Like the last Tyson fight, Holyfield was bleeding again against Moorer. But this time it wasn't because of a bite to his ear. Rather, it was from a head butt in the third round when Moorer was still very much in the fight and the two heavyweights were going toe-to-toe.

With a crowd of some 10,000 roaring at the nonstop action, Holyfield unleashed right hand after right hand against Moorer, who kept getting knocked down and kept getting up again. Even after being knocked down for the fourth time, in the eighth round, Moorer motioned to Holyfield to bring it on. It was in sharp contrast to previous Moorer fights in which he had been roundly criticised for his unwillingness to mix it up.

Moorer was in the fight early, winning the first two rounds on two ringside scorecards and splitting them on a third. He wasn't afraid to exchange punches with Holyfield, and sent the WBA champion staggering across the ring with a right hand late in the first Moorer had been holding his rocking Holyfield with right hands and winning some early rounds. Holyfield was cut in the third round over the right eye and didn't seem able to hurt Moorer in the early rounds.

Then the fight suddenly changed - on a short right hand from Holyfield that caught Moorer directly on the chin.

Moorer crumpled to the canvas, then got to his knees quickly and finally got up at the count of seven. He fought back until the bell sounded to end

After the seventh round, Homansky looked at Moorer and Holyfield gave him another reason to do so in the eighth. He put Moorer down with a left and right at 1:50, and this time Moorer was slower to get up. Moorer (39-2) tried desper-

COLOMBO, Nov 9: A top Sri Lankan athlete said government officials threatened her and her husband after she rebuffed their personal advances. news reports said Sunday, says

The independent Sunday Leader newspaper quoted sprinter Susanthika Jayasinghe as saying that sports officials were pressuring her to separate from her husband and had made "personal demands" from her.

"These threats are so serious...I sometimes feel that may lose my husband," she was quoted as saying.

The village girl who practised running barefoot among rubber trees won a silver medal in the women's 200-metre sprint at the World Track Championship in Athens in Jayasinghe became only the second Sri Lankan athlete to win a medal at a top international meet in 49 years. Duncan White won a silver in the 400metre hurdles at the 1948 Olympics.

Jayasinghe was widely praised after winning the medal, and many look to her as Sri Lanka's hope of winning an Olympic gold. But the threats were impeding her training, she told the Sunday Leader.

"I don't think there is anything wrong in my questioning whether my winning an Olympic gold is only a dream," the newspaper quoted her as saying.

The 22-year-old athlete's three year marriage to Dhaka Nandakumara wasn't publicly known until her allegation Sunday. Their married life has been interfered with directly by certain high officials of the (sports) ministry, Nandakumara was quoted as saying. She had refused to name the officials. Sports Minister S B Dissanavake was not immediately available for comment.

"After losing 2-1 to Australia at home earlier in the year it is highly satisfying to beat Pakistan in Pakistan and lifting the one-day cup. Hats off to every single player," Cronje said.

South Africa beat Pakistan in the three-match Test series 1-0 with victory at Faisalabad by 53 runs.

Coach Bob Woolmer praised the team effort and leading abilities of Cronje.

"I think he has led the side in a shrewd manner and although we lost Brett Shultz, Jacques Kallis and Brian McMillan. along the tour we managed to pull off win in the Test series and this one-day title, its highly remarkable," said Woolmer who played for England but has been coaching South Africa since 1992.

South Africa will play three Tests and take part in the World Series Cup in Australia." It will be altogether a different tour with difficult pitches and after a ten-day rest we will do some training before leaving for Australia," Cronje said.

His side will open the Australia tour with a limited overs game against ACB Chairman's XI at Liliac Hill on November
