India cuts bank rate

NEW DELHI, Apr 4: In an effort to revitalise India's flagging economy, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has reduced the bank rate to 10 per cent from 10.5 per cent, the Times of India reported yesterday, reports Xinhua.

The RBI on Thursday also lowered the repurchase rate for government securities from eight per cent to seven per cent, its prime rate to 13.5 per cent and its medium-term lending rate to 13.25 per cent from 13.50 per cent.

However, the deposit rate schedule remains unchanged.

The rate cuts, with an aim to squeeze liquidity in order to calm the volatile foreign exchange markets had been expected as finance minister Yashwant Sinha as well as RBI governor Bimal Jalan were recently quoted as saying that they were in favour of lower interest rates.

But it came as surprise for several bankers as they had expected RBI to announce further easing only in the monetary policy for the first half of 1998-99.

The RBI cut the repurchase rate from nine per cent to eight per cent on March 17, the bank rate from 11 per cent to 10.5 per cent the following day and cash reserve ratio from 10.5 per cent to 10 per cent in equal phases of 0.25 per cent effective on March 28 and April 11.

State Bank of India, the country's largest bank, responded instantly last evening by cutting its prime lending rate from 14 per cent to 13.5 per cent and "State Bank medium-term lending rate," the rate for advances with maturities over three years, from 13.5 per cent to 13.25 per cent.

German postal service may acquire 23 pc stake in DHL

FRANKFURT, Apr 4: DHL International Ltd., the leading air express company, announced that the German postal service Deutsche Post AG intends to acquire a 22.5 per cent stake in the company, says a press release.

At present, a memorandum of understanding has been signed by both organisations. Once finalised, the investment is subject to approval by the European Commission.

As a result of continued 16 per cent plus growth year-on-year, DHL has doubled in size in five years, and leads the international air express industry, one of the world's high growth markets.

The announcement is consistent with DHL's policy of finding financial and strategic investors to meet this exceptional growth. This dates to 1990, when Japan Airlines (25.001 per cent), Luftansa Cargo AG (25.001 per cent) and the Nissho Iwai Corporation (7.5 per cent) took stakes in the privately-held company.

The day-to-day management of DHL's business will remain the same, although the board of directors will be reinforced by the addition of new representatives of Deutsche Post AG, alongside the existing shareholders.

DHL will be using the capital proceeds to develop its network in 227 countries and territories. Last year it spent 240 million dollars in infrastructure and technology, and in Europe it plans to open at least 30 new service centres and acquire nine A-300 aircraft.

In Asia, it is investing in Hong Kong's new Chek Lap Kok airport, a new gateway in Jakarta and a dedicated Asia-Pacific IT centre in Malaysia. An airside development is also planned in Sydney.

In turn, Deutsche Post AG is the leading parcel carrier in Germany and is developing its pan-European road-based network. Its express delivery service will now have access to DHL's global air express network.

Live show on screen-based trading linking Dhaka, Chittagong and Sylhet

CSE ready to go on-line

Star Business Report

The Chittagong Stock Exchange (CSE) is all set to start screen-based trading in three major cities of the country within a month.

Through a computer network, investors of Dhaka, Chittagong and Sylhet will be able to purchase or sell stocks through their brokers in these cities, a CSE official said while presenting a live show on screen-based trading on the bourse. The presentation was organised by the MRM Securities at its office in the city yesterday.

CSE has already completed automation and established offices in Dhaka and Sylhet, which will attract business from these two cities. According to stock market operators, the introduction of real-time, on-line trading will also eliminate the need for a stock exchange in Sylhet.

"The members of the Exchange would be able to operate from their respective offices through computer at a cost of a simple phone call," said Maruf Matin, head of corporate development at CSE. "The investors from other cities can trade securities at a cost of an NWD call."

Mostaqur Rahman, managing director of MRM Securities, spoke of revolutionary changes the automated trading system would bring about in Bangladesh's stock market, now limping largely because of a lack of confidence stemming from a lack of transparency.

"The advantage of the screen based trading system are multiple and diverse. Real time, transparency and accuracy to name a few," said Mostaqur Rahman, who also sits on the CSE Board of Directors.

"Investors can now be a direct witness to the trading process on the computer screen. We feel that everyone, even remotely interested in the stock market, should have a glimpse of what it has to offer, and have a chance to explore its possibilities," he said.

While the Chittagong bourse is ready, the Dhaka Stock Exchange last week was granted an extended deadline to get its system in place. The Securities and Exchange Commission had earlier asked to computerise its trading system by March 31 but failed to accomplish the task. Now it must finish the work by June, failing which it will face legal action.

Meanwhile, the bourse has also signed an agreement with Telekom Malaysia International, Bangladesh to introduce what it calls MobileStock service which will connect AKTEL cell phone users with CSE.

'Free garments sector from income tax'

Bangladesh Garment Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BGMEA) has proposed withdrawal of all sorts of income tax, including 0.25 per cent tax at source from export-oriented readymade garments, reports UNB.

For promotion of export trade, many countries, including neighbouring India, have entirely freed export income from income tax, the BGMEA argued, while presenting its budget proposals at a meeting with the Finance Minister on March 31.

Total exemption of income tax will reduce production cost of garments sector and help it survive the competition, it said.

The Association mentioned that Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina of a meeting had assured a BGMEA delegation of freeing the sector from income tax.

It requested the government to take measures so that garment exporters can get back the surplus tax at source within a specific period through respective banks after final assessment of income tax returns.

Like capital machinery for 100 per cent export-oriented garment industry, import of spare parts for garment also should be freed from tax and VAT, the BGMEA suggested.

Existing import policy permits tax-free import of capital machinery for garment, but imposes tax on import of spare parts worth Taka two lakh or below.

Due to this "anomalous provision", import cost of spare parts sometimes goes higher than that of capital machinery, it explained.

The apex body of garment exporters and manufacturers said there should be a specific time-frame for getting back the amount of indirect VAT collected from them by different service organisations including insurance companies, clearing and forwarding agents.

As garment exporters are registered under Zero VAT rate, different service organizations collected indirect VAT from them which they are to get back.

But procedures often delay the repayment, causing financial loss to the exporters, the BGMEA pointed out.

AirLanka seeks to increase flights within S Asia

by Sugeeswara Senadhira, India Abroad News Service

COLOMBO, Apr 4: Sri Lanka's national carrier AirLanka is looking to increase flights to destinations within South Asia.

AirLanka, which is now under the management of Emirates Airlines, the new strategic partner, plans to close down some of the commercially unviable routes and increase the frequency of existing profitable routes.

It will also seek new routes to other South Asian countries, the Gulf, Southeast Asia and the Far East. A spokesman for AirLanka said that flights to India, the Gulf countries and South-east Asia are the most profitable. The routes which are financially unviable include flights to Zurich, Amsterdam and other European destinations.

The spokesman said Sri Lanka would seek additional flight rights from India at the next round of civil aviation talks scheduled for June this year. When additional flight rights are available, flight frequency in financially viable routes would be increased, he added.

AirLanka recently increased the weekly flights to Delhi from two to three. It is also hoping to increase flights to four other Indian destinations - Chennai, Mumbai, Thiruvananthapuram and Tiruchirappalli. Sri Lanka also sought flight rights to Bangalore at the last round of aviation talks, but there was no favourable response from the Indian authorities.

AirLanka will also reintroduce its flights to Australia shortly. The airline had earlier scrapped its flights to Australia and South Africa as both were running into heavy losses.

The national carrier announced that it would add four A-330 planes to its fleet of A-320s and TriStars. Airline spokesman Mano Tittawela said that treasury funds will not be borrowed for purchase of aircraft in future. "Loans will be raised from international finance institutions on the financial strength of the airline," he said.

Tittawela denied that there was a violation of government tender procedures by increasing the period of management rights for Emirates to ten years although the first notification offered only a five-year management period. "We have conducted air-shows and held discussions with nearly 90 airlines, but only five of them finally expressed interest," he said.

The spokesman added that the cumulative losses of the national carrier amounted to 2.4 billion rupees (40 million dollars).

Emirates Chairman Shaikh Ahmedbin Saeed Al-Maktoum and Secretary to the Ministry of Finance Dixon Nilaweera signed the Emirates-AirLanka deal on March 30.

Under the agreement, 40 per cent of AirLanka has been sold to Emirates Airlines together with complete management rights. Emirates took charge on April 1.

The 40 per cent of shares in AirLanka offered to Emirates has been estimated by the government to be worth around $85 million. But the price Emirates agreed to pay was 70 million dollars in two tranches.

Villagers set up their own power plant in India

by Sanu George, India Abroad News Service

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM, India, Apr 4: In a country with a perennial power crunch, the people of a tiny mountain village in the southern Indian state of Kerala have taken a huge step towards meeting their own electricity needs by setting up a micro hydel power project.

Three local entrepreneurs - Anil K. T. J. George and Samuel Thomas - set up the unique and cost effective power generating unit in December last year in Pathanpara, in Kannur district, in a short span of 90 days with an aim to provide electricity to the 450 families of the village. What is more, the project went through with no harm to the environment and no displacement of local people.

At present four kilowatts (KW) of power is being supplied to the village. Till February the village was getting power seven hours a day, which has declined to two hours each in the morning and evening as the water supply has thinned. The source of water is a running stream and a small pond that the villagers have dug.

The tale of enterprise has impressed many, but not the Kerala State Electricity Board (KSEB). The board seems set to play spoilsport as it is citing the rule book to declare the hydel project illegal.

In the Pathanpara system, the turbine, which is the prime mover in a conventional hydel power unit, has been replaced by a centrifugal pump and the generating unit by an ordinary induction motor.

Anil, who runs a small unit manufacturing electronic chalks, expressed his gratitude for the Red Earth Foundation at Panchgani for financing his trip to Nepal to learn about micro hydel projects. The foundation also helped him to organise a seminar on the subject at which a man from Pathanpara showed an interest in getting electricity for his home.

This provided the necessary impetus to Anil and his fellow investors - one of whom, Samuel Thomas, is an engineer - to develop this micro hydel project. The villagers helped them generously with both manpower and money.

Shibu Ollickal, convener of the 'People's Electricity Campaign' at Pathanpara, told India Abroad News Service: "Thirty-eight families went ahead and contributed Rs. 6,000 each and another 17 families contributed Rs. 2,000 each. Apart from that they contributed more than 700 labourers. We had full faith in Anil, because he had successfully erected a plant earlier."

"We just initiated it," a spokesman for the Red Earth Foundation said. "Our aim is to empower people. Our foundation believes in responding to the needs of the community. The success of this is primarily because everything was locally

Indian farmers protest US patent on aromatic rice

NEW DELHI, Apr 4: Hundreds of Indian farmers staged a rally here to press the United States to scrap the grant of a US patent to sell rice under the Basmati brand, reports AFP.

The police stopped some 500 slogan-shouting farmers as they tried to march to the US embassy here to protest the grant of the Basmati patent to US firm RiceTec in September last year, witnesses said.

The farmers, backed by a dozen Indian organisations, in a letter to US President Bill Clinton, said the move amounted to "piracy."

The protesters argued the patent, which gave RiceTec the right to sell an aromatic strain of rice in the US and abroad, would kill India's annual exports of some 523,000 tonnes of Basmati.

"Today, the wrath of the people in India, specially the farmers, have burst out against the laws and policies of the US which have encouraged and perpetuated a trend of piracy of our biological resources."

The protesters said India, which grows about 650,000 tonnes of Basmati every year, was the only country besides Pakistan to cultivate the long-grained rice strain.

P. Pushpangadan, quoted by the PTI news agency, said: "India may find it difficult to fight the patent if the plant variety contains the gene for aromatic grains that are characteristics of Basmati."

Emirates Holidays' new brochure this month

Emirates Holidays will release a new brochure for customers in Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Thailand, Singapore and Hong Kong, this month, says a press release.

This brochure will be available from travel agents or Emirates Holidays.

Since 1995, Emirates Holidays customers in Asia have been receiving a brochure specially created for their requirements. The new brochure for 1998-1999 continues with the same objective of offering Emirates Holidays' vacation products at a glance, emphasising those destinations that most appeal to travellers from the five markets. Inside are vacations to 13 destinations in the UAE, selected destinations in the Gulf, Europe, Africa and the Indian Ocean.
