done to expedite the procedure," an official source said.

The laboratory has remained inoperative since it was shifted from Laxmibazar to Nagar Bhaban nearly four months ago. At Nagar Bhaban the laboratory was not allowed to reopen and the Health Department officials have blamed internal foul play for the closure. The manpower and the equipment of the laboratory have been lying idle ever since.

DCC sources further said activities of the environment development wing of the DCC will face uncertainty as the authorities have not decided where they might be shifted once the laboratory is installed there.
