

Aussies in semis

LUCKNOW, India, Dec 20: Australia entered the semi-finals of the women's cricket World Cup here today defeating Holland by 115 runs, reports AFP.

Australia scored 223 for four with the help of 74 from player-of-the-match Bronwyn Calver. Holland scored 108 for six from their 50 overs.

Barker packs his bags

JOHANNESBURG, Dec 20: South Africa soccer coach Clive Barker has quit just six months before the country's first appearance in the World Cup finals, reports Reuters.

His decision followed a series of disappointing results for the African champions. Barker told reporters in Johannesburg that the time had come for a new coach to take over the running of the team.

Twenty-four carat Ronaldo

ROME, Dec 20 (Reuters). The image of Ronaldo in a smart jacket with a trophy in his hand is likely to become as familiar in the next few weeks as those of the 21-year-old grinning after scoring another goal.

For on Monday he will be named as European footballer-of-the-year for 1997 — just after winning World Soccer's world footballer-of-the-year title with FIFA's world-player-of-the-year title sure to follow soon after.

The Brazilian has become the first South American to win the prestigious Golden Ball award for Europe's footballer-of-the-year from France Football magazine.

The latest honour — which follows his award for world-footballer-of-the-year in 1996 and European Golden Boot winner for being Europe's top scorer last season — confirms beyond all doubt that he is currently the best player in the world and in a sense confirms his destiny.

He always knew he was destined for success — and that he would achieve it on the soccer pitches of Europe.

Ronaldo, who learned his trade on the city streets of his native Brazil, says the long trip across the Atlantic was obvious for a young South American with no money but plenty of talent.

"I was tiny when the first great Brazilian players started to come to Europe, a bit like the Italian immigrants before them, following their dreams," he said recently.

"I was six years old and I decided I'd come to Europe as soon as I could."

Ronaldo got his chance 11 years later when he signed for Dutch giants PSV Eindhoven from Cruzeiro, where he had already made his mark with 58 goals in 60 matches.

He made a seamless transition to European soccer, hitting 30 goals in 33 league matches in his one full season in the Netherlands before moving south to Barcelona.

He enjoyed a spectacular start there, not only keeping up his virtual goal-per-game scoring record but doing so in style.

A typical Ronaldo goal in those first matches with the Catalans involved picking the ball up somewhere near the centre circle, running at the opposing defence at terrifying speed and, after shrugging off a series of attempts to scythe him down, slotting the ball under the goal-keeper into the net.

In an injury-interrupted season with Barcelona he chalked up 34 goals in 37 league games. Spain and the world loved him and soccer's governing body FIFA named him world-player-of-the-year.

RONALDO

Then came Ronaldo's long, drawn-out transfer to Inter, which threatened to take the spark out of his game.

He complained openly about the interminable wrangling over his transfer fee and insisted all he wanted was to play soccer in what he regards as the world's most competitive league.

But that has not stopped Ronaldo scoring goals. 14 of them in 19 appearances which have helped take Inter to the top of Serie A and the quarterfinals of the UEFA and Italian Cups.

The man Italian media call simply "il fenomeno" has proved once again he can adapt to a new league and new opponents and score goals on virtually any footballing stage.

At the same time he shuns the limelight with characteristic gentleness and diplomacy.

The one stage on which Ronaldo has yet to prove himself is the World Cup.

He was a member of the Brazil squad which won the tournament in the United States in 1994 but, aged 17, he did not get a game, something he cites as his greatest disappointment to date.

The way he responds to that setback when Brazil defend their title in France next year will reveal much about his strength of character.

The other item still missing in the Ronaldo Trophy room is a league championship medal.

He has a Cup Winners Cup medal from his season at Barcelona, a Copa America medal with Brazil and domestic up winner's medals from three different countries — Brazil, the Netherlands and Spain.

"Time is the one thing I don't have," he said. "I've thought of asking Father Christmas for more of it but I know even he can't help me. I never have time to be with my family, to see places, to relax with my friends. All that'll have to wait until I stop playing."

That may be every defender's wish but, for the time being, the 21-year-old from Bento Ribeiro shows no sign of slowing up.

Hamed retains WBO belt

Hamed survived three visits to the canvas before putting Kelley out for the count with a tremendous left hook.

The British fighter was now, on all 29 of his pro bouts and stopped 27 opponents inside the distance.

Kelley, a former WBC titleholder at the weight, has now lost two of 53 contests.

Confederations Cup final Socceroos v samba today

RIYADH, Dec 20: Australian striker Harry Kewell blasted his country into a Confederations Cup final against world champions Brazil with a 'golden goal' in sudden-death extra time against Uruguay on Friday, reports Reuters.

One minute into extra time in the semifinal, the Leeds

United forward hit a speculative shot from the edge of the box to clinch the 1-0 victory after the two teams had finished normal time goalless.

On Sunday the Socceroos meet Brazil, 2-0 winners over outstanding defensive display to hold the world champions to a goalless draw in their opening round group match last Sunday.

Brazil had an easier passage against the Euro '96 runners-up with striker Ronaldo finally finding his scoring touch.

Brazil turned up the heat in the second-half to secure a win with goals from Romario and Ronaldo in the 53rd and 82nd minutes respectively.

TEHRAN, Dec 20: Brazilian Valdeir Viera has been retained as coach of Iran, less than a week after the Iranian authorities admitted they wanted to replace him, reports AFP.

The dramatic about face came after Iran received a quadruple snub in their search for a high profile coach to lead them at the 1998 World Cup finals in France.

Carlos Bilardo, who coached Argentina to the 1986 title, former Barcelona boss Johan Cruyff, Yugoslavian Bora Milutinovic, who took minnows Costa Rica to the last 16 in 1990 and was sacked by Mexico recently because of their poor manner of qualifying for the finals, and Portuguese coach Eduardo Vinagre had all turned the job down.

"Unfortunately the coaches we contacted did not want the job," said Daryush Mostafavi, president of the Iranian Football Federation.
