Wisla disagree with Dino

WARSAW, Oct 22: Polish club Wisla Krakow on Wednesday disputed claims by Parma's Dino Baggio that he was struck by a knife thrown from the stands in a UEFA Cup match, reports AP.

At the same time, Parma officials stuck to Baggio's story that it was a knife that glanced off his head in the 80th minute of Tuesday's UEFA Cup second-round match, first-leg tie — a 1-1 draw at Wisla.

"You can see pretty well from the (television) tape that a metal object flew out of the stands," managing director Michele Uva told the Associated Press. "According to our players it was a knife, and I think that there was some confirmation from the Poles."

Baggio's wound required five stitches, Uva said, and Italy's World Cup starter will be examined again Thursday to determine if he can play in Parma's Serie A game Sunday.

"It landed on his head, but it could just have easily hit an eye or another part of the body. It is unfortunate that these things happen," Uva said.

Uva said the Italian team would not contest the results with UEFA. "The important thing is that UEFA examines what happened and its gravity."

Baggio told the sports daily Corriere dello Sport felt a blow to his head and "when I saw it on the ground and I realised that that was what had hit me."

"I can't believe there are people who come to stadiums with knives," he told Gazzetta dello Sport. "I only just missed it but thinking back to it gives me the shivers. Just think what would have happened if it had got me in the eye."

However, Wisla spokesman Maciej Bobr, disputing Baggio's claim and said police were questioning players and fans about the incident.

"Nobody has seen anything like that, including the referees, the UEFA observers, Krakow or Parma officials," he said Wednesday.

"We are not saying that Baggio is lying, but in our opinion it could not have been a knife."

He suggested Baggio was hit by a stone hurled by fans.

Ronaldo revives Inter

MILAN, Oct 22: Nicola Ventola scored one goal and made another for Spartak Moscow's 100 per cent record in the European Champions' League Group C with a 2-1 victory at the San Siro on Wednesday, reports Reuters.

The 20-year-old Italian sensation, who started the season as Ronaldo's understudy, opened the scoring against the run of play in the 32nd minute, firing a 20-metre shot in off the post after the Brazilian touched a freekick to his strike partner.

The goal turned a match dominated by the visitors for the opening half-hour, and Inter should have scored a second long before keeper Alexander Filimonov failed to hold Ventola's 59th minute cross and Ronaldo turned in the loose ball.

Spartak's captain Ilya Tsybmalov brought his side back into the match in the 65th minute, glancing home Andrei Tikhonov's cross for his third goal in three European matches.

But Inter held on and now join Spartak and Real Madrid, 6-1 winners over Sturm Graz at the Bernabeu, at the top of Group C with six points from three matches.

Spartak started with the confidence of a team which has won its opening two games, while Inter looked like a side that had made six changes from Sunday's 5-3 humiliation at home to Lazio.

Clearly under orders to test Gianluca Pagliuca early after his shaky performance in conceding five goals three days ago, Vasilj Baranov unleashed a rising shot in the 12th minute, that was headed for the top corner until the ex-Italy keeper saved.

With Argentine midfielder Diego Simeone playing in the unfamiliar role of sweeper and Portugal's Paolo Sousa struggling to fill his boots, it took 16 minutes for the home side to carve an opening.

Ventola's sheer persistence forced Dmitry Ananko into giving the ball away, but keeper Filimonov spread himself well to block the striker's low diagonal shot.

In the 32nd minute, however, the young Italian's moment of brilliance turned the tide in Inter's favour after Dmitry Parfonov had fouled Andrei Winter on the edge of the area.

It was Ventola's sixth goal of the season, and kept up his remarkable record of scoring at a rate of one goal every 50 minutes since joining Inter from Bari in the summer.

A minute later, French World Cup star Youri Djorkaeff limped off with a pulled thigh muscle but the arrival of his gifted replacement, 19-year-old Andrea Piolo, coincided with Inter's best period of the match.

Only the superb goalkeeping of Filimonov denied the Italian's a second as the Russian's defence lost concentration.

In the 38th minute, Sousa played a superb 30 metre through ball which found Benoit Calet running in behind the Spartak defence, but Filimonov first tipped the ball off the Frenchman's boot, then blocked Piolo's follow-up shot.

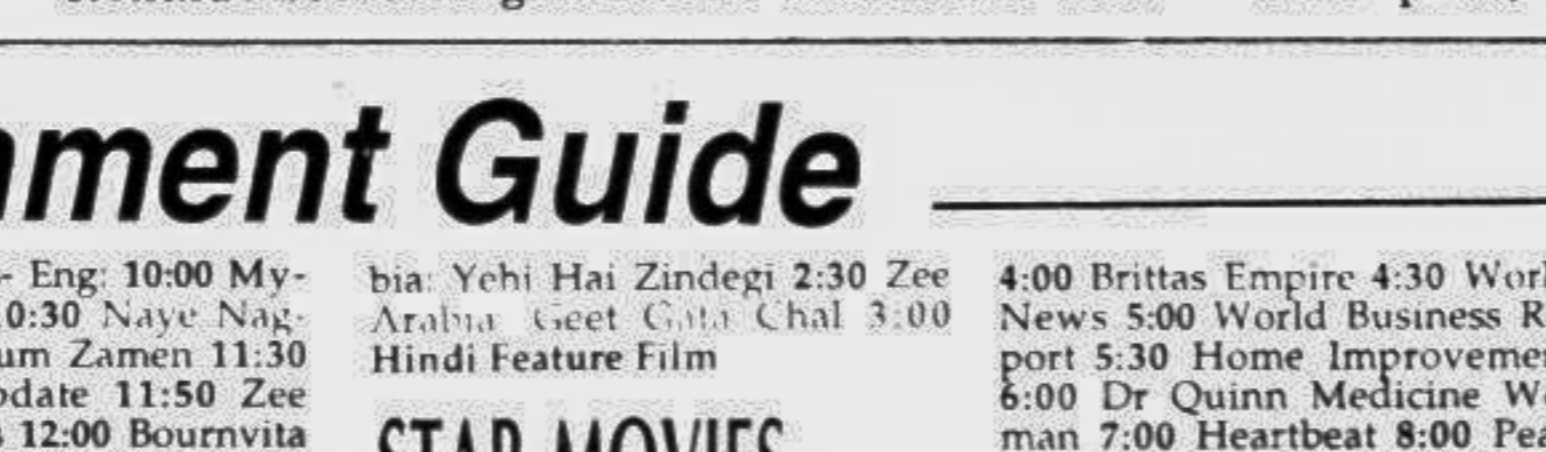

Straight after the break, the irrepressible Filimonov just reached a snapshot from Ventola before punching the ball off the toes of Winter following a neat chip from Piolo.

In the 59th, the move that led to Inter's deserved second started with a surging run out of defence from Nigerian Taribo West who then set Ventola off down the right wing.

The strike's low early cross for once surprised Filimonov and the keeper fumbled the ball to the feet of Ronaldo who needed no invitation to claim a long overdue second.

Inter's thoughts of coasting to an easy victory were quickly dashed by Tsybmalov's quick riposte for the Russians, but in truth the visitors never really threatened to equalise.

LYON, Oct 22: US Open champion Pat Rafter scored his second successive straight sets victory as he stormed into the last eight of the 725,000-dollar Lyon Grand Prix on Wednesday night, reports AFP.

The second-seeded Australian dived Hicham Azzi of Morocco 6-3, 6-3 in the second-round match after dropping only four games against American Steve Campbell in the first round.

Pete Sampras, aiming to hold on to his world number one spot at the end of the year for the sixth time in succession and a three-time champion here, struggled to a 6-4, 1-6, 6-4 win over fellow American Todd Martin in a first-round match.

Third-seeded Marcelo Rios of Chile, who this week overhauled Rafter to move to second in the ATP Tour ranking list, won his first-round match 6-3, 6-3 over American Jeff Tarango.

In other first-round matches played Wednesday, Andrei Pavel of Romania beat Frenchman Lionel Roux 6-3, 6-1 and Australian Todd Woodbridge struggled past Johan van Herck of Belgium 6-4, 6-7.

United blitz Bronby

UNDATED, Oct 22 (Reuters/AP): Manchester United had a memorable Wednesday night scoring six goals in their 6-2 away victory over Danish side Bronby in Group D of the Champions' League.

Two goals from Ryan Giggs and one from Andy Cole inside the first 27 minutes sealed the match, and United, who threw away leads against both Barcelona and Bayern Munich in the first two matches, remained unmoved when Bronby pulled one back through Kim Daugaard in the 34th minute.

Roy Keane, Dwight Yorke and Ole Gunnar Solskjaer all added more goals for United before Ebbe Sand scored a second for Bronby in the last minute.

The result which put United on top of the group, established a new away goals record in the six-year history of the prestigious competition.

Barcelona. But the Spanish team is second on a better goal differential with both teams on four points. Bronby are fourth with three points but all four teams remain in contention.

Sigurd Ruffeldt scored all goals as Rosenborg beat surprise Group B leaders Galatasaray 3-0 to jump to the top from third place. Juventus managed only a goalless draw at Athletic Bilbao and dropped to third with three points.

A diving header from Dennis Bergkamp appeared to put Arsenal into a 2-point lead atop Group E before Sergei Refob scored a last minute goal for Dynamo Kiev at Wembley.

Substitute Wagne Eloi snatched an 80th minute winner to give Lens a 1-0 victory over Panathinaikos and the French club only because they have scored more goals. Both have five points with Panathinaikos third with three and Kiev on two.

A hotly-disputed 80th-minute winner from Juergen Rische gave FC Kaiserslautern a

2-1 victory at PSV Eindhoven to stretch the German team's advantage to three points atop Group F.

Rische's header was judged to have crossed the line before it was parried by PSV keeper Ronald Waterius, but the referee gave the goal only after consulting with his assistant.

A first half penalty goal from Mika Lehtosuo and a headed goal by Mika Kotilla in the second half gave HJK Helsinki a 2-0 victory over Benfica and the Finnish team jumped into second place with four points with Eindhoven and Benfica both on three.

Olympiakos edged four-time winners Ajax Amsterdam 1-0 to move three points clear in Group A. The only goal coming from Alexios Alexandris three minutes before half time.

FC Porto doubled Croatia 3-0 with two strikes by Slovenia's Zlatko Zahovic and one by Brazil's Doriva to move up to second ahead of Ajax on goal difference with both tied on four points.
