

Cut in salary Marks' agents meet ACB

SYDNEY, Oct 21: The managers of Australian captain Mark Taylor and Mark Waugh met with the Australian Cricket Board Tuesday to decide the future pay packets of the game's leading players, reports AFP.

The players' agents talked with ACB chief executive Malcolm Speed.

"Talks have been held with three managers and there's plenty to go," said an ACB spokesman.

"We'll issue the results of the talks next month when the discussions have been finalised."

The talks followed recent reports that senior players faced pay cuts while the extra money will pass on to Sheffield Shield and lower level ACB players.

Wages have been a contentious issue in the past two years and the Australians threatened to strike during the Perth Test against New Zealand last summer.

Taylor and Waugh were among the top group who were named as facing a wage cut in their new contracts.

Their managers, John Fordham (for Taylor) and Leo Karis (for Waugh) said discussions with Speed had been amicable and productive.

"It was the first time either Mark or myself have seen a draft agreement and we'll have to review it," said Fordham Tuesday.

"If I can contact Mark before the third Test against Pakistan starts on Thursday then we'll have a chat and respond to the ACB in due course."

"Otherwise, I will wait until the Test is out of the way because I have a policy of not disrupting Mark when he's playing in a Test."

Fordham said although he had talked for just under an hour with Speed, it was not confined to the draft proposal.

"There were lots of other areas they wanted to discuss and it was more of an information gathering exercise," he said.

Karis also spent an hour with Speed and said it was a positive initial discussion.

"The meeting was amicable, productive and very professional and I hope to determine which way to go over the next couple of days," he said.

I speak to Mark (Waugh) every couple of days and will probably call him tomorrow."

Three Afghan boxers sit on the sidelines after being banned by the organisers of an international tournament in Pakistan on October 20. They have been barred from participating in the meet as they refused to shave.

Now it's Mike's managers turn

LAS VEGAS, Oct 21: The former co-manager of Mike Tyson has filed suit against the boxer's new adviser, seeking a 10 per cent share in any money Tyson makes from his next five fights, reports AP.

The lawsuit was filed Tuesday in state District Court here, a day after the Nevada State Athletic Commission gave Tyson the green light to return to the ring.

The lawsuit was filed by John K. Horne and names Shelly Finkel as defendant. The lawsuit includes a provision allowing other defendants to be named later. It claims interference with contractual relations between Tyson and Horne.

"I'm not aware of it," Finkel said Tuesday when asked about the lawsuit.

Horne, who is now a movie producer in Beverly Hills, Calif., said in a statement he believes he is entitled to a multimillion-dollar award.

The lawsuit seeks in excess of 10 million dollars a standard plea under Nevada law.

Horne's Los Angeles lawyer, Bernard LeSage, said Horne, co-manager Rory Holloway, and boxing promoter Don King entered into a series of contracts with Tyson dating back to 1994 in which the three, known as Team Tyson, were to handle his first 10 fights after Tyson was freed from an Indiana prison on rape charges.

It was during the fifth fight that Tyson bit the ears of heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield, a move that prompted a three million dollar fine and ban from boxing by the Nevada commission. That ban was lifted Monday and Tyson is expected to fight in the next two or three months.

LeSage said Team Tyson made 200 million dollars on the first five fights. Of that money, 30 per cent went to King, 10 per cent each to Horne and Holloway, and the remaining 50 per cent to Tyson, the lawyer said.

Tyson broke from Horne, Holloway and King in March, filing lawsuits against each. He accused King of cheating him out of tens of millions of dollars, and his co-managers of betraying him by arranging a deal that made King the former champion's exclusive promoter.

LeSage said Tyson had five more fights under the contract with Horne and Holloway, and that the former co-managers have rights to the 20 per cent share of his earnings from those fights.

The lawyer said the lawsuit was filed against Finkel and others yet to be named because of "efforts of the new team to interfere with those rights, and to encourage Mike Tyson not to complete the contract."

"He became the wealthiest, best-paid boxer in the game," LeSage said. "He was paid more money than any other boxer in the game... more than 100 million dollars in less than 18 months. We just want him to fill out his contract, and then he's free to go on his way."

Goran, Mark make exits

OSTRAVA, Czech Republic, Oct 24: Fourth-seed Yevgeny Kafelnikov of Russia beat Australian's Richard Fromberg 7-6 (7-4), 6-3 Tuesday to advance into the second round of the Czech Indoor tennis tournament, reports AP.

Slovakia's Jan Križiak upset fifth-seeded Croatian Goran Ivanisevic 4-6, 6-2, 7-6 (7-4) and Germany's David Prinosil ousted sixth seed Mark Philippoussis of Australia 6-3, 6-7 (8-10), 6-3.

In other first round action, Sweden's Nicklas Kulti overpowered Jan-Michael Gambill of the United States 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 and Bohdan Ulihrach of the Czech Republic beat Germany's Lars Rehmann 6-4, 6-3.

Second-seed Andre Agassi of the United States is scheduled to play Denmark's Kenneth Carlsen on Wednesday.

Moceanu sues her parents

HOUSTON, Oct 21: Gymnast Dominique Moceanu, a member of the 1996 US Olympic team that won a team gold medal, is suing for independence from her parents, alleging that they squandered her fortune and oppressed her for years, reports AP.

Moceanu, 17, filed a state lawsuit in Houston on Monday asking to be declared a legal adult so her parents can't control her or her money, the Houston Chronicle reported Wednesday.

A judge signed a temporary restraining order saying Dumitru and Camelia Moceanu must stay away from the gymnast, who ran away from their Harris County home on Sunday, until a Nov. 11 hearing.

Dumitru, Moceanu, who opened a gym last year with some of his daughter's earnings, declined comment to the newspaper. His wife couldn't be reached for comment.

According to Miss Moceanu's lawsuit, her father has wasted money she earned since turning professional at age 10.

The gymnast also told the newspaper her father has hit her "a couple of times."

The gymnast and her lawyer, Roy W. Moore, both declined to say how much money she has earned or how much has been lost. But Moore said a trust that had been set up for her is all but gone.

How high can Henman fly?

VIENNA, Oct 21: (Reuters) Britain's Tim Henman faced various questions after losing to Pete Sampras last week but the toughest ones remain unanswered.

The 24-year-old, whose calm and courteous mask an ironed termination, lost in the quarterfinals of the CA Trophy to the American world number one but on Monday climbed to his highest-ever world ranking of ninth.

He was 10th last summer but it did not last.

How much higher can "Tiger Tim" climb now and has he the consistency to stay up there this time?

"Tim has just gone back into the top 10 having been there for a week in August," his compatriot Tony Pickard, one of Britain's greatest coaches, said at the weekend.

"But it's no good being there for a few days. You have to get there and stay there for a year, two years, even three."

Henman, just 25 points ahead of 10th-ranked Russian Yevgeny Kafelnikov, is adamant that he can go further.

The Oxford man has 2,488 points and has eighth-ranked Moceanu, 17, filed a state lawsuit in Houston on Monday asking to be declared a legal adult so her parents can't control her or her money, the Houston Chronicle reported Wednesday.

A judge signed a temporary restraining order saying Dumitru and Camelia Moceanu must stay away from the gymnast, who ran away from their Harris County home on Sunday, until a Nov. 11 hearing.

Slovak Karol Kucera (2,615) next in his sights.

"I think you've got to set your standards to the very top," he said in Vienna. "If I can continue playing the way I have the last couple of months, I can go a lot higher."

"When I'm on the court, I'm out there to win and that's the most important thing."

"I'm playing for myself and not for anybody else. I'm not playing for the fans, I'm not playing for my country, I'm playing purely for myself."

Before Vienna, the quiet Briton had won 18 of his previous 21 matches, taken back-to-back titles in Tashkent and Basle.

Henman was on a roll and his training partner Sampras hailed him, saying, "I regard Tim as the next generation."

The great spell of form started when he successfully defended his title at the President's Cup in Tashkent last month, dispatching top seed Kafelnikov in straight sets.

He then picked his way through a world class field at the Swiss Indoor Championship before claiming the scale of former world number one Andre Agassi in the final.

It was the best week of my career so far," he said.

Three-time Wimbledon champion John McEnroe has tipped him as one of the top players lining up to take over from 27-year-old Sampras when the American retires.

It is a mark of respect that Sampras chooses Henman as a practice partner while on tour, a relationship which the Briton says has benefited him a great deal.

A gifted all-round sportsman who also enjoys playing golf and soccer, Henman has tennis in his blood.

His grandfather was a regular competitor at Wimbledon and his parents are both keen players.

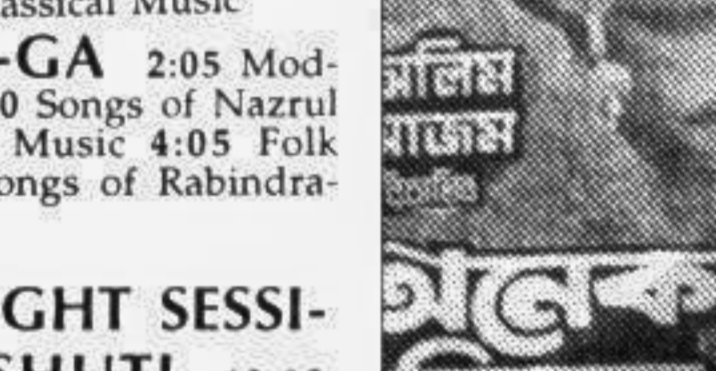

He began playing tennis when he was just three and it soon became clear that he had world-class potential.

From the age of 11 he was groomed for a top at the David Lloyd Tennis School in London and turned professional in 1993.

When the England soccer team was knocked out of the World Cup this summer, the nation pinned its hopes of a sports victory on "Tiger Tim" becoming the first Briton to win Wimbledon since Fred Perry in 1936.

Again, it was Sampras who denied Henman, knocking him out in the semifinal before going on to win his fifth title.

Henman's friendly rivalry for the British number one spot with Greg Rusedski, on the mend from an ankle injury, adds spice to his chase for glory and Henman has learned to cope with the attention of the media, be it good or bad.

TIM HENMAN
