94 pc for trial of all killings under existing laws: CDC survey

About 70 per cent respondents of a survey said that those who don't want trial of the killers of Bangabandhu want to grab power by creating an anar-chic situation in the country. reports UNB.

The survey titled "Trial of the Killers and Rule of Law" was conducted by the Centre For Development Communication (CDC). It was released on the occasion of the Jail Killing Day.

Four groups of the CDC conducted the survey in between Oct 16 to 27 and collected information and opinions from 1700 people belonging to eight professional groups of different parts of the capital. The survey revealed that some 94.16 per cent people wanted that trial of all killings should have to be taken place under existing laws of the country.

Some 81.54 per cent respondents said respect has been shown to the existing law by initiating the trial of Bangabandhu's killing under the existing law of the soil. Some 64.39 per cent sup-ported holding of the trial of the Bangabandhu Murder Case under the existing law while 29.61 per cent opined that the trial should have to be held in a special court

However, a businessman of Bangla Bazar said failing to set up a special court to hold the trial of the Bangabandhu Murder Case was a failure of the Awami League government. A total of 94.70 per cent opined in favour of trial of the jail killing and 93.28 per cent opposed the hartal called to protest the arrest of some persons in connection with the jail killing case.

Of the respondents 90.41 per cent want trial of killers of President Zia and General Man-

A total of 75.44 per cent respondents charged the previous governments for patronising the killers.
