BNP secretary general Abdul Mannan Bhuiyan yesterday denied press reports that they had handed over a list of cases against the BNP MPs and leaders to US Ambassador in Dhaka John C. Holzman, reports UNB.

According to the reports, the list was handed over to the US Ambassador when he called on BNP Chairperson and Leader of the Opposition in Parliament Begum Khaleda Zia at her 29 Minto Road official residence on January 25.

"It's all bogus...no list of cases was handed over to the US ambassador," Bhuiyan told UNB.

Replying to a question, he said BNP did not seek mediation of Holzman in resolving the government-opposition dispute that refrained the BNP lawmakers from attending.

Police asked to take stern action against terrorists at DU

As violence again flared up on the Dhaka University Campus, the law enforcing agencies have been asked to take stern action against the trouble-makers, reports UNB.

Highly placed police sources said the top level of the government expressed resentment after the recent acts of terrorism on the campus.

Law enforcers were specially asked not to show mercy to the activists of Bangladesh Chhatra League, the student wing of the ruling party, as some of them are tarnishing the image of the government.

The trouble erupted on the campus last week between the

Warrant for arrest of Prabhakaran LTTE outlawed

COLOMBO, Jan 27: The Sri Lankan government formally outlawed the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) rebel group yesterday after it killed 13 people in a bomb attack at the country's holiest Buddhist shrine, reports Reuters.

Opposition leaders immediately condemned the move as closing the door to talks and making the military option the only one for the government in dealing with the rebels.

"The government has decided to ban LTTE with immediate effect," state radio and television said in a one-line announcement.

No further details were given and senior government officials, apparently taken by surprise, declined to comment.

There was also no immediate comment from LTTE. But the main opposition United National Party (UNP) criticised the move and a moderate Tamil political party expressed dismay.

Meanwhile, restoration work at the 16th century Temple of the Tooth began on Monday when 3,000 builders were deployed assisted by soldiers tasked with clearing the rubble

The LTTE guerrillas drove a truck packed with explosives to the site and detonated it in front of the temple, killing three of their own men and 10 pilgrims.

AFP adds: A Sri Lankan court issued a warrant for the arrest of the country's top Tamil guerilla leader to answer charges of bombing the central bank here and killing 91 people.

V Prabhakaran

officials said today.

The Colombo High Court on Monday ordered the arrest of Velupillai Prabhakaran, leader of the separatist LTTE, who is the first accused in the January 1996 truck bombing of the bank.

Prabhakaran, 42, Sri Lanka's most wanted man, and nine of his top guerilla commanders were indicted in October on a record 712 counts, including murder and conspiracy.

The elusive rebel leader has been charged under the tough Prevention of Terrorism Act before the Colombo High Court.

A Colombo High Court judge ordered the authorities to arrest Prabhakaran and produce him before court on March 27.

However, it is almost certain that Prabhakaran, who is believed to be hiding somewhere in the island's north-east and leading a protracted campaign for a separate state called Eelam, will not be arrested.

A spokesman for the attorney general's department said this was the first time that Prabhakaran had been named in a Sri Lankan court action under the Prevention of Terrorism Act.

Inter-bank call money rate shoots up

By Rafiq Hasan

Inter-bank call money rates have gone up sharply due to huge withdrawals by depositors ahead of the Eid festival, high rates of interest and continuous borrowing by the government from the commercial banks, sources in the banking circle said.

The call money rate went up to 22 per cent on Monday from the previous weeks' 14 to 15 per cent as a large number of people rushed to the bank counters for withdrawing money to spend during the Eid festival.

"It is quite normal that people will draw cash from the banks during their needs such as Eid and other festivals, but it is causing an 'artificial shortage' of funds in the commercial banks," said a top official of a private bank. He recalled that the call money rate had gone up to 35 per cent before last year's Eid-ul-Fitr.

Bankers, however, were reluctant to call it a "liquidity crisis" as the situation would ease very soon after recycling of funds from the business houses.

"If the shortage continues even after the Eid then we can call it a liquidity crisis," said a senior Bangladesh Bank official. But there was a sign of declining trend during cash closure on Monday evening as

BUET Architecture Deptt Teachers oppose new admission rule

Star Report

A new admission rule for the Architecture Department of BUET has evoked strong protest from the teachers of the department. They threatened to "pull themselves out of all activities of the varsity" after February 2 if it is not withdrawn.

The BUET authorities in a circular on Sunday made physics background "a must" for admission seekers in the Architecture Department. Talking to this correspondent, some teachers of the department said they will continue to oppose the new admission rule which will close the door for admission of students having humanities background.

The new admission rule also violates a 35-year old practice, they said.

Earlier, admission seekers in the Architecture Department had to appear at written test on Mathematics, General Knowledge and Science, English, Bangla and Free-hand Drawing, they said.

The change in the admission rule was made at a recent meeting of the BUET Academic Council, with a 'note of dissent' from eight teachers who represented the Architecture Department at the meeting.

Except the eight from the Architecture Department, all the 160 councillors in the Academic Council belong to the Engineering Faculty of the BUET.

"By sheer majority, this change was made without giving any consideration to the views expressed by teachers of the department concerned," Shamsul Wares, a Professor of Architecture Department said. Nizamuddin Ahmed, another

Growing cases of women repression PM urged to intervene

By Staff Correspondent

The Sammito Nari Samaj, a forum of women's organisations, has sought the Prime Minister's intervention in arresting the growing incidents of repression on women in the country.

"Today the happiness of Eid fades away with increasing reports of repression on women in the country," said Dr Naila Khan while reading out the forum's appeal to the PM at a press conference at the Jatiya Press Club yesterday.

Nari Samaj, in its statement, expressed anger and concern over the way the cases of repression on women are conducted. "This has become a farce". The statement said the government has taken initiative to remove discrimination in the Woman and Child Repression Act 1995. "But by adding terrorism related crime to the proposed amendment, the Act has been made complicated."

Nari Samaj submitted a 13-point recommendation to the Speaker on January 22 to ensure a proper trial for repression on women.

"We thought the immense public opinion which was created following the Yasmin and Shima murder cases would ensure punishment for the offenders."

Punjab-type coalition, if voted to power: BJP

JAIPOUR, Jan 27: BJP President LK Advani today hinted that his party, if voted to power in the coming Lok Sabha elections, would go for a coalition government on the pattern of Punjab, reports PTI.

"I would not be surprised if Punjab-type situation emerges after the elections, he told newspapers here."

Akali Dal (Badal) secured clear majority in the Punjab Assembly elections last year but shared power with BJP. Advani pointed out and said the BJP-led alliance may similarly emerge winner in the parliamentary polls. Claiming that BJP and its allies would win more than 300 seats, he rejected a suggestion from a reporter that since a BJP-led coalition at the centre would be bigger than the United Front, it would be more prone to instability.

Advani said "there is nothing basically wrong with a coalition government. Things go wrong only when the government is headed by a minority party with a bigger party supporting from outside."
