Arafat terms deal a 'trick'

Israeli settlers leave Arab neighbourhood

JERUSALEM, Sept 19: The Israeli government agreed Thursday to allow a Jewish presence in the heart of an Arab neighbourhood in east Jerusalem, in a deal denounced as "a trick" by Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, reports

The 11 Jews who sparked the crisis by moving into two buildings in the Ras al-Amud neighbourhood unceremoniously moved out Thursday evening, in line with and agreement reached between the government and their patron. US millionaire Irving Moskowitz.

But several of their many supporters remained at the site. part of the deal that allowed for 10 seminary students to stay on as security guards and workers.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu had hoped the deal would satisfy the Palestinians while placating right-wing members of his parliamentary coalition who had threatened to bring down his government if the settlers were forcibly expelled.

Netanyahu promised that deal would not lead to a larger

Jewish enclave, saying in a statement: "This in not the time to settle families in Ras al-Amud, or build a new neighbourhood in the area."

But Palestinians and Israeli peace activists condemned the arrangement as a capitulation that in effect sanctioned a new Jewish settlement in east Jerusalem, the sector claimed by the Palestinians as a future capital.

As the settlers were leaving in vans, scores of Israeli peace activists demonstrated outside the compound, shouting "No deal!" and "We don't want war!" Later, several Molotov cocktails were thrown toward the compound, apparently by Arab protesters. No one was hurt.

A previously unknown group calling itself the "National and Islamic forces" was distributing leaflets throughout, east Jerusalem late Thursday saying that "the battle for Jerusalem has started," and calling on Palestinians to "be ready for the fight. All options are open."

that three Jewish families are leaving an Arab neighborhood in east Jerusalem, her spokesman said Thursday.

Albright, just back from the Middle East, had called on Israel during her trip to refrain from moves that provoke Yasser Arafat's Palestinian Authority.

The house will be taken over by caretakers, not by a Jewish center, said James P. Rubin, the State Department spokesman. He credited Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu with opposing the families' moving in and for a solution that removes them from the neighborhood.

Their staying would have hurt peacemaking efforts and, thereby, Israel, Rubin said.

It also "could have led to a provocative or lightning-rod reaction on the part of the Palestinians," he said.

Netanyahu won the State Department's praise also for easing travel curbs on Palestinians and for agreeing to turn over to the authority some of the taxes withheld from Palestinian workers.

Indian troops kill 9 in Kashmir

SRINAGAR, India, Sept 19: Indian security forces searching for separatist militants fired two mortar bombs into a village in Kashmir, killing nine people, police said today.

Paramilitary soldiers from the border security force fired on Thursday evening into Arin village, 75 km (45 miles) forth of the capital of Jammu and Kashmir state, Srinagar, local police told Reuters.

Police said the victims included six women "they were all civilians, not militants," said one police officer who asked not to be identified.

The paramilitary unit was searching for suspected mili-tants when it fired the mortar bombs towards a forest next to the village, they said. The rounds fell on homes in the village.

Police and hospital officials say about 20,000 people have died in insurgency -related violence since a separatist rebellion erupted in Jammu and Kashmir state seven years ago.

Separatist leaders and the state's chief minister Faroog Abdullah, estimate that some 50,000 have died.

Unique tribute

CALCUTTA, Sept 19: In a unique tribute the West Bengal government has decided to erect a memorial fore an elephant which died in July this year at the Garumara Reserve Forest in North Bengal, reports PTI.

The state's Forest Minister Jogesh Burman, said that he would unveil a statue of 60year-old 'Jatraprasad, ' at the Bamani point inside the forest on October 20. A watchtower erected in the nearby Garati point would be dedicated to the elephant's memory.

Jatraprasad, the Forest Department's best 'kunki' (trained) elephant, had worked in the Garumara area since 1972. The hard-working pachyderm was very popular among Forest Department staff and had a particular affection for children.

Early this year, the Forest Department had decided to 'superannuate' Jatraprasad and there were talks of putting him on pension. But while a decision on these matters were pending the animal died in harness. leaving many of its human colleagues in tears.

Clinton will meet Gujral, Sharif in NY on Monday

WASHINGTON, Sept 19: President Bill Clinton will meet the prime minister of India and Pakistan next Monday in New York when he attends the UN General Assembly session, the White House announced today, reports Xinhua.

Clinton is likely to express his support for the two countries discussions on the divided region of Kashmir when he meets Indian Prime Minister Inder Kumar Gujral and Pakistani Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif, a White House spokesman said.

But the spokesman stressed that the United States would not seek to take a role in those talks.

We do not wish in any way to insert ourselves into the dialogue on Kashmir, nor to be a mediator, but we are very supportive of the fact that both sides appear to be pursuing progress through dialogue and we want to see that continue. the spokesman said.

UNITED NATIONS, Sept 19: The United Nations should help reduce the "excessive accumulation" of guns in the world and convene a global conference to fight small-arms trafficking, a UN panel recommends, reports

Such a conference could prepare a treaty controlling the international trade.

The US National Rifle Association quickly criticized the report, saying it was not a "proper subject area" for the world organization. But one panel member described it as only a first step.

will be submitted for approval to the 1997-98 General Assembly session, which opened Tuesday. It is the product of a year's work by the Panel of Governmental Experts on Small Arms, comprising representatives of 16 nations.

"This report recommends a set of practical measures to reduce the weapons already in circulation and to prevent future accumulations." UN Secretary-General Kofi Annan says in a foreword urging endorsement.

The General Assembly ordered the UN study in 1995 to investigate ways "to prevent and reduce the excessive and destabilizing accumulation and transfer of small arms and light weapons." Among other things, the report recommends that the

US may clear way for N-power sales to China: State Deptt

WASHINGTON, Sept 19: China has made "substantial" progress in curbing nuclear assistance to Iran and Pakistan which may allow President Bill Clinton to clear the way for US nuclear power sales to Beijing soon, the US State Department said on Thursday, reports

A final determination has not been made but Clinton may be able to certify by the time of a US-China summit that Beijing qualifies for American-made nuclear power technology under the 1985 Peaceful Nuclear Cooperation (PNC) agreement. spokesman James Rubin told

General Electric, Westinghouse and ABB Combustion have lobbied intensively for the certification.

Washington is looking for "clear and unequivocal assurances" that China is not assisting non-nuclear weapons states to become nuclear weapons states, he said. Iran and Pakistan have been the primary concerns.

Chinese President Jiang Zemin is to meet Clinton in Goldin will have "some explaining to do and I will give him the opportunity."

The administrator has been forewarned that he makes that decision at his own risk," said Rep. George E. Brown Jr., a committee member who said he shared the chairman's concern.

She said Goldin believes the safety of Mir has been thoroughly evaluated by an experienced NASA flight operations team and that there was "no technical rational to believe the Mir is unsafe."

As a final safeguard, she said, NASA is awaiting a safety report from Thomas Stafford a former astronaut, who has been in Russia talking with space officials.

Congress okays Jiang's plan to revamp debt-ridden industries

BEIJING, Sept 19: Chinese leader Jiang Zemin, seeking to cement his position atop the Communist Party, took charge Friday of a new leadership team strong on allies but moderated by members of rival groups, reports AP.

The Central Committee's selection of a new Politburo and its 7-member standing committee, the apex of power. marks the climax of China's political calendar. Barring factional fallout, Jiang and the other Politburo power-brokers will rule China for five years. On Thursday a pivotal party congress strengthened Jiang's hand by endorsing his plan to revamp debt-ridden state industries and choosing the new policy-setting Central Committee. Gone from the committee was a potent rival. Qiao Shi, the party's No. 3 and head of the national legislature.

Qiao, however, kept his influence in the new standing committee, headed by Jiang. The inclusion of one Qiao associate, Wei Jianxing, head of the party's internal watchdog agency, ensured the liberal lawand-order faction would be represented. Li Langing, a former foreign trade minister highly regarded as an effective technocrat, was the only other new member and is said to be on good terms with

Jiang. The committee contains five holdovers from the last group: Jiang, Premier Li Peng and Vice Premier Zhu Rongji, both Jiang allies; Li Ruthuan, a protege of late paramount leader Deng Xiaoping and head of a top government advisory body; and Hu Jintao, in charge of organisation and ideology for the party. Contrary to speculation, several Jiang proteges were not included, signaling that while Jiang may be first among equals in the collective leadership he must still strike compromises Leadership changes are especially important in China. Lacking strong institutions. the one-party state relies on personalities to manage party and state affairs smoothly. Jiang appeared confident.

Qiao's removal, and that of elderly Gen. Liu Huaqing, from the Central Committee on Thursday should have allowed Jiang to maneuver more supporters into top posts. Qiao, a standing committee member for 10 years, has tried to turn the legislature into a check on excessive party and government whose term as premier ends in March, is said to be interested in the job. Qiao is believed to be in bad health, often a euphemism for political problems. Although ostensibly retired because of his age. Qiao, at 72, is only one year older than Jiang. It was unclear whether, Qiao would get another state job. "It was a unified congress. It was a victorious congress," Jiang, 71, said at the closing ceremony, speaking in front of a gold hammer-and-sickle, the communist symbol Jiang, picked from relative obscurity in 1989 to lead a divided party after the Tlananmen Square crackdown, used the congress to stake a claim to Deng's leadership mantle. The congress amended the party constitution to make "Deng Xiaoping Theory" its guiding ideology," according to Xinhua.

The amendment is more than cosmetic. By enshrining Deng's pragmatic approach to economic development in the constitution. Jiang hopes to protect unorthodox reforms from criticism.

His solutions for restructuring the state sector have already drawn fire from conservative central planners and radical communists who regard plans to issue shares in companies as a threat to state control.

"Deng Xiaoping Theory" also means the party will concentrate on economic, not political, reforms.

Japan may sign treaty to ban landmines

TOKYO, Sept 19: Japanese Foreign Minister Keizo Obuchi said today Tokyo may sign a global treaty to ban landmines at an official convention in December, reports Reuter.

"It would be contradictory for Japan on one hand to contribute to the removal of landmines in Cambodia and not accept the treaty on the other hand," Obuchi said.

"It does not make sense to rejects the treaty," he told a news conference. More than 100 countries and organisations ended a conference in Oslo on Thursday by adopting a draft of the Antipersonnel Landmine Treaty which outlaws the use, production, sale and stocking of antipersonnel landmines.
