Motia tells scientists
Develop new technology to save crops

Food and Agriculture Minister Matia Chowdhury yesterday called upon the scientists and researchers to develop new technology for raising tolerance of rice in deep water taking into consideration the natural characteristics of haor areas, reports BSS.

The country faces floods every year. So we have to develop new technology for raising tolerance of aman rice," she told a seminar on 'Towards developing submergence: Tolerance of rice' in the city.

Chaired by former Vice-Chancellor of Bangladesh Agricultural University Prof Kamal Uddin Ahmed, the seminar was attended by the country's scientists and researchers.

Professor of Biochemistry Department of Dhaka University Dr Anwar Hossain presented the keynote paper in the seminar.

Matia Chowdhury said the demand for food is increasing each year due to increase in population. But the previous governments did not take any research programmes or implemented any programmes to raise food production during the last 23 years, she regretted.

Construction of DU housing complex begins

By DU Correspondent

The construction work of a multi-storied housing complex at Fuller Road for the teachers of the Dhaka University began yesterday.
