HAT table tennis became popular because its name was changed. It so happened that in the 1890s James Gibb, one of the founders of the Amateur Athletics Association, thought of a pasttime for wet days - a game with cigar-box lids as bats and champagne corks as balls was played on the dining-room table at his house in Croydon. He replaced the corks with rubber balls but they were heavy for paying the game at a fast pace. So he ordered some celluloid balls from America. Gibb then designed bats of plain wood.

ORLANDO, Flo-rida, Apr 25: Defending champion Michael Chang and Jim Courier moved into the semifinals of the US clay court Championships with convincing victories over overmatched opponents Friday, reports AP.

Chang, the top seed, beat Brazil's Marcio Carlsson 6-3, 6-1 and the third-seeded Courier swept the first eight games en route to a 6-0, 6-3 victory over Germany's Marcello Craca.

Earlier, Romanian Andrei Pavel won his ninth straight match, defeating Alex Calatravas of Spain 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 to advance to the semifinals against Courier. The fourth spot went to Sweden's Mikael Tillstrom, who ousted Australia's Andrew Ilie 6-3, 6-3.

Chang connected on 60 per cent of his first serves and faced only one break point. He took command by breaking Carlsson's serve in the fourth game for a 3-1 lead. After serving out the set 6-3. Chang allowed the 153rd-ranked Carlsson to open the second set by holding serve before sweeping the last six games, closing out the match with two clean forehand winners.

Reaching the semifinals of one of the five events he won last year is Chang's best result since suffering a partial tear of the medial collateral ligament of his left knee March 5. Chang elected not to have surgery.

"They told me at the time that it would take two to four weeks to heal," Chang said, "but it actually took a lot longer than that to get rid of the pain and begin to feel strong again. But today everything definitely felt pretty good out there."

Courier made his match with Craca look easy. For the third straight match Courier allowed an opponent only three games although in beating Craca he was forced over the one hour mark for the first time by one minute.

Craca was able to hold serve only once.

"That's my game," Courier said. 'That's what I have to do, impose my will on the other guy and force him to respond to what I'm doing. If I'm playing well, generally speaking, I'm running the other guy around the court and hopefully he's feeling pressured to maybe come up with something better than he's got."

The Play

West opened a non-committal Heart. Declarer won in his hand and immediately took the Club finesse which worked. A Club was returned to the J in the closed hand. The declarer entered dummy with the Heart King and returned to his hand by ruffing the Club. He now thought about first trying to make the Spade King, if the Ace were on his left, or failing that he could fall back on the Diamond finesse for his 12th trick. However, he postponed both the decisions, thinking that both might fail. Yet, another alternative was to explore the possibility of squeezing either opponent in both spade and Diamond suits. He started playing Hearts and as East began slupping Diamonds, the declarer became more certain that the Oueen of D and Ace of S were on his right. He played 4 rounds of Hearts throwing three Spades from the dummy. West parted with all the Diamonds and hung on to 4 Spades. East was left with the Spade Ace and 3 Diamonds in the last 4-card position. East could not bare his Queen by throwing another Diamond on the 9th trick. The declarer now played his singleton Spade from hand, West took the dummy's King but then had to return a Diamond.
