Move to rename school protested

By Staff Correspondent

People of Payalgacha of Comilla district residing in Dhaka have protested an alleged move to change the name of a 53-year-old school of the district by a vested quarter.

According to a press release, a protest meeting was held in the city on Thursday condemning the bid to rename Payalgacha Multilateral High School after the father of a local MP.

About one hundred signatures, including former students of the school, at the meeting called upon the people of the area to foil the attempt and urged the authority concerned to halt the move.

The petitioners said they would not tolerate naming of the school after such a person who had no contribution in establishing the institution.

Meanwhile, students of the school and local residents have been jointly distributing leaflets protesting the bid to rename the school.

Police said one of the dead was identified as Arsa (28), son of Danesh Sardar, a resident of Gopibagh area. Arsa's father identified the body at the Dhaka Medical College Hospital (DMCH) morgue.

Arsa and his alleged associates were beaten to death by an angry crowd while snatching about 8:30 am.

Motijheel police said they had informed different city thanas to trace the identity of the other dead man, aged about 30. The body was at the DMCH morgue till Thursday.

Meanwhile, police could not yet arrest anyone in connection with the murders as the attackers were mostly passers-by in the commercial hub of the city.
