Sonargaon Hotel's beautification programme

Management staff of the Pan Pacific Sonargaon Hotel joined in a beautification programme around the hotel compound yesterday, aiming to make a greener environment in the city, reports UNB. The Operation Oasis programme included painting of road dividers and grills, planting of saplings and cleaning up of the hotel premises, officials of the five star hotel said.

Business Development Manager of Coca Cola Bangladesh Khalid Raja inaugurated the programme. Managing Director of Hotel International Ltd., the owning company of Sonargaon Hotel, Adiluzzaman was present as special guest.

Coca Cola co-sponsored the programme by donating 200 bottles of complimentary soft drinks. The Pan Pacific family, led by the hotel's Steering Committee members, painted island grills and road dividers in front of the hotel and drew zebra crossings and road markings.

Garment, leather, software to get priority in proposed industrial policy

PM speaks of trouble-free port, privatising some services

Creating new jobs with a diversified and expanded export base appeared a top priority for the prime minister who presided over a meeting of the National Export Committee yesterday. - PID photo

State Minister for Foreign Affairs Abul Hasan Chowdhury suggested a stronger and reorganised export promotion bureau, which he said was not properly equipped to do its job. Software received the most attention as the prime minister gave directives to extend support to "new entrepreneurs and new ideas". She assigned the task to the science and technology ministry which would coordinate with other ministries and agencies. The prime minister also raised the issues of vegetable and jewelry exports, "which could help create job opportunities in rural areas".

Small-scale industry was another area the prime minister identified as having potential to prop up the job market. Her personal interest resulted in a proposal to set up a handicraft design centre at the planned craft village Rupashi Bangla in Sonargaon, near Dhaka.

Responding to leather industry representatives who complained of non-availability of funds, she said the tanners should get loans ahead of Eidul-Azha at least from the money already recovered.

Garment exporters asked for an interest write-off for some 500 "block accounts", so called because these were blocked or frozen after the borrowers' failure to pay back. The exporters say they were victims of such circumstances as the political standoff in 1995-96.

The meeting suggested resolution of the problems on a "case-to-case basis", which kept BGMEA leaders far from being happy. They said they were willing to pay the "interest-free block amount" According to a BGMEA estimate, meeting their demand would mean waiving some Tk 100 crore, or 20 per cent of the Tk 500 crore in original loans.

"The banks have done business with us for long. They have made money every time. But this time we failed because of situations beyond our control. a BGMEA leader argued when asked by The Daily Star why the banks should agree to bear the losses for which they were not responsible.

UNDP okays $ 26m grant for Bangladesh environment

The government and United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) yesterday ap-proved a new 26 million US dollar (Taka 120 crore) programme for sustainable environment management, reports BSS.

The programme document was signed by Economic Relations Division Secretary Dr. Moshiur Rahman and UNDP Resident Representative and UN Resident Coordinator David Lockward at the NEC Bhaban

A UNDP press release here said, implementation of the much acclaimed National Environment Management Action Plan (NEMAP) is on the way to reality with approval of the sustainable environment management programme by the gov-ernment and UNDP. NEMAP won wide national and international fame because of its unique participatory formulation process involving consultations with men and women from all walks of life - villagers, students, professionals, academics, civil society, civil service and even children.

For the first time in the history of the nation, NEMAP presented an opportunity to the people to participate in national planning. The Ministry of Environment and Forest steered the formulation of NEMAP over a six-year period (1991-96) with UNDP's support. NEMAP was approved in 1995 as a nationally owned framework of priority actions for sustainable environment management in Bangladesh through peoples' participation.

The five-year 26 million US dollar sustainable environment management programme. the first major programme to implement NEMAP, focuses on five majors areas policy and institutions, participatory ecosystem management, community-based environmental sanitation, awareness and advocacy and training and education. Twenty-two government NGO civil society private/academic institutions will co-implement the new programme in what is popularly called the "NEMAP spirit of partnership" with the government. The programme is a very significant breakthrough for Bangladesh in the area of environment and development as it will benefit the grassroots population, particularly women, in the eco-specific areas of intervention. It supports community capacities for sustainable management of environment and natural resources, and strengthens the capacity of the public sector for policy development in support of community participation, awareness and legislation leading to environmental sustainability.

The Chinese Calendar's Year of the Tiger could see Japan. South Korea, Indonesia and Thailand engulfed in a biting recession and little growth forecast for the economies of Malaysia, the Philippines and even Singapore, analysts said.

While governments battle inflation — due to galloping costs suffered by the sharp erosion in their currency values and unemployment stemming from business closures, they would at the same time beef up exports for speedy recovery, according to the analysts.

They believes that pressure on the troubled Asian currencies would ease by the middle of 1998 when markets shift their focus to Europe where efforts to forge a single euro currency would take centrestage.

"The second half of 1998 is likely to be a period of consolidation for many Asian currencies," said Philip Wee, regional treasury economist with Standard Chartered in Singapore. Wee said during that period, he expected more evidence of the export-cycle picking up in Asia where currencies have devalued rapidly, adding that governments would encourage investments that generate foreign exchange earnings as opposed to those that encourage consumer imports.

"The belt-tightening in Asia in 1998 will discourage foreign direct investments aimed at exploiting the domestic consumer markets or significant foreign portfolio flows seeking to derive capital gains in the asset markets," he said.

The meltdown in the Asian currencies had followed plunges in stock and property markets in the region and snowballing. of debts leading to bankruptcies and winding down of companies, banks and industries.

"The debts are stacking up and most of them are unhedged. Against this scenario, we could possibly see near zero growth in Indonesia, just as in South Korea and Thailand," said Jimm Koh, regional economist with British financial house IDEA.

Analysts warn that if currencies, especially those of South Korea, Thailand and Indonesia - the three economies that have come under the belt of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) — continue to slide a debt moratorium would be the only answer.

If they default on their foreign debt and declare a moratorium, creditors would have to form a consortium to negotiate a repayment schedule.

'Bird flu' hits Chinese chickens, threatens global epidemic

BEIJING, Dec 29: A ban on chicken exports to Hong Kong mainland China prompted by a "bird flu" scare is devastating farmers in southern Guangdong province, a Chinese official was quoted as saying today, reports Reuter. Huang Shaorong, head of the Guangdong Poultry Association, said no trace of the H5N1 killer virus had been found in Guangdong's chicken farms, the China Daily reported. "Bird flu" has killed four people in Hong Kong and sparked fears of a worldwide epidemic. Hong Kong, previously imported about 75,000 chickens a day from China. On Sunday, authorities in Hong Kong said all chickens in the territory would be slaughtered and burnt starting today.

Huang said the price of live chickens in Guangdong's capital. Guangzhou, had plunged almost 50 per cent as a result of the ban, which had flooded an already saturated local market. About 120,000 Guangdong households raise some 470 million chickens each year, according to incomplete data cited by the China Daily.

Huang said several chicken farms were on the verge of going out of business.

'Not privatized enough'

Most of the entrepreneurs of Bangladesh think that the economy of the country is not privatized enough for the desired growth of entrepreneurship, reports BSS.

This was observed by Dr. Wali I. Mondal, professor of Business, Henderson State University, Arkansas, USA, at a seminar in the city on Sunday. Organized by the centre for Development Research, Bangladesh (CDRB), the seminar heard a key-note paper en-titled "Privatization and growth of entrepreneurship in Bangladesh" by Dr. Mondal. Noted scholar and chairman of CDRB, Dr. Maznur Rahman Shelley was in the chair.

In his paper, based on find-ings from interviews of 71 entrepreneurs in various parts of Bangladesh, the author pointed out that the principal reasons why the entrepreneurs thought the economy of Bangladesh was not "privatized enough" were: Non-availability of longterm capital, excessive government regulation, strong foreign competition, high tax rates, high in-terest rates and general difficulties in creating market conditions in a regulated economy.

The visiting professor, who is currently in Bangladesh, said that 28 per cent of the respondents in his survey, however. thought that the Bangladesh economy was "privatized enough for the growth of entrepreneurship.

Professor Mondal recommended, among other things, that longterm credit be made more accessible to entrepreneurs and government regulations that interfere with the free play of market forces should be lifted. The government should also evaluate its liberal import policy as unauthorized entry of goods to the markets of Bangladesh hampers the growth of domestic in-dustries at an early stage. BGFCL earns
