Bangladesh Perspective

RADE in services have gained ground with the L entry into force of the WTO Agreements. Trade in health services is also a growing activity in global commercial transactions. Health services are now considered a tradable commodity and health sector can be an entrepreneur bringing in revenue and significantly contributing to export earnings of even developing countries in many ways. Presently, trade in health services are guided by four modes of trade under the General Agreement of Trade in Services (GATS).

They are - Cross-border Trade, which involves specially telemedicine; Movement of Consumers, which involves both patients seeking treatment abroad and students receiving foreign training: Foreign Commercial Presence (establishment of superspecialty hospitals and other medical institutions), that involves both FDI and private sector supply of services; and Movement of Personnel, which means health personnel providing health care services abroad. From Bangladesh's important. Every year Bangladesh has to spend a sizeable amount in foreign currency for specialised treatment of her nationals abroad. Under movement of consumers mode, a large portion of that amount is spent in India mainly because of competitive price and geographical proximity. Inadequate specialised treatment facilities and erosion of consumers' confidence in our medicare system are the main reasons of the movement of consumers abroad from our country.

standpoint, the latter two are

Last year on 24 November, the Government decided to allow FDI and Joint Venture Projects in health sector for development of medicare services in the country. It also decided to allow foreign specialist doctors by Dr Khalilur Rahman

Government should not make profit at the cost of people's health. Government's policies and decisions in health sector should meet minimum health needs of the general people. Trade in health services should not ignore the vital issue of equity in access to health services by the poor countries including from some frastructure and the proposed

Asian Highways, the possibility of coming foreign patients for treatment from neighbouring countries appears to be a reality. It would also discourage private practice by the Government specialist doctors and thereby, patients in the Gov-ernment hospitals are likely to get more care and attention from them. It is expected to create a competitive health environment among foreign and domestic private hospitals and Government hospitals. The ultimate beneficiary of all this

Possible Implications of Trade and Role of the benefits that trade in health services can bring, it may also loom large on the issue of equity in access to modern health services by the poor. It may also lead to the so-called brain

equity, the Government needs to ensure that delivery of health care services in the superspecialty hospitals should not have adverse effects on the health coverage of the general people — and in particular, the poor. Government policy should not allow health services in foreign commercial presence to clash with national health policy objectives. Provisions should be made to ensure

by Jim Davis

With regard to the issue of

Contrary to the economic

Government

would be the general people.

With the development of in-neighbouring states of India.

to be appointed in these hospi tals in a "proportionate rate" In the backdrop of the Government's all out efforts to attract FDI in the country and in order for ensuring modern health care services to the population. the decision is fully in conformity with the Government's overall development policy Government has had to take into its consideration, the costeffectiveness of interventions in health sector and the need for making choices on priorities in a resource constraint re-

While the private sector welcomed the decision, a section of doctors were making some clamour over this issue by expressing concerns on so-called leasing out the health sector to foreign companies. The main reason of their concerns, however. lies somewhere else and seems to be motivated by petty sectoral interests.

Possible Benefits of Trade in Health Services

The opening up of the health sector may be beneficial for the country in a number of ways. It would induce inflow of FDI, technology and modern medicare equipment resulting in better and modern medicare services, employment of health personnel; saving in foreign currency by discouraging patients to go abroad for treatment etc.

The foreign commercial presence is also likely to even earn foreign currency by treating patients from neighbouring equal access to services by the poor in these hospitals.

Government will need to devise adequate and appropriate regulatory framework to ensure that national health systems derive maximum benefit from trade in health services. Government should also ensure that any upgradation of health care services is equally extended to all patients and special provisions for the poor may also be made to enable them to avail of these modern and upgraded services.

Presently, a quite large number of health personnel are either unemployed or underemployed in the country. Their services abroad are unlikely to cause brain drain. On the contrary, the remittances to be sent by them, would be helpful for the Government to provide better health care services to the general people. Moreover, this so-called brain drain may be compensated by an inflow of foreign health personnel under the latest decision of the Government in this regard.

The benefits likely to be derived from trade in health services should be utilised for bet ter health care services in the country. Government should not make profit at the cost of people's health. Government's policies and decisions in health sector should meet minimum health needs of the general people. Trade in health services should not ignore the vital issue of equity in access to health services by the poor.

Appropriate measures should be taken to ensure that health needs of the poor are adequately taken care of. While allowing foreign commercial presence. Government should make necessary legislation to ensure a certain percentage of beds in these hospitals for the poor either free of charge or at a subsidised rate.

Only a few countries have made commitments in the health sector under GATS. Negotiations are to be held by the year 2000 in WTO to expand and widen scope of movement of personnel under GATS. The interest of Bangladesh in this matter is immense. More countries are expected to open up their health sectors under GATS. While taking active part in the forthcoming negotiations. Government should make sincere efforts in arranging for recognition of our medical degrees at all levels by potential countries. This is required for enabling our health care providers to be easily emploved abroad.

Meanwhile, Bangladesh Missions abroad should be advised to reinforce their efforts in exploring job opportunities for our health personnel and keep concerned authorities in Dhaka informed of the same accordingly.

The writer is Counsellor. Bangladesh Permanent Mission, Geneva. Views expressed in this article do not represent any Government's position.

Brutal Crimes Shake the Soul of Society

by Md Asadullah Khan

HE gruesome killing of Aslam Sardar (39), a A footballer turned contractor and joint secretary to believe and harder still to of the Brothers Union Club, in comprehend but it is true that front of the club at Gopibag and some atrocious crimes are being at 3 pm in the day (April 11) by committed by those who should some six known terrorists in be the most innocent — the the area, as reported in the meyoung. And recent weeks have dia. has again sent shock waves brought news of such brutal acts down the spine of the citizenry. as the rape on minor girls just With a surge of brutal crimes aged between 6 and 8, one after such as rape of minor girls, another in Dhaka and Chitmurder, extortion and robbery tagong cities. These crimes have in broad day and with the law awaken the society to the beast enforcers utterly unable to that has broken loose in some combat that, Dhaka city has in of the country's young people. Report published in almost recent times plunged into a all the dailies on March 17 last morass of chaos and anarchy. Some other cities in the world about murderous assault on surely have higher homicide Hazrat Ali (25) and Masud (26), both terrorists, in the Demra area of the city indicates brutal-theirs in absolute terms. isation of the society in a vi-The city was still absorbing cious way. Hazrat Ali's two the horrors of brutal killing of hands were first chopped off "Terror Liaquat" and Hazrat Ali from the wrist and then he was when Aslam fell victim to one shot to death. Masud escaped more dastardly killing. Among death but with his hands the Dhakaites, it reinforced the chopped off. Not content with spreading conviction that just shooting the adversaries, deadly violence once mostly the gang members are now confined to crime-ridden comchopping off the victim's hand paratively obscure places may or dismembering the body in now lash out randomly at any broad day light and indulging one, at anytime and even at in such macabre crimes in presplaces like Motijheel commerence of stupefied public and cial area, the heart of the even law enforcers. metropolis considered relatively safe because of its location under the very nose of the law enforcers.

rates but Dhaka's 'reputation'

perhaps would soon dwarf

Aslam's killing, as reports reveal, had possibly no link with politics other than the fact that it might have been a sequel to a conflict with other officials in the sharing of the auction money of cattle market beside the club premise. No matter what actually prompted the premeditated attack, it is a chilling reminder, as The Daily Star leader described on April 12, of the city's livability — its roads, streets and market places are fast becoming the preserve of killers.

Dhakaites can put up with dirty roads, clogged drains, poor school, mosquito menace and frequent load shedding and a host of other ills that plague their everyday living, but how can they take so much of uncertainty, risks and insecurity! In recent times, the city seems so consumed with crimes that it is incapable of thinking about anything else.

The daunting task before its leaders is to prevent it from rotting to the core. Against the backdrop of menacing rise of crime-rate in Chittagong, the Home Minister Major (Retd) Rafigul Islam's (BU) announcement of launching a combing operation against the terrorists in Chittagong with the aid of BDR and Army after April 18, a move though belated. was laudable. People only wonder why Dhaka should be excluded from such operation when its records are no better than Chittagong?

In fact, violent crimes rape, arson, extortion, murder have stalked the country in a way that no one could ever comprehend. And all these are taking place with such a disturbing frequency that no one is shocked any longer to hear about. And although it is hard commission of such horrendous crimes. An almost total impunity with which the criminals can carry out their gruesome acts of violence has only emboldened them to go on with such monstrous crimes. For some reason or others, law enforcement agency seems quite helpless to meet the challenge of these evil forces that only creates a total despondency in the citizenry. Latest report says a list prepared by them of a number of so-called godfathers of the criminals is missing. Where the society should rest its hope! But why and how could all these be happening? The experts offer a raft of reasons, everything from physiological and psychological abnormalities to family and cultural decay. Some of the explanations, it is believed, now may contribute to at least many of the violences. Each young criminal has his own genes, his own family background and his own response to many forces in modern culture that encourage indiscriminate sex and violence. Experts suggest that too many families are broken, too many

Throughout the country people are calling for stronger laws and harsher punishments. But bad guys are getting away with murder and rape. They are not afraid, have no respect for anything like law and society . . .

Elias Chokdar, an innocent picture card hawker of Shewrapara area of the city incurred the wrath and displeasure of some hoodlums on his refusal to part with the picture cards completely free of cost. Infuriated, the gang members came back and chopped off his two hands from the wrist. Elias, a young and poor boy who came to this grand city with high hopes and ambition to educate himself and earn a living and got himself admitted into Class X of the open University became a liability for his destitute mother. True, more and more teenagers, acting individually or in gangs, are running amuck and marauding with no purpose in mind but to create havoc and hurt civilized norms of the society. The latest incident of chopping off the hands of Hazrat Ali and Masud resulted from gang rivalry while the incident related to Elias Chokdar reflects a sort of pranks that went so terribly wrong.

Adolescence is often a troubled time of rebellion and rage. But these derailed youths are rebels without a cause. What people see now is quite an unusual phenomenon, — juvenile crime in our country appears to be more widespread and vicious than ever before. Now these criminals kill the inmates and rape the teenage girls in the house or take them away to places of their choice for molestation and then kill the victims to bury all traces of evidence. What is chilling about many of the young criminals is that they show no remorse or prick of conscience even after schools and communities are crumbling, too many drugs are available for the adolescents to acquire a sturdy sense of mercy or morality to guide their behaviour. Society had generally been able to control and channel aggressive impulses through its basic institutions — home, schools, mosques, temples and churches. But these moral pillars are now crumbling. Children, experts say, normally learn to trust and develop attachments to people within the first four years of life. By then they have also acquired a sense of compassion and empathy for others. And they have begun to be taught the difference between right and wrong and that hurtful action have consequences. Shockingly, as our experiences now suggest, many youngsters fail to acquire those early curbs on conduct. Young boys who grow up with absent or uninvolved fathers suffer doubly in that they often fail to develop a healthy sense of mas-

"These youngsters are dead inside" says psychologist Johnston. "For them to feel alive and, important, they engage in terrible types of sadistic activity" Most often signals of violence surface early but frequently go ignored and denied. The youngster who bullies school mates, tortures pets or goes on an arson spree is sending up warning flares. Children abandoned physically or emotionally by their parents look elsewhere for companionship. So says Parvez. (not the real name) a drug addict and a violent kid who lives in the Mirpur area of the city: I never had anyone to talk to. My father was gone. I had no one to turn to when I was in trouble, except my companions. They became my family".

In many instances, the violence is fueled by easy access to guns, alcohol and drugs, particularly crack. Crack-addiction can have several deadly effects. It can get users sexually aroused. When they do not find a willing partner, Williams, a senior research scholar in the US, asserts, they may be tempted to rape.

These teenagers often get their values from their peers. In such a situation, what is worse is the alluring life style of the few who have become legends in the locality through grabbing wealth by extortion, murderous assault and kidnapping of affluent people in the society. So Mantu (fictitious name) so long hanging around a tea shop corner in the Mohammadpur area got involved in such brutal criminal activities through peer pressure. What attracted other young men was his life style: fancy clothes, a brand new car, mobile phone in hand and the fear he generated. "They take him to be an icon and want to emulate him". Najib (not the real name) living near Mohammadpur area took to crime when the money his father was giving him was not enough to match his life style. He is involved in several murder cases but is currently out on bail since there were no witnesses to the crime. Social scientists and experts in juvenile delinquency feel the new surge in crime comes, in many cases, because of the lack of options for these youngsters.

Throughout the country people are calling for stronger laws and harsher punishments. These bad guys are getting away with murder and rape. They are not afraid, have no respect for anything like law and society and seniority. Other than punishing the delinquents, people have offered a more radical idea that is being worked out in California: parents can be held responsible for criminal activity of their offsprings. Precisely speaking, parents in the country should take a long, hard look in the mirror. The values of to-day s youth are merely magnified reflections of the values of their elders. We have to ask ourselves the intriguing question: why do some teenagers in the same environment get into trouble and others do not? We can't end up only watching a woman or a businessman either dead or in a coma, hearing the noises of the city and wondering what might come next. Much more fundamental changes in the society in the form of increasing facilities for education, opening up recreational opportunities for the youngsters, giving more parental care, creating job opportunities and stepping up battles against drugs and poverty are needed to make any dent in the teenage crime problem. And, of course, an effective deterrence by the law enforcers. But can we expect that to really

The writer is Controller of Examinations, BUET.

Garfield ® ARE YOU PACKED

NZ envoy meets

Hasina

Bangladesh economy. Simcock hoped that the businessmen of

New Zealand would utilise the investment opportunities now prevailing in Bangladesh.

High Commissioner of New

= Metropolitan RSF protests

arrest of newsmen in Bangladesh

By Staff Correspondent Zealand based in New Delhi Adrin Georges Simcock called Reporters Sans Frontiers on Prime Minister Sheikh (RSF), a Paris-based indepen-Hasina at Ganobhaban yesterdent organisation for defending day, reports UNB. press freedom worldwide, has During the meeting the New protested the arrest of three Zealand envoy expressed optijournalists in Bangladesh remism about the progress of

In a letter to the Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina on Wednesday, RSF said that the organisation was "worried about the increasing hindrances to press freedom imposed by Bangladesh authori-cently, says a press release.

British Council celebrates World Book Day By Staff Correspondent

Children enjoyed a rare occasion as the British Council (BC) organised a series of daylong programmes to celebrate the World Book Day as elsewhere across the world yester-

Around one hundred children from some non-formal primary schools run by four leading NGOs and at least 150 from reputed English medium schools took part in various events including story-telling. recitation, drawing and quiz competitions. Meanwhile, the BC has organised a story-telling competition and quiz contest for members of its Young Learners Centre on the occasion.

The winners of the storytelling competition are 4-6 years — Rafid Faisal (1st), Uzma Muazzem (2nd) and Faiza Rahman (3rd); 7-9 yrs - Sameen Naser (1st), Shavina Z Anam (2nd) and Farah Nasreen Choudhury (3rd): 10-14 yrs -Nuveira Rahman (1st), Maliha Bassam (2nd) and Sanjana

The quiz contest winners are: 4-6 yrs — Faiza Rahman (1st), Adnan Gazi (2nd) and Rafid Faisal (3rd); 7-9 yrs -Supriti Sarkar (1st), Nawazana Rahman (2nd) and Andisha Rahman (3rd); 10-14 - yrs Ameena Kawsar (1st), Samira Aziz (2nd) and Ayesha Islam (3rd), according to a BC press re-

Final results of Cadet College Admission Test বাংলাদেশ ক্যাভেট কলেজ সমূহের ভর্তি পরীক্ষা ১৯৯৮

রাজপারী ক্যাডেট কলে

יווון : ברבי שרבי סרבים בשבים ששבים בשבים כשבים

DOPE DEPOE BEDDE 14806 PEBOE POBOE DEPOE CEDOE CHOOL DPOOL DAGEOC

রংপুর ক্যাভেট কলেও

20000 = 002

লাকনা ক্যাডেট কলেত

WEERE PEEPE BROPE OPOPE STOPE COOPE

Sheep 25-682 35-684 35-685 35-840 35-845 35-690 35-699

Notice of Tender Military Engineer Services

Notice No 600/15/11/1997-98/E-6

Dated: 06 April 1998

Source: ISPR

1. Applications are invited by AHQ E-in-C's Branch, Works Dte, Dhaka Cantonment for issue of tender documents for the following works. Applications to be submitted to this dte within 07 (seven) days from the date of publication of the advertisement.

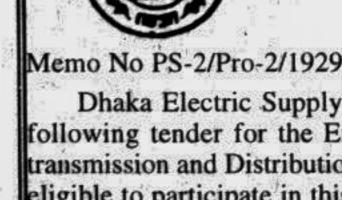

Left over of work for constr of 1x8 Teachers/Lecturers quarters (4 storied) for Shaheed Anwar Girls' College at Dhaka Cantt against CA No E-in-C/22 of Contractors born on the approved list of MES category 'C' may apply for tender documents for the work. Enlistment Index No, Class, VAT Registration No, Name of proprietor, Permanent/Temporary address and Telephone No (if any) must be shown clearly in their applications. Incomplete application will not be accepted. SO-2 (Wks)

ISPR/Army/98/335 DFP-8314-19/4 G-841

Works Dte E-in-C's Branch Dhaka Cantonment

DESA Local Re-Tender Notice

-Star photo

नियमिত विদ্যुৎ विन পরিশোধ করুন मक्तार्यनाय विमुख वावशंत्र द्वाम करून

Dated: 5-4-98

Dhaka Electric Supply Authority invites bids for different electrical materials against the following tender for the Emergency Maintenance & Rehabilitation Project Phase-2 for Subtransmission and Distribution System. Reputed manufacturers/their authorised representatives are eligible to participate in this tender the currency of bid and currency of payment is Bangladeshi taka only.

S1 No	Tender enquiry number	Materials	Last date for buying tender document		Commence of the Commence of th
1.,	1929/ER-2/11KV Cable.	11KV 3-Core XLPE Cable	12-5-98	14-5-98	Tk 2000.00

Tender documents will be available for inspection and purchase (through application) during normal office hours in any of the following two offices:

a) Project Director

Greater Dhaka Power Distribution Project House No 47, Road No 135, Gulshan, Dhaka-1212

The visiting British Minister of State for Foreign and

Commonwealth Affairs Derek Je Fatchett called on Leader of the Opposition in Parliament and BNP Chairperson Begum Khaleda Zia at her Minto Road residence yesterday.

Procurement & Store Management Dte Dhaka Electric Supply Authority

1, Abdul Ghani Road, Dhaka-1000 The cost of tender documents (non-refundable) shall be paid through Pay Order/Demand Draft issued by any scheduled local bank favouring Director, Finance & Accounts, DESA. Tender document shall be obtained personally and DESA will not take any responsibility for sending tender documents to any body.

Tenderers shall be received in the office of the Director, Procurement & Store Management Dte, DESA on the specified dates up to 11-30 hrs (BST) and tenders received will be opened publicly on the same day at 12-00 hrs (BST). Late tenders, if any, shall be summarily rejected.

DESA reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids at any stage without assigning any reason thereof. DESA/SEC/PR/A4-06

DFP-8293-19/4

Director Procurement & Stores, DESA.