UK trade mission arrives in city Sunday

A high-level British trade mission arrives in Dhaka Sunday on a six-day visit to stimulate bilateral business ties, reports UNB.

This will be the first trade mission to visit Bangladesh after the recent flood. Another British trade delegation visited the country early this year.

The 24-member mission organised by Southern Asia Advisory Group of the UK's Department for Trade and Industry will be led by Peter Lee, Managing Director of Mott MacDonald Int Ltd, a worldwide engineering consultancy.

The prime objective of the mission is to create new business linkages between Bangladesh and British companies.

The mission, representing 18 British companies, will meet ministers, government officials and trade community leaders during its stay in Bangladesh.

Members of the mission will have the opportunity to pursue their own particular business interests with their local agents and other interested Bangladeshi organisations.

The focal point of the mission is a day-long seminar on "Doing business in Bangladesh" and the "Millennium Bug Issue" to be organised by the British High Commission at Sonargaon Hotel on October 20.

The mission will leave the city for Britain on October 23.

EU eases brake on Japanese car sales

BRUSSELS, Oct 15: The European Union, pleased by the health of its auto industry, has raised the quota of Japanese cars that may be sold in the 15-nation bloc by 23,000 units this year, a European Commission spokesman said yesterday. Reports AP.

An agreement to increase in the voluntary ceiling of Japanese imports to a total of 1,190,000 cars was agreed in EU-Japan talks overnight, the spokesman said.

The first meeting of the bi-annual negotiations in March had initially fixed the limit at 1,167,000 cars.

But according to new figures, car sales in Europe should be 4.9 per cent higher than for last year. The total carpark of new vehicles sold this year will be around 15,158,000 units — well above the 14,741,000 estimated in March.

For Britain, the quota will lift the number of new Japanese-made cars that may be sold by 4,000 units to 190,000 in Portugal, the bar goes up by the same amount to 43,000 cars. In Spain, another 4,700 cars may be sold up to a total of 70,000.

UK announces review of BBC funding

LONDON, Oct 15: The British government said yesterday it would launch a review of future funding of the BBC in 2002, but that it stood by the licence fee paid by all British television viewers as the main source of money of the time being, reports AFP.

Culture Secretary Chris Smith said that "it is not yet appropriate" to consider alternatives to the licence fee "as the main source of BBC funding."

However, the minister noted that the current system, which has been sharply criticised by media competitors such as Rupert Murdoch, was indeed "an imperfect funding mechanism."

The review will examine the balance between the BBC's public service and commercial activities, Smith said.

It comes against a radical shift in the broadcast landscape, as digital television and radio, launched in Britain in recent weeks, are expected to replace traditional analogue signals.

The cost of updating technology is immense, and competitors argue that the BBC is shielded from market concerns by the licence fee.

FDIs in Poland reach $26.6b since 1989

WARSAW, Oct 15: Direct foreign investment in Poland has reached 26.6 billion dollars since the country shucked of communist rule in 1989 and six billion of that amount has come in this year alone, the government's Paiz Survey Agency announced yesterday, reports AFP.

"The crisis in Russia has not caused a lessening in the interest shown in Poland by foreign investors," said Paiz Deputy President Barbara Jarzebowska.

According to data gathered at the end of June, the United States is the main source of inward investment with a value of 4.7 billion dollars. Germany (3.23 billion dollars) and multinational companies (1.9 billion) come next.

Italy's biggest private group, Fiat, tops the list of corporate investors, having kicked in 1.24 billion dollars. Its South Korean rival Daewoo is close behind with investment of 1.2 billion dollars.

Asian stock exchangers call for stronger rules, more co-op

SINGAPORE, Oct 15: Asian stock exchange chiefs meeting at an economic summit Wednesday pledged more transparency and a stronger regulatory framework to rein in increasingly volatile financial markets and hasten recovery, reports AP.

"There are serious concerns about transparency," said Michael Shepherd, vice chairman of the Australian Stock Exchange. "The perception is that it's risky to invest here."

Other stock exchange leaders agreed, detailing plans to more carefully manage their markets in the interest of fairness and bringing back wary investors.

However, only the chairman of Thailand's Stock Exchange, Amaret Sila-on, was willing to predict a domestic upturn within the next 12 months.

"Strict supervision of brokerage firms can be an effective tool to boost investors' confidence," said Amaret. Because of new regulations and enforcement, "We will be in much better shape coming out of this recession than when this financial turmoil began."

Participants expressed concern about the drift of the world economy and the growing risk of global recession. They called on the Group of Seven to establish a new regime for monitoring, disclosure and regulation of highly leveraged short-term financial flows and other potentially volatile transactions.

Several central bank governors, meeting in a separate panel, said they expect increased restrictions to be placed on hedge funds, which speculate on currency instability and have been blamed for sudden, disastrous devaluations in Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand.

"It is no longer relevant to talk about the Asian economic situation. The region continues to be affected by global developments," US Assistant Secretary of State Stanley Roth told reporters. He said many conference participants had agreed on "the urgent necessity for leadership" by the Group of Seven major industrialised nations.

While agreeing that new international rules are a priority in the region, most of the stock exchange leaders said they were optimistic.

Yoshiaki Kaneko, senior managing director of the Tokyo Stock Exchange, said the Japanese economy is at the "turning point."

"Our aim — our 'big bang' — is to achieve a free, fair and global market by the year 2001," Kaneko said, adding that the Japanese government is "firmly committed to stimulate the economy."

Kaneko said some signs of recovery will appear in the first half of 1999. But he cautioned that foreign investors, who in the past year have been leaving Japan, will not come back in larger numbers before they've been encouraged by domestic investors.

Some of those ideas were expressed in a 15-point action plan adopted Tuesday by the economists, officials and businessmen at the East Asia Economic Summit, organised by the World Economic Forum, a private agency based in Switzerland.

"Our aim is an open, orderly and efficient market," said Lee Hon Chiu, chairman of the Stock Exchange of Hong Kong. He said it was time to "establish a sort of international supervision" of markets.

Senior representatives from Unocal, Shell, and Cairn Energy are in the city to meet the Prime Minister and other senior Bangladesh government officials, a USIS press release said, reports UNB.

John Kinnannon, spokesman of the US Embassy said, "The executives are here to show their continued interest in the development of the country's energy sector."

"To this end, we understand the companies are willing to cooperate with the government of Bangladesh and each other. The companies look to the Bangladesh government for guidance on how to accelerate progress in the energy sector."

The spokesman said that this effort has the US Embassy's complete support, but added that many other US companies had also presented competitive bids on various blocks.

Foul weather, commodity price fall may put brake on LDCs' growth

UNITED NATIONS, Oct 15: The inclement weather and the commodity price falls are likely to put a brake on the recent economic recovery in the 48 least developed countries (LDCs), the United Nations warned yesterday, reports Xinhua.

The LDCs, mostly in Africa, have a combined population of 600 million and an average per capita GDP of about 230 US dollars. They recorded another solid performance in 1997.

LDCs' gross domestic product averaged 4.8 per cent against 3.2 per cent for the world economy and 5.4 per cent for developing countries as a whole, down from the 5.5 per cent they chalked in 1996, the UN Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) said in its latest report on LDCs.

Looking ahead, UNCTAD said devastating floods in Bangladesh and above-average rainfall in Bhutan and Nepal this year and hurricane damage in Haiti foreshadow further difficulties in 1999.

"What makes the LDCs especially vulnerable to the vagaries of the weather and world commodity prices is their lack of export diversification," UNCTAD said.

Over the past decade, most LDCs' exports have been limited to two or three products, almost all of which were sold in raw or semi-processed form.

Of the 28 LDCs for which there are comparable export data, only five reduced their commodity dependence during the decade. Moreover, their integration into world trade has declined, compared with that of other developing countries, UNCTAD noted. Output in 1996 represented less than one per cent of world GDP and their export share was only around 0.4 per cent. Among the 48 LDCs only 29 are world trade organisation members.

The LDCs received only 1.5 per cent of foreign direct investment flows into developing countries.

Official development assistance (ODA) from OECD (Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development) countries dropped to 0.05 per cent of their GDP in 1996.

Foreign investment in Myanmar reaches $ 7b

YANGON, Oct 15: Foreign investment in Myanmar reached 7.064 billion US dollars at the end of March this year, according to a latest official statistics, reports Xinhua.

The investment, that came from 23 countries and regions, covers 303 projects.

Of the projects, those in oil and gas sector drew the largest amount of investment, reaching 2,303 billion dollars, followed by manufacturing, hotels and tourism, real estate and mining.

The statistics also show that Singapore ranked the first among foreign investors, injecting into the country 1,485 billion dollars, followed by Britain, Thailand, Malaysia and the United States.

Since Myanmar adopted an open-door market-oriented economic policy in late 1988, investment environment gradually improved with foreign investors stepping in.

However, due to the impact of the Asian financial crisis, Myanmar received only 1.3 billion dollars of foreign investment in 1997, one billion dollars less than that in 1996.

The country drew 222 million dollars of foreign investment in the first six months of this year.

Meanwhile, Myanmar has decided to permit tourists entering through border points to visit the country's central parts far up to the capital of Yangon to bring about more tourist arrivals, reports Xinhua.

It was disclosed by Lieutenant-General Khin Nyunt, First Secretary of the Myanmar State Peace and Development Council, at the Tourism Development Management Committee (TDMC) meeting here Tuesday.

Khin Nyunt, who is also Chairman of TDMC, was quoted by Wednesday's newspaper as saying that tourists entering through these points will also be permitted to visit attractive destinations such as Mandalay, the second biggest city, and Bagan, the ancient city rich with cultural heritage.

Despite the "visit Myanmar year" campaign launched in 1996, Myanmar has received fewer tourists in the past two years than expected.

"Because of the internal and external conspiracies to destroy Myanmar economy, the number of tourists were less than that should be," Khin Nyunt said.

To speed up development of the country's tourism, Myanmar has opened six border points with China — Bhamo, Namkhan, Muse, Kyaukkok, Kunlong and Mongla, and four similar points with Thailand — Tachileik, Phaya Thonzu, Myawaddy and Kawthoung.

The number of the foreign tourists visiting Myanmar reached 567,458 in 1997-98 fiscal year which ended in March, of which, 302,336 entered through border points.

Thailand plays a key role in supplying tourists to Myanmar among its neighbours and ranks the second after Japan.

Review meeting told Country's overall exports show upward trend

The country's overall exports in the first two months of the current fiscal have experienced an upward trend against the corresponding period of the last financial year despite the devastating flood, reports BSS.

This was disclosed yesterday at a review meeting on overall export of the country with Commerce and Industries Minister Tofail Ahmed in the chair, an official press release said, reports BSS.

The meeting was informed that the total export during July-August was 944.28 million US dollars which was 921.87 million dollar in the July-August of financial year 1997-98 and the export growth is 2.43 per cent.

In the sector-wise statement, RMG has experienced 4.58 per cent growth over the last year which amounts to 561.51 million dollars. The RMG export is also 7.64 per cent higher than the target of the two months fixed at the beginning of the year.

Exports of tea and handicrafts also recorded growth over target and last year's performance. The frozen food export in the two months was 60.61 million dollars which recorded 13.65 per cent growth over the target.

The meeting was also informed that due to prompt actions taken by the government as directed by Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina including special goods train, Kanchipur-Daudkandi special ferry service, arrangement of air-lifting of exportable and joint efforts of the government and exporters, the export target for vital sectors like RMG have been achieved.

The exports of knitwear, engineering products and other manufacturing goods have recorded growth over last year but could not achieve the target due to production losses during the flood.
