Australia, India sign new trade deal

CANBERRA, Nov 13: Australia's citrus growers expect to sell much more to India under a new trade deal that the two countries have just signed, reports AP.

Trade Minister Tim Fischer said Thursday that the agreement, reached through World Trade Organization Procedures. will greatly improve Australia's access to the long restricted Indian market, and that citrus growers would be among the first to benefit.

He predicted that Australia's exports to India, now worth about US 829 million dollars (1.2 billion Australian dollars), a year would quickly increase by at least US 21 million Dollars (30 million Australian dollars) a year.

Fischer said the new agreement could become effective as early as next week As part of the bilateral agreement, some 177 of our priority products will be free of quantitative restrictions before April 2000," Fisher said.

He said these will also include salmon, prawns, scallops, grated cheese, honey, opals sapphires and solar water heaters.

Kibria stresses CMAs' role in improving economy

Finance Minister Shah AMS Kibria said here yesterday that Cost and Management Accountants (CMAs) are the instruments of raising the standard of overall economic performance of the country, reports BSS. Addressing the inaugural function of a three-day professional course on "Company secretarial functions" the minister said in the present era of modernisation and rapid industrialisation the desired economic growth could only be achieved through upgrading the functional systems of economic activities with the increasing of efficiency and skill.

He underlined the need for improving standard of professionalism of CMA through perseverance and hard work.

"There is no substitute to improvement of professional efficiency of CMA's to ensure their due share of contribution in the country's march towards peace," the minister said.

He said at present the doors of opportunities for economic progress have been opened in front of the nation.

"We have to avail these opportunities," he reiterated. The minister said the CMA could play a leading role in availing the opportunities by exercising their professional skill. Kibria pointed out that economic reforms, which have been pursued by the present government, would only be successful with the active and effective participation of the professionals like CMAs.

"We have to carry forward the reforms to make our economic policies time befitting."

Underlining the need for forging national consensus in the process of attaining economic progress he said how can there be disagreement about a process which would ensure poverty alleviation, eradication of illiteracy or raising the standard of over-all economic performance of the country?

The minister said the nation had become successful in the exports of readymade garments through ensuring skill and efficiency.

"We have to remember we can enter into a bigger international market if we could ensure skill and efficiency," he

US dollar rallies against major units

NEW YORK, Nov 13: The dollar on Wednesday surged past 126 yen for the first time in more than six months on concerns that the Japanese economy isn't recovering from its lengthy slump, says AP.

The US currency also rose against the German mark, supported by the strength of the US economy compared with Germany's economic conditions. But some of that rise was trimmed by speculation that Germany may raise interest rates before the United States does.

"People are becoming more concerned with the state of the Japanese financial system." said David Glimore, a partner at Foreign Exchange Analytics in Essex, Connecticut. "There are some serious questions about whether Japan can re-In late New York trading, the Market participants don't expect the new plan to contain major measures to boost growth, such as an income tax cut. A draft of the LDP's plan carried by Kyodo News agency included steps to encourage private investment and the buying of second homes, but no tax reduction.

"The Japanese economy isn't going the way it should and there's nervousness how this will be changed," said Kevin Harris, international economist at MCM Currencywatch in New York.

Also lifting the dollar against the yen has continued turmoil in Asian financial markets.

Commodity market Prices of coffee surge, gold sink

CHICAGO, Nov 13: Coffee futures prices rose sharply Wednesday amid concern some shipments of the new Central American and Mexican crop are not meeting quality specifications, causing roasters to scramble for gourmet-blend supplies, says AP.

On other commodity markets, gold futures prices fell to new 12-year lows, reflecting fears nations around the world will sell their gold reserves. Or-ange juice futures rallied a third day on concern cold weather could develop into a crop-damaging Florida frost.

Coffee futures prices rose as arabica stocks certified for delivery to the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange in New York fell to just 14,300 132-pound (60-kilo) bags - the lowest in 11

Gold futures prices fell sharply on the New York Mercantile Exchange after a European official held open the possibility of large-scale gold sales when the European Central Bank is created in 1999.

Switzerland already has proposed selling a large portion of its gold reserves, and Australia already has done so, causing fears other countries will follow and create a glut on world markets. Germany was among some of the countries
