Bangla Academy Book Fair begins Feb 7

The traditional Bangla Academy book fair - the Amor Ekushe Granthamela - will begin on February 7 and continue till February 28, reports BSS.

Announcing this at a meeting to exchange views with editors and senior journalists, on the coming book fair, Bangla Academy Director General Dr Syed Anwar Hossain said the fair would have 300 stalls - to be housed inside the academy premises and the authorities would not allow any stall other than books this time.

He also said firmly that the authorities would not also allow any stall on the road in front of the Bangla Academy from Doel Chatter, to Dhaka University's TSC - this time.

He said he already had a meeting with all the student organisations seeking their cooperation in this regard. The meeting was not, however, attended by the Jatiyatabadi Chhatra Dal, he pointed out.

Dr Hossain pointed out that, according to set rules, the authorities would not allow the selling of any books, published outside the country.

Speaking about the elaborate arrangement of the fair, the director general said the presence of restaurants inside the academy premises causes immense problem for the smooth holding of the book fair and also its sanctity. There, he said this year no restaurant would be allowed. Instead, the Bangla Academy will itself set up a "writer's corner" in the fair where only tea and biscuit would be served, he added.
