BRIDGETOWN, Mar 27: Michael Atherton, who resigned as England captain after their 3-1 Test series defeat against the West Indies, has been left out of the one-day team for a warm- up match today, reports

Reuters. Although Atherton will not take part in the warm-up game against the Vice Chancellor's XI at the Kensington Oval in Bridgetown. He has been told he could still play in the fivematch one-day series if England run into trouble.

"No one is left out of consideration completely," Adam Hollioake, England's skipper for the one-day series, said on Thursday.

"It is great to have Mike's experience in the squad and if our batsmen run up against a prob-lem with the West Indies fast bowlers he is the sort of player we will need as back-up.

The only change anticipated on Sunday when the first oneday international is played at the Kensington Oval is the return of left-handed batsman Graham Thorpe in place of medium-pace bowler Angus Fraser. Thorpe is currently nursing a stiff back.

Under Hollioake's leadership. England beat the West Indies in the final of the Sharjah Champions Trophy competition late last year.

"I hope we can revive the spirit of Sharjah, said Hollioake. "If we do well in this competition I hope to be chosen as captain for the Texaco trophy one-day matches against South Africa in England in May."

The England team for today's match will be: Adam Hollioake (captain), Alec Stewart, Nick Knight, Ben Hollioake, Graeme Hick, Robert Croft, Mark Ealham, Dougle Brown Mathew Fleming. Dean Headley, Angus Fraser.

West Indies captain Brian Lara will lead the Vice Chancellor's side, which includes former Test openers Des Haynes and Gordon Greenidge.

Bangladesh national team player Sanwar Hossain, who flew to Barbados last week, is also expected to play for the Vice Chancellor's Eleven.

Catching in the dark!

LONDON, Mar 27: Learning to catch cricket balls in the dark could brighten England's Test hopes in the future. English psychologists claimed today, reports AFP.

Researchers have found that catching skills can be improved by practising in a blacked-out room lit only by ultra-violet

The catcher sees nothing but the glowing ball and is not distracted by anything else in his or her field of vision.

As a result, say the researchers, attention is focused fully on the sources of information relevant to catching.

Dr Simon Bennett, from Manchester Metropolitan University, said subjects who took part in trials in which they were thrown 30 balls from a tennis machine improved their catch success rate from six to 22 after practising for a number of sessions in conditions of interspersed light and dark.

When they practised only in the light they could not manage more than an average of 18 catches. Catching practise held only in the dark was not as successful as that held in alternate light/dark conditions, how-

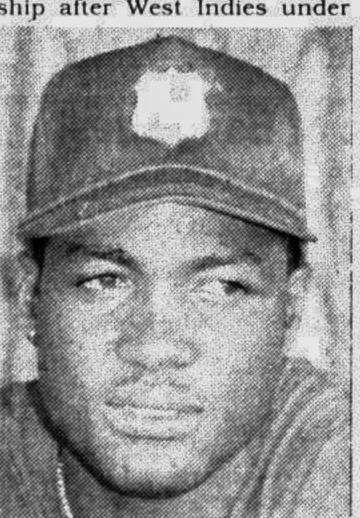

Presenting his findings at the British Psychological Society annual conference in Brighton, Dr Bennett said: "One explanation for this phenomenon is that in normal light there's lots of information, much of which is distracting, such as the background arm movement and things picked up in the peripheral vi-

BRIAN LARA Courtney Walsh were whitewashed 3-0 in Pakistan, and his start by any standards is impressive.

But Lara still has his critics who claim ill-judge tactics by England in the second Test at Queen's Park Oval gave West Indies victory.

For their part, England players believe the West Indies victory in the fourth Test at Georgetown, Guyana was due to Lara winning the toss on a pitch which spinners in the latter stages.

England were also favourites to win the fifth Test when heavy rain washed out most of the final day while winning the toss was crucial again in Antigua when Lara was able to put England in on a lively pitch, bowl them out for 127 and score 500 for seven declared in the best batting conditions of the match.

Experts also wonder why Lara did not call u Curtly Ambrose more often on his home track at Antigua Recreation Ground. Ambrose bowled only 37 overs in the Test, 20 fewer than Courtney Walsh, and did not bowl a ball in the last 50 overs. On the other hand, it was Lara's decision to switch Walsh to the pavilion and that brought Walsh a sequence of three wickets for four runs in eight balls that wound up the Test with just 40 balls left.

Three men who should know claim Lara is a natural skipper. "He is the best in the Caribbean and he must be West Indies captain," wrote Colin Croft, fast bowler turned writer and broadcaster, before Lara's appointment.

Fazeer Mohammed played club cricket with Lara when they were teenagers and remembers a young cricketer full of ideas.

"He would often go to a bowler in the middle of an over

Alec, bookies choice

LONDON, Mar 27: Alec Stewart emerged on Wednesday as the British bookmakers favourite to take over from Michael Atherton as England cricket captain, reports AFP.

Coral reported a flood of money pouring on Stewart to be in charge when England take on South Africa this summer. "The heavy betting clearly suggests that the cricketing public believe Stewart is the man for the job," said a spokesperson for Coral. They immediately cut his odds to 5-6 favourite from 7-4 leaving current vice-captain Nasser Hussain unchanged at 9-4 and easing Mark Ramprakash out to 9-2.

Lara now faces his greatest challenge, a year in which has side must travel to South Africa and then face the unofficial world champions Australia in the Caribbean. "South Africa will be very difficult," says Lara. "I also don't want to lose to Australia. by that time the team should be giving of its best and looking to
