No luck for Taylor

COFFS HARBOUR, Oct 29: Captain Mark Taylor's chances of keeping his place in Australia's one-day cricket team suffered another blow when he was out cheaply in a rained-out match against New Zealand on Wednesday, reports AP.

Taylor led a New South
Wales XI into the limited overs match but fell for seven to a stunning catch by Nathan Astle at second slip off Simon Doull.

Taylor was the only Test player in the side, which struggled to 156 off 49 overs. New Zealand were 68-3 off 14.2 overs when play was called off without a result because of rain.

Taylor decided to lead NSW to try to build a case for his continued selection in the national one-day team.

Australian selectors have decided to pick two different teams for one-day games and Tests this season and have said they would consider using different captains.

Steve Waugh led an Australian XI in a match on Tuesday and is considered frontrunner to replace Taylor at the helm in the short form.

New Zealand showed vast improvement from losing fourday and one-day games to Queensland. NSW coach Steve Small praised the visitors' fielding after their coach Steve Rixon slammed his players for their start to the three-Test tour last "I thought their fielding was outstanding," Small said. "The catch to take Taylor was just sensational. You wouldn't see better anywhere." Small said all-rounder

Chris Cairns would be under pressure to perform for the Kiwis when the Test series starts against Australia in Brisbane on November 7.

"None of our players commented on any particular bowler but Chris Cairns is obviously a class player and New Zealand will rely heavily on him this summer.

Scores: NSW XI 156 off 49 overs (Corey Richards 66), New Zealand 68-3 off 14.2 overs. Result: Match abandoned.
