A tense weekend in store

TOKYO, Nov 6: Asia's World Cup qualifying battle reaches a climax this weekend with a tense scramble for points to get automatic tickets to next year's finals or at least, cling to hopes of a second chance, reports AFP.

Japan go into their final Group B match against Kazakhstan here Saturday without suspended strikers Kazuyoshi Miura and Wagner Lopes and possibly counting on a favour from arch-rivals South Korea to secure second spot.

In Group A, Iran will virtually secure top place and an automatic qualification in their final match in Doha on Friday. The two top teams from each group go straight to France '98.

The second teams play-off for the third automatic spot and the loser of that match will play Australia to decide the final place.

South Korea are already guaranteed top place in Group B but still have a key role to play in deciding the fate of their rivals.

Russia in crisis

MOSCOW, Nov 6: Russia will head for its key World Cup second leg play-off against Italy this month weakened by a string of injuries that have forced out winger Andrei Kanchelskis and defender Akhrik Tsveiba, reports AFP.

Russian Football Union (RFU) spokesman Yuri Yudin told the news agency that Tsveiba had been left out of the squad due to injury, and not because of the slip which allowed Italy to go one up in the first leg play-off before Russia equalised.

Yudin said chief coach Boris Ignatyev had named 25 probabilities for the crucial second game in Naples on November 15, which will decide who qualify for the World Cup finals in France next summer.

Contrary to expectations, Ignatyev did not call up Alexander Mostovoi and Valery Karpin — two midfielders, now both with Celta Vigo of Spain.

Mostovoi failed to impress Ignatyev during Celta's last game against Sporting Gijon at the weekend, while Karpin already had a black mark after refusing to play for the national squad in the summer.

Kanchelskis, a winger with Fiorentina of Italy, will also miss the game because he suffered a serious knee injury in a collision with Italian goalkeeper Gianluca Pagliuca in the first leg.

Two other Russian stars playing in Italy — Osmar Terzache of Roma and Igor Simunkevich of Reggiana — were named but may miss the game since they have only just recovered from injury.

But Igor Kolyvanov, who was on the substitutes' bench during his last game for Bologna in Italy's Serie A, will probably appear in the World Cup play-off.

Japan's upset 2-0 victory in Seoul last weekend resurrected their hopes of reaching the finals for the first time. They now lead United Arab Emirates by one point going into the final matches.

"The possibility of finishing second has increased. But I never think of that. We just focus on the match, against Kazakhstan and try to do our best this week," said Japan coach Takeshi Okada.

Okada has called up veteran strikers Masashi Nakayama and Takuya Takagi for suspended stars Miura and the Brazilian-born Lopes. Nakayama and Takagi were key members of the squad four years ago when Japan's qualification hopes were destroyed by a last minute equaliser by Iraq in their last match.

Unless they Kazakhstan, Japan will be on edge for another 24 hours until South Korea take on United Arab Emirates in Abu Dhabi.

FIFA had ordered the two matches played at the same time, but changed its mind after Japanese protests that a rescheduling would lead to an organisational nightmare.

After the unexpected win in Seoul, prices for the Japan-Kazakhstan match have doubled in recent days, fans are again expressing confidence of seeing some soccer glory, one 19-year-old has been camping outside the stadium since last Sunday.

But South Korea say they will not be relaxing for the final match, and the United Arab Emirates face a tough task after their goalless draw at home to Uzbekistan last Sunday allowed Japan to overtake them.

Going into the match late today between Saudi Arabia and China, all the teams in Group A could theoretically get into the play-offs. But Iran and the Saudis are the favourites.

Only a point from their match against Qatar on Friday would virtually assure them of at least second place.

The final group matches are next Wednesday when China take on Kuwait in Dalian and Qatar play Saudi Arabia in Doha.

Wins for Juve, Parma

MILAN, Nov 6: Juventus coach Marcello Lippi and Parma's Carlo Ancelotti both laid into their teams today after some dismal performance by Italian sides in the champions league.

Lippi admitted that Juventus' ill-deserved 3-2 victory in Turin over Kosice was best forgotten, while Ancelotti claimed his side lacked guts after they went down 2-0 to Borussia Dortmund in Germany.

Juventus turned in a poor display against the Slovaks on Wednesday night, and were lucky not to be a goal or two down during the first-half.

But Alessandro del Piero and two decisive substitutions won it for the former holders. Nicola

Amoruso and Daniel Fonseca both scored within two minutes of coming on, but there was little else to celebrate in an otherwise slack performance.

Lippi also spared a thought for Group B rivals Manchester United, who maintained their three-point lead over Juventus after defeating Feyenoord 3-1 in Rotterdam.

Ancelotti had nothing good to say about his side, after the odds on them reaching the quarterfinals lengthened dramatically.

Goalkeeper Gianluigi Buffon saved one penalty and parried another before Andy Moeller snapped up the rebound for his second goal of the night.

Parma now need to win their last two matches to stand any chances of reaching the last eight of Group A. Juventus are still aiming to beat Manchester United in Turin on December 10 to finish top of the group.

Van Almsick's version

REGENSBURG, Germany. Nov 6: German swimming star Franziska van Almsick on Wednesday reacted angrily to suggestions that she might have been taking stimulants, reports AFP.

Quoting German doping inspector Joerg Balke, weekly Sport Bild alleged that the swimmer, currently taking a break from top competition, underwent a surprise four-hour doping control in Lanzarote on October 2.

In all, 14 swimmers training on the island were invited to take the tests.

Move to preserve Diego's number ten shirt

BUENOS AIRES, Nov 6 (AFP) — If one of the country's deputies has his way, Argentina's national squad could lose their shirt — but only as a gesture to honour their now retired former World Cup winning skipper Diego Maradona.

The MP, Darci Samperio, suggested in parliament that Maradona's famous 'number ten' shirt should be withdrawn and added he would be pulling the idea to the Argentine Football Association.

"Withdrawing the number ten shirt would be a way of paying permanent homage to the best player in the history of Argentinian football," said Samperio.

He added that even if Maradona's private life had tarnished his reputation in the eyes of some people, the passion he had engendered as a sportsman should be properly and permanently acknowledged.

Maradona, 37, last week finally announced his definitive retirement after renewed speculation that he had again tested positive for drugs.

PSV serve Newcastle a blow

NEWCASTLE, England, Nov 6: Disgruntled fans have called for a speedy resolution to Newcastle United's lack of firepower after PSV Eindhoven dealt the club a second and probably fatal European Champions' League defeat in two weeks, reports Reuters.

"The fans want a striker coming in the next two weeks," Steve Wraith, editor of a local magazine, told the city's Journal Daily newspaper today.

"It's becoming old hat to talk about our lack of strikers but the fans' patience is wearing thin."

Wednesday's 2-0 defeat left Newcastle third in Group C with four points, six behind leaders Dynamo Kiev with two matches remaining.

PSV, the 1988 European Cup winners, now play Dynamo Kiev in a make or break clash in Ukraine on November 26.

There could be no real quibbles about the defeat after five goals from PSV's Belgian strikers Luc Nilis and Gilles de Bilde shattered Newcastle's slim hopes of repeating their opening 3-2 defeat of Barcelona.

Kiev dumped Barcelona 4-0 in Spain.

Milan feel aggrieved

MILAN, Nov 6: AC Milan are to lodge a complaint with the Brazilian Football Federation over the fact that both their stars, Leonardo and Andre Cruz, have been called up to face Wales, reports AFP.

Milan are unhappy at losing their men while neighbours, arch-rivals and current league leaders Inter Milan have been able to keep both — Ronaldo and midfielder Ze Elias.

Milan vice president Adriano Galliani said: "I'm about to write to the federation, and we will ask for an answer from Teixeira."

"Cruz and Leonardo have both been called up for the friendly against Wales, and other Brazilians playing in Italy are also on the list. But not Ronaldo or Ze Elias."

"And we want to know why our players have to make a 25,000 km round trip, and the others not. It's just for our information, of course, far be it from me to seek any controversy."

Galliani added: "We asked Leonardo what was going on, since he's the Brazilian captain. But he said he didn't know. So we've decided to ask the people in charge."

However, Milan officials should expect little joy though from the Brazilian federation.

The 21-year-old right-hander from Canterbury bats at No 6 and with the selection of 11-Test all-rounder Chris Harris will enable the Kiwis to stack their batting lineup down to No 9.

Kiwis selectors overlooked batsman Matt Horne to play Nathan Aspinall at No 3 with all-rounder Chris Cairns likely to come in at five.

Simon Doull and Geoff Allott lead the pace attack, which will be supported by McMillan and Harris, with teenage spin-

Gullit's terms for a deal

LONDON, Nov 6: Ruud Gullit said Monday he is ready to sign a new contract to stay at Chelsea manager well into the 21st century — but only if the club lays out its plans for the next 10 years, reports AFP.

"The Dutchman is refusing to put pen to paper on a new deal to replace his current contract which runs out at the end of the season and negotiations are continuing."

"I haven't signed yet but we are talking about it all the time," explained Gullit. It is not anything to do with money. I am not saying to them give me 30 million and I'll do the job."

"Of course it has to be about what I want but more than that it is about what Chelsea want and what they expect from me. You have to have a plan, a solid structure for maybe the next 10 years."

Gullit also insists his future does not depend either on FA Cup holders Chelsea winning another trophy this season or even taking another step towards conquering Europe by reaching the quarterfinal of the Cup Winners' Cup against Norway's Tromso at Stamford Bridge tonight.

But with stumbling Italian giants AC Milan and Holland's Feyenoord, another of his former clubs, both reportedly casting envious eyes in his direction, Gullit's situation at Stamford Bridge is sure to remain in doubt until he actually signs a new deal.

Dutch Football Association rules prohibit him from coaching in Holland until he has gained their full coaching badge and he reveals he intends to now take the appropriate course to earn one. Gullit said.

ner Daniel Vettori to add variety to the New Zealand bowling. The Kiwis have had a horror start to their Australian tour, losing their opening two first-class four-day games by an innings to Sheffield Shield champions Queensland and New South Wales.

They will also be confronting Australia's two leading bowlers, strike bowler Glenn McGrath and champion leg-spinner Shane Warne for the first time on tour.

There has been plenty of rain here in the lead-up to the Test with a greenish strip expected for the opening morning's play.

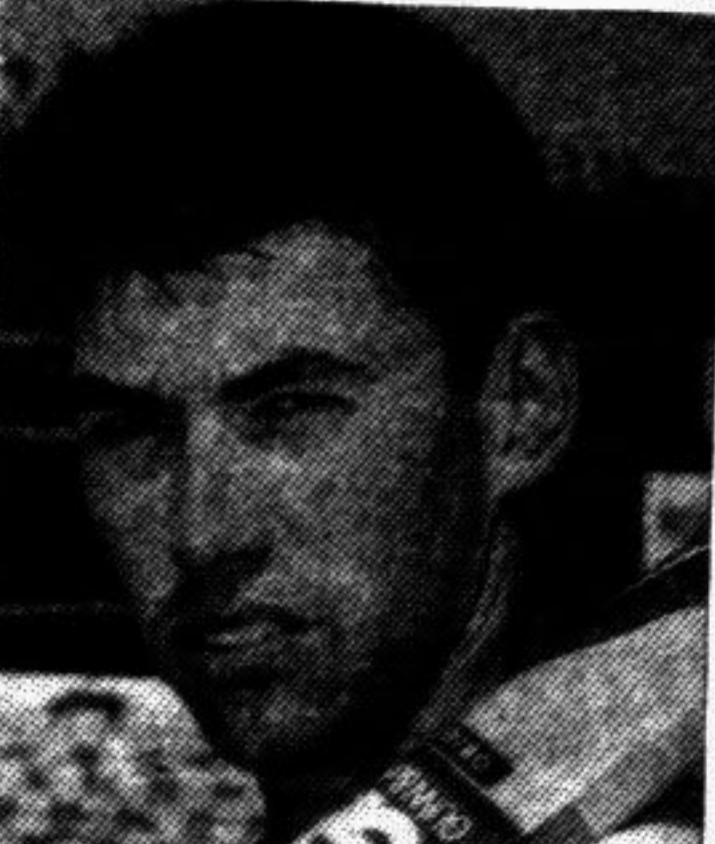

New Zealand go into the Test at long odds to upset the Australians, who retained the ashes 3-2 against England last August, following on from their series wins over South Africa and West Indies last summer.
