The British Council

Opportunity to establish Management Training Centre for UK funded project in Bangladesh

The UK's Department for International Development (DFID) has funded a management development programme called 'Training and Internal Consultancy' (TIC). The programme was developed in the UK and India by Professor Jack Butterworth with the aim being to increase industrial efficiency through the upgrading of management skills within large enterprises. Each year the impact has been the saving of several crores of Taka for the participating Bangladeshi firms.

A second three year phase of the programme (TIC II) managed by the British Council will include the transfer of the training capacity to a Bangladeshi organisation. Although the training in the first and second years will take place solely in the UK, in the final year the course will be jointly conducted in the UK and Bangladesh. During this period, training and material support will be provided to the selected local

The British Council invites expressions of interest from private and public sector organisations who wish to bid to become the TIC training centre. The longer term expectation is for the programme to be run fully in Bangladesh by the chosen local organisation, on a commercial full- fee basis.

DFID is the British Government Ministry responsible for the UK's official development co-operation programmes worldwide. It is represented in Bangladesh by the Aid Management Office of the British High Commission, which runs a substantial co-operation programme in a wide range of sectors, notably education, health, agriculture, fisheries, public administration, energy, road maintenance and private enterprise development, including micro finance.

The British Council is the United Kingdom's international network for education, culture and development services. The Council is an independent, non-profit making body. It employs over 6,000 people worldwide in 108 countries. Human Resource development in developing and transitional countries is central to the Council's operations.
