Shopping centres wearing festive look as Eid coming nearer

From Our Correspondent

NATORE, Jan 23: Natore town and five other thana headquarters have worn a festive look with decorated shopping centre and a large number of buyers as the Eid-ul-Fitr is coming nearer.

Though hotels and restaurants remain closed during the day other markets and shopping centres are open for seven days a week.

Almost all shopping centers and markets have been decorated with multi-coloured flags, banners, posters and the gates have been erected to welcome the customers.

The merchants and shopkeepers have devised new strategies this year to attract buyers. Eid sale campaign has been launched at different shopping centers ceremonially. Some prominent persons were invited to inaugurate the Eid sale campaigns at different shopping centres like Central Mosque Market, Uttara Super Market, Komela Super Market and Hawkers' Market. These shopping centres are illuminated in the evening.

Eid shopping spree is yet to gather momentum but the clever ones do not miss the chance for buying this or that as they believe prices of all goods may increase in the last week of this month of Ramadan when there will be and unusual rush of buyers at almost all markets.

One can feel a clear demarcation between the rich and the poor during the Eid shopping. The poorer section of people through the traditional old markets like Neechabazar and Lal-bazar while the richer section of people go to fashionable shopping centers.

Eid shopping may not be a happy occasion for the poorer section of the people because of rise in prices of many commodities.

However, the poor and destitutes are not deprived of the joy of Eid-ul-Fitr when they receive 'jakat' and 'fitra' from the affluent section of people on the eve of this great festival. The rich people do not forget to offer jakat and fitra which go to the hands of poor and destitutes.

Eid shopping will gather full momentum in the last week of this month when government and non-government employees get festival bonus and every one will buy something for his near and dear one on this occasion.

Production of molasses from date juice decreasing

MADARIPUR, Jan 23: Production of molasses from date juice is decreasing gradually in the district due to indiscriminate felling of date trees for use as firewood, reports UNB.

An unofficial survey revealed that the number of date tree is decreasing sharply as these are being used in the brick-fields of the district violating the government ban.

The number of date tree in the district was about two lakh in the year 1992, the survey report said. On an average 3,000 maunds of molasses were produced from the juice of these trees.

But the production decreased substantially during the last few years and the earning from it declined, said local producers.

Molasses from date juice is a specialty of the region and it has a wide demand in various parts of the country.

The molasses of Khoajpur, Dasherjanga, Charmuguria and Madra of the district have special demand for its taste and quality. 'Patali' and 'Hazari' types of molasses attract many people for their taste and fragrance.

Several village markets in Madaripur Sadar, Mustafapur, Kalkini, Angaria, Goshairhat, Utrail and Naria were famous for high quality molasses.

But the marketing centres are losing their importance as the production of molasses declined sharply.

Earning from it was about Tk 3 crore during the last season, but the businessmen and producers said they are likely to incur losses this year due to the sharp fall in the production.

Owners of brick-fields are reportedly engaged in purchasing date trees at a cheaper price from the villagers to use them in their furnaces.

Local people urged the authorities to take steps to stop indiscriminate felling of trees to maintain the ecological balance.

AGRI-VARSITY (Mymensingh): Begum Motia Choudhury, Minister for Agriculture went around the Muktioddah Smriti Biddalaya at Bangladesh Agricultural University Campus along with the Vice-Chancellor, Prof Dr Muhammed Hussain during her recent visit at Mymensingh.
