WFP work begins in CHT

The World Food Programme (WFP) which supports peace efforts in the Chittagong Hills Tracts (CHT) has begun work in CHT to provide food to the hungry and help the tribal people who inhabit the region to recover from almost two decades of conflict, reports BSS.

According to a WFP press release, two teams of WFP field staff, travelling by water in local, unmotorised boats, are visiting isolated villages in the narrow southeastern panhandle of Bangladesh to determine food aid needs and discuss development projects.

The WFP teams are visiting villages in the most seriously affected areas in the north and south of Chittagong Hill Tracts where the level of food insecurity and malnutrition are high.

In each village, they ask community leaders and village groups to form a food assistance committee to identify people most in need of food aid, help government officials find the most effective ways to deliver the food supplies and propose development projects to generate economic benefits for the villagers.

Those who are able will be given food assistance in exchange of work in the projects while those who cannot, especially women and children, will also receive food ration.

By the beginning of September when the lean season is at its height, WFP will expand the operation to cover the whole of the hill region and to all those food insecure people who are not reached by other programmes," Werner Kiene, WFP representative in Bangladesh, said.

The WFP activities in the Chittagong Hills Tracts are integrated into the government's countrywide food-assisted development programmes and will draw on WFP food stocks and special contributions of 1.5 million dollars from Australia and 20,000 tons of wheat from Canada to support the young peace process.

WFP will continue to cooperate with the government of Bangladesh, the largest recipient of WFP's development food aid, to ensure that food assisted development programmes help those who need food most and can use it best.

The World Food Programme, which has its headquarters in Rome, is the United Nations' front-line agency in the fight against global hunger. Last year WFP fed 53 million people in 84 countries, including most of the world's refugees.

Inaugurating the folio publication, Kibria described Quamrul Hasan as a pioneer artist of the country and said the work of the legendary artist could be distinguished by his search for identity.

He said the dreams and hopes, frustration and anger of the common people of the country, especially the women, occupied Quamrul Hasan's canvases. He said Quamrul Hasan was born in 1921 and died in 1988, was a conscious artist and played a pivotal role to oust the autocrat government in 1990. "His work against the autocracy titled 'Desh Aai Bishaya Behayar Khoppore' created democratic zeal among the agitated people," he added.

Recent news reports and legal moves indicate Al Fayed has fallen out with his ex-bodyguards Trevor Rees-Jones and Alexander Wingfield over who was to blame for alleged security lapses before the August 31 crash.

After earlier contending a conspiracy was behind the mid-air crash that killed Diana and Dodi Fayed, the elder Fayed said in Monday's issue of Time magazine that Rees-Jones and Wingfield caused the accident "through their incompetence and unprofessional practices."

They had rules and they moved away from the rules. They let me down," said the owner of London's Harrod's department store and the Ritz Hotel, from which Diana and her boyfriend Dodi Fayed left in a black Mercedes before the crash.

Al Fayed's lawyers say the bodyguards should have insisted on a backup car, should not have allowed driver Henri Paul to take the route he did.

Pak govt steps up security for US nationals

ISLAMABAD, Aug 23: The Pakistan government has stepped up security for US nationals and other Westerners amid revenge threats for the US missile strikes in Afghanistan, official sources and reports said today, says AFP.

New measures have been put in force after an extensive review of the overall situation at a high-level meeting chaired by Interior Minister Shujaat Hussain, the sources said.

Details were not available, but The News daily said the meeting focused on a possible backlash from some groups to hit American facilities and nations in the country amid anger at Thursday's US cruise missile strikes.

The US Embassy here and other subsidiary missions across the country had already been placed under strict security after 200 American diplomats and staff were hurriedly evacuated from Pakistan two days before the raid.

No incident involving any foreigner has been reported so far anywhere in the country despite a pervasive anti-US sentiment, but an Italian UN military officer in Afghanistan died after being shot in Kabul hours after the missile attacks.

The body of Lieutenant Colonel Carmine Calo arrived here in a coffin Saturday. The UN evacuated all its foreign staff from Kabul on Friday, and today the Red Cross evacuated non-essential people.

The UN office at Jalalabad in eastern Afghanistan was rampaged by a mob on Friday after six bases allegedly run by Saudi dissident multimillionaire Osama Bin Laden were attacked in the surprise strikes.
