'Conclusive study a must to save people from arsenic poisoning' wastes, indiscriminate use of toxic pesticides and lifting of huge underground water by the tubewells are blamed by the experts to contaminate underground water with arsenic in the northern and southern Bangladesh, reports BSS. The experts suggested conducting a conclusive study and taking comprehensive measures to save the millions of people from arsenic poisoning.

The Department of Public Health and Engineering (DPHE) in its research conducted from 1993 to 1995 found concentration of arsenic in the tubewell water used by the people of different frontier areas of Chapainawabganj, Chuadanga, Meherpur, Satkhira and Jes-

The DPHE in collaboration with Bangladesh Atomic Energy Commission (BAEC) examined 113 tubewell water samples collected from nine districts bordering the Indian state of West Bengal.

Of the total samples, 24 contained concentration of arsenic much higher than that of the world health organisation (WHO)-specified level of .01 miligram litre. Most of the samples contained poisonous arsenic in between .07 point zero seven miligram litre and

.09 miligram. The DPHE embarked upon the investigation in the arsenic-prone areas, specially under its sanitation programme zone, after reports were released by Netherlands-Bangladesh Development Programme and Jadavpur University, West Bengal, India. Katrien de Paw, an environmentalist of The Nether-

The dumping of chemical lands-Bangladesh Development Programme, stated that they had found arsenic concentration in the water taken from shallow, deep and exploratory tubewells of different areas in > Meherpur town. A five-year study conducted by the Jadavpur University revealed that underground water samples of areas in west Bengal and its adjoining Bangladesh are contaminated with 0.05-3.7 miligram/litre arsenic which is alarming in view of WHO safe limit of .01 miligram/litre.

> The report said the people living in Bangladesh borders suffer from various complications, including cancer and skin diseases, caused by use of arsenic contaminated water.

Dr Aftab Alam Khan, Professor of the Department of Geology of Dhaka University, said the release of toxic liquid and solid industrial effluents into the river water and indiscriminate use of contraband toxic pesticides in agriculture are producing arsenic in the underground water.

He suggested short and longterm measures for preventing groundwater contaminationfree aquifers and also measures to be taken to protect safe aquifers from further contami-

The chief scientific officer of the institute of food and radiation biology (IFRB) of Bangladesh Atomic Energy Commission, MA Matin, who is also involved in analysing the water samples of DPHE, said a conclusive study on arsenic is imperative to save millions of people of the northern and southern Bangladesh along the borders of India's West Bengal.

Youths urged to use talents for overall development

State Minister for Youth, Sports and Cultural Affairs Obaidul Quader yesterday urged the youth community to come forward for overall development of the country by using their talents and training provided by the Youth Development Directorate, reports BSS.

"They could play a vital role in the economic development of the country through using selfemployment opportunities," he said while addressing a ceremony of cheque distribution among different youth organisations across the country in the National Museum auditorium in the morning.

Quader said the present government under the dynamic leadership of Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina has taken various programmes for the welfare of the youth.

"Under the programmes computer training would be provided for self-employment of the youth from next month." the state minister said.

He said the next year's loan amount will be five times than that of the current year for the youth organisations for creating self-employment. The government has already allocated taka five crore in this regard, he added. Laying emphasis on proper utilisation of the loan provided by the ministry under the youth development project, he said it would encourage other unemployed youths in this process.
