'No first use' of N-weapons India ready to discuss accord with Pakistan

NEW DELHI, May 27: India said today it was ready to discuss a "no first use" agreement on nuclear weapons with Pakistan and other countries bilaterally or collectively, reports Reuters.

A government paper on nuclear policy presented by Prime Minister Atal Behari Vajpayee to parliament said: "The government on this occasion reiterates its readiness to discuss a no first use agreement with that country (Pakistan), as also with other countries bilaterally, or in a collective forum."

The government paper reiterated that India was a nuclear weapons state and "this is a reality that cannot be denied."
But the paper added: "India, mindful of its international obligations, shall not use these weapons to commit aggression or to mount threats against any country, these are weapons of self-defence and to ensure that in turn India is not subjected to nuclear threats or coercion."

In a separate statement Vajpayee told the lower house of parliament: "We have been and will continue to be in the forefront of the calls for opening negotiations for a nuclear weapons convention, so that this challenge can be dealt with in the same manner that we have dealt with the scourge of two other weapons of mass destruction — through the biological weapons convention and the chemical weapons convention."

All problems with Bangladesh can be resolved: Advani

Indian Home Minister Lal Krishna Advani has said there is no such problem between India and Bangladesh that cannot be resolved, reports BSS.
The Indian minister made the comment when BDR Director General Maj Gen Azizur Rahman called on him in New Delhi on Tuesday, according to a message received in the city yesterday.

Vajpayee said his government had already announced a moratorium on further underground nuclear tests.
"We have also indicated willingness to move towards a de-jure formalisation of this declaration," he added.

An AFP report adds: The Indian Prime Minister today denied that recent nuclear blasts were a politically-motivated move by the ruling Hindu nationalists.

Vajpayee told parliament members from his nationalist Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) that such criticism "itself is motivated" and that the tests enjoyed "a solid national consensus."
The premier addressed BJP members before the start of parliament's budget session, where he defended the underground detonations and blamed the west for New Delhi's decision to go for nuclear weapons.

Vajpayee's remarks came a day after the main opposition Congress Party said it was not satisfied with the government's argument that the May 11-13 tests were necessitated by deteriorating security in India's neighbourhood.

Khaleda at long march preparatory meet Mobilise public opinion against CHT accord BNP Chairperson Begum Khaleda Zia yesterday told a joint meeting of the preparatory committees for the June 9 long march to mobilise public opinion against the 'anti-constitutional' CHT accord, reports UNB.

She asked the partywomen to prepare for giving a befitting reply to the government by making the long march a success.

BNP and its allies have called for long march towards CHT on June 9 demanding scrapping of the CHT accord and repeal of the laws enacted for its implementation.

The BNP Chairperson said the long march is a peaceful and democratic programme like in the past when two long marches were organised demanding just share of the Ganges water.

The Opposition Leader said BNP wants a peaceful and acceptable solution to the CHT problem. The accord signed with tribal leaders discriminated the non-tribal people living in the districts.

She said BNP had repeatedly asked the government to discuss the CHT accord and the related bills in Parliament. But their demand was rejected and the CHT bills were passed in Parliament in BKSAL way.

The country's sovereignty and integrity are now at stake following the anti-people and anti-nation activities of the government. The government has no accountability to the nation as it did not come to power through people's vote," she said.

Govt determined to recover default loans: Kibria

Star Business Report

Finance Minister S A M S Kibria yesterday warned against "politically-connected" bank loans, seen as the root cause of collapse of Southeast Asian economies.

Vowing to continue reforms and modernisation, he told a launching ceremony of new services by a foreign bank that the government would work to create a "new business culture" and a "new banking culture" in the country.

"Let there be no doubt in anybody's mind... the government is as determined as ever" to recover default loans, Kibria said and referred to the newly set-up loan recovery court and bankruptcy court.

The minister, however, said the businessmen should be given a chance to avoid the stigma of being publicly branded as loan defaulters.

Long march aimed at creating unrest: PM

SAPAHAR, Naogaon, May 27: Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina today described BNP's planned long march towards CHT as a design to create unrest in the country, reports UNB.
"BNP and its leader don't want peace and development... for this they announced the long march," she told a public meeting here.

The Prime Minister said her government restored peace in the hill tracts that witnessed insurgency, instability, blood and deaths for two decades. "What is the logic behind the long march?"

Referring to BNP leader Begum Khaleda Zia's comment that the long march will be peaceful, the Prime Minister said that the word "peaceful" indicates that they want to create unrest as the programme was called against peace. She called upon opposition

BNP and its leaders to give up the path of violence and work for peace and development of the country.

"They have launched propaganda against the historic CHT peace accord as they did before the election that no Ajan will be heard from mosques if Awami League goes to power," she said.

"Awami League is in power for last two years. Did Bangladesh become a part of India? Has Ajan been stopped in mosques?" she said adding that the propaganda against CHT treaty will be proved as motivated.

The Prime Minister also criticised BNP for its opposition to youth employment bank, saying they don't want that country's youth force is self-employed.

'Bangladesh got due share of Ganges water this year'

By M Anwarul Haq

Bangladesh continued to get its stipulated share of Ganges water during the current lean season which began in March and is due to end on May 31.

This is for the first time after signing of the 30-year Ganges water accord that Bangladesh is getting its "due share and stipulated quantum", Khalilur Rahman, Member, Joint Rivers Commission (JRC), told The Daily Star yesterday.

"In fact, Bangladesh this time in many years, received a record quantum of water during the dry months beginning on January 1," the JRC member said.

The water received from the Indian side was "above and over the schedule drawn up in the 30-year water accord", said Khalilur Rahman, a leading water expert and one of the architects of the Indo-Bangladesh Ganges water sharing accord.

"Even in the leanest 10-day cycle in the third week of April, we received more than 35,000 cusec of water," he said.

Local water experts, however, said that "favourable weather conditions" were the main reasons for the 'stipulated flow' of Ganges water to Bangladesh this year.

They said rainfall was very good in the upper reaches of the Ganges and in the catchment areas. Rains had occurred as early as in December last and several times during the 'dry season,' they said.

Mentionably, during the last dry season, the first year following the signing of the accord, Bangladesh, on several days and during many 10-day cycles, received short supply of Corruption in leasing out shrimp land in Satkhira?

By Morshed Ali Khan, back from Satkhira

While 'landless' villagers complained of atrocity in the villages under Devdaha and Kaliganj thanas in Satkhira in the name of eviction from public land, officials of the district administration denied all allegations and said "nothing of that sort happened" during handover of the land to lease holders on May 10.

Villagers in Jhayamari under Kaliganj thana alleged that a group of about 1,000 armed men attacked the village the next day, May 11, and unleashed reign of terror, destroying their dwellings indiscriminately.

The problem arose in the shrimp-rich part of the district when the local administration handed over the yearly leased area to some big shrimp producers through 'official tender'.

About 1,600 acres of khas land, highly potential for shrimp culture, had officially remained 'unused' for more than three years due to legal complication. Local people said that during these years, 'several hundred' families moved to the area, built dwellings and each family occupied one acre of land and started to grow shrimps. The families claimed that they were landless, and therefore, hoped that like other cases in the area, they would be allotted the land under the government scheme of rehabilitating the landless.

Deputy Commissioner of Satkhira Dev Dutta Khisha told this correspondent that after receiving a favourable court verdict, the administration floated tender and leased out the waterbody.

"We did everything as per law," said Khisha. "On May 10 magistrates and policemen went to the area and handed over the land to the lease holders."

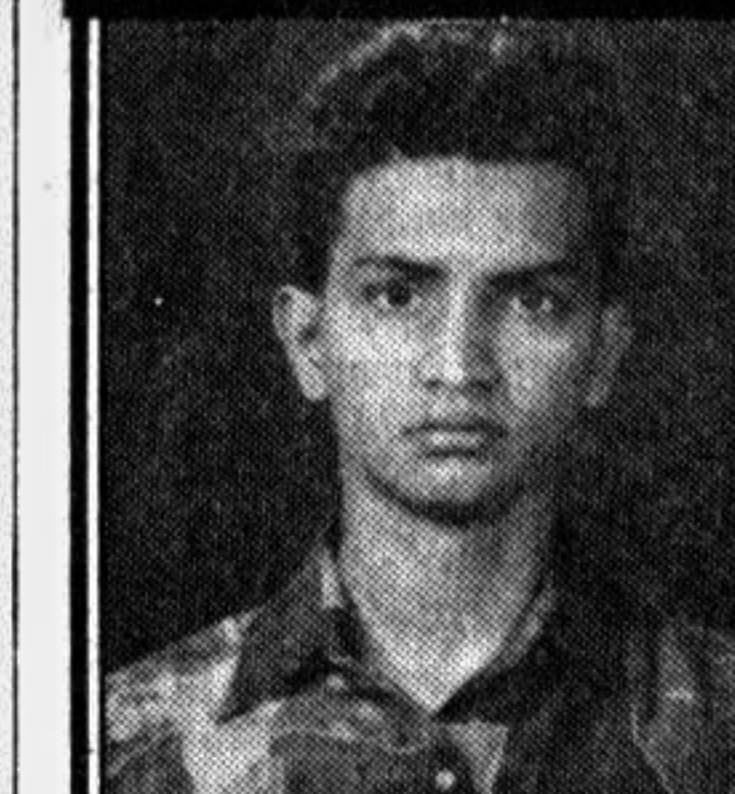

Top district officials present in the DC's office claimed that as per their investigation those families were 'planted' there by an influential quarter and most of them were not landless. The ADC Revenue who had led the operation on May 10 said that none of the houses, however, were 'disturbed' during the handover programme.
