200 children selling drugs in 30 points of city

The abuse of children in drug trafficking in the city is rising in an alarming rate, according to a survey revealed yesterday, reports UNB.

The survey on "Drug Trafficking and Child Abuse" showed that as many as 200 children are carrying and selling drugs in about 30 points of the city on behalf of their unidentified "bosses".

It said 20 per cent of the children, mostly from poverty-stricken families, are below 10 years of age and 65 per cent are between 12 and 14 while 15 per cent are above 14. They are used mainly for safe trafficking.

The survey, conducted by Unnayan Shahojog Team (UST), said the children are working for their bosses taking high risk.

Seventy-four per cent of the children attributed their involvement in the illegal profession to the financial hardship of their families while 12 per cent said at the primary stage they carried out the orders of their bosses and gradually got involved in the job for lust of money.

The report said 70 per cent children have taken up this job with the help of their known persons while seven per cent with their parent's cooperation and six per cent by relatives and five per cent aided by their friends.

Ninety per cent children sell Phensidyl along with other drugs, but 60 per cent sell only Phensidyl. Three per cent occasionally sell heroin and five per cent Pathidine along with Phensidyl. Other items, the children carry, are ganja, cigarettes and various types of wine.

All of the children, identified in the survey, have the experience of physical and psychological torture by their bosses, police, musclemen. Sometimes they fall victim to the wrath of misidentified customers.

Sixty per cent of them use nick names and hide their addresses for security reasons. In most cases, the boys are replaced with new ones when they grow up because the elder boys become more suspicious in the eyes of police. Five per cent of children gradually turn into drug suppliers, giving up the job of carrying drugs.

Ten per cent of them said they understand that they are doing wrong and they want to give it up if they find better job while 85 per cent think "it's not a bad job".

The survey found the involvement of girls in the profession only two per cent. The survey was conducted to hold a roundtable with renowned resource persons work on child issues.
