India, Pakistan may sell out N-technology for survival

By Staff Correspondent

The newly-emerged nuclear powers - India and Pakistan may sell out nuclear technologies to some other countries or even to terrorists for their survival if the super powers continue to suppress them with sanctions and other means.

This was stated by eminent columnist and former Director General of BIISS Brig (Retd) Abdul Hafiz at a seminar in the city yesterday.

Organised by Higher Social Science Research Centre (HSSRC) at Dhaka University. the seminar on "Nuclear Status. Stability and Global Influence: The Indo-Pak Nuclear Explosions in Perspective" was held at the DU Lecture Theatre with eminent political scientist Prof Talukder Moniruzzaman in the chair.

Assistant Professor of International Relations (IR) Department at DU Mohammad Nuruzzaman in collaboration with IR lecturer Rokhsana Ahmed presented the keynote paper in the seminar while Prof Mohammad Shahiduzzaman of IR Department took part in the discussion . Director of HSSRC Prof Sved Giasuddin Ahmed delivered the note of thanks.

Brig. Hafiz said India's declining trend of status in global politics led her to detonate nuclear bombs in a bid to regain her lost prestige and honour. "Increasing dominance of China in world politics and America's growing interest in China also made her desperate to go nuclear," he said.

He said the nuclear arms possessed by India and Pakistan would not destabilise the south-east Asia. "Not nuclear bombs, it is politics along with other problems that may destabilise the region," he said comparing the situation with European paradyme to justify his comment.

Contradicting with the proposition that Nehru was the architect of India's nuclear endeavour, Brig Hafiz said Nehru was too 'modern with foresight and wisdom' to take the ominous path of destruction ushered by nuclear arms.

Prof Shahiduzzaman said in absence of a command and control system, India and Pakistan can get involved in a nuclear warfare any moment.

"After getting equipped with missile technology, both India and Pakistan are now bound to develop anti-missile technology which will leave them in a culde-sac destroying their economy," he said.

In his presidential remark, Prof Talukder Maniruzzaman said the BJP-led government in India exploded nuclear bombs following apprehensions that Pakistan gathered nuclear technology to have a bout on Kashmir.
