McGuire wins Aussie Open

MELBOURNE, Nov 15: New Zealand's Marnie McGuire was true to her word Sunday when she won the women's Australian Open after leading through every round, reports

McGuire expressed confidence in her ability to protect a lead after each stage and she was in great form down the stretch to hold off No 3-ranked Kelly Robbins of the United States.

"This is my sixth professional win but this is my first outside of Japan," McGuire, 29, said. "It's great to win on another continent."

McGurie started the day one ahead of Robbins, who won the Tournament of Champions last month, and closed with a 67 to finish with a 12-under 280 at the par-73 Yarra Yarra course. Robbins finished four back after a 70. McGuire started with four birdies, has just one bogey, at the par-5 8th, and put the title beyond doubt at the 16th. She narrowly missed a putt for eagle but went three ahead as Robbins played into a greenside bunker and settled for per. McGuire set up her victory with a strong deriving perfor-

"All week it's been straight and I've never been in trouble," McGuire said.

Robbins missed an eagle putt at the 18th and missed again with a short attempt for birdie before holing out for a par-5. Robbins had an equal course record 65 Saturday and said she felt she could match the performance again Sunday.

"You know there's one day to play and it could happen again,' Robbins said. "I just went out there and tried to put as much pressure on Marnie as possible but she just played great."

Local favourite Karrie Webb started the final round five shots behind McGurie after a dismal opening round 78. Webb closed with a 71 to finish 4th, behind compatriot Jane Crafter who had a 67.

(7-2). 7-6 (7-5) on Sunday to qualify for the ATP Tour Championship finals in Hanover in nine days time. In a rematch of the 1996 final which Ivanisevic won, the 24-year-old Russian pocketed the $157,400 first prize as well as grabbing the last place in the eight-man Hanover field. His triumph squeezed Greg Rusedski out of the final eight, the Briton needing Ivanisevic to win on Sunday to keep his place, which was jeopardised on Saturday when he lost in the semifinals of the Stockholm Open.

"I'm very happy to win here and to qualify for Hanover," Kafelnikov told the 14,000 sellout crowd at Moscow's Olympiisky Sports Complex.
Third seed Ivanisevic, who had a 9-2 edge over Kafelnikov in their 11 previous meetings and beat him in the three-set final in 1996, had a 6-5, 40-30 advantage in the opening set but missed an easy overhead which would have given him the set.

"It was a very easy overhead which is impossible to miss." the Croat said. "I had the court all open and I went for something... I wanted to make a hole in the court instead of just placing the ball in the open."

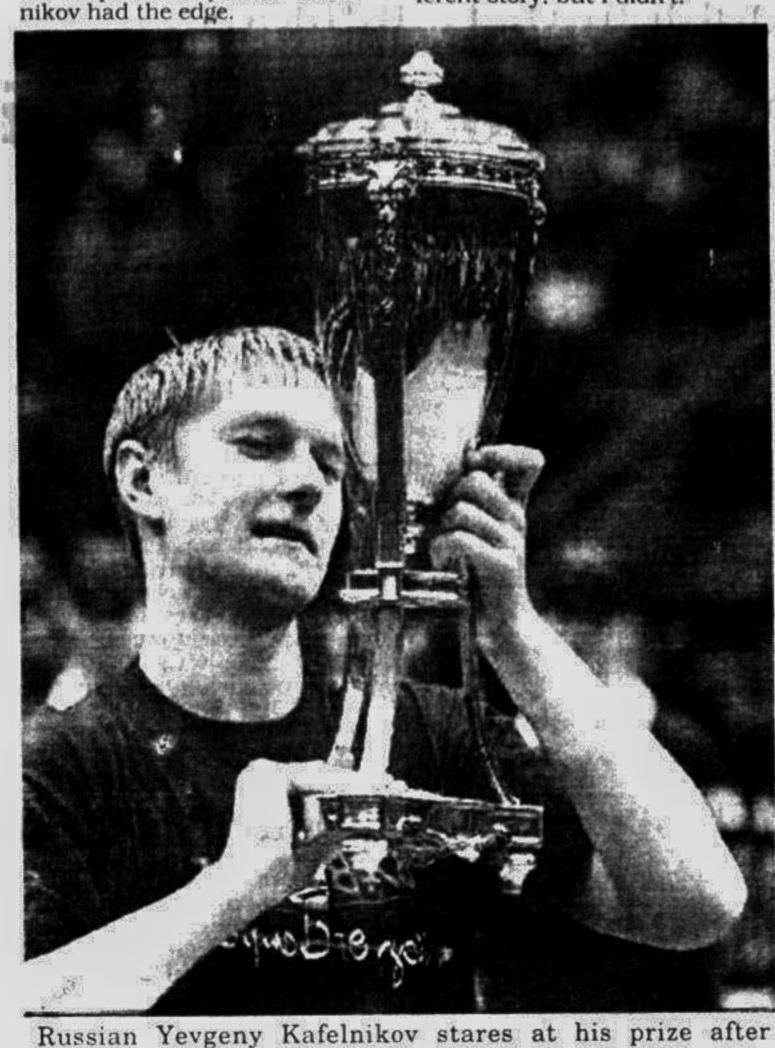

After that miss, Kafelnikov won five straight points and raced to a 3-0 lead in the tiebreaker before holding on to win it 7-2.

Kafelnikov then broke Ivanisevic in the fourth game of the second set with a backhand cross-court winner for a 3-1

Petit not available

LONDON, Nov 15: Midfielder Emmanuel Petit will miss Arsenal's European Champions' League return game against Lens in France on November 25 after UEFA ruled on a mix-up surrounding a booking against Dynamo Kiev, reports Reuters. Italian referee Piero Ceccarini originally booked Nigel Winterburn for a foul on Serhiy Rebrov but the UEFA observer in the stand advised later that French international Petit should have been the player yel low carded.

As he was booked earlier in the competition. Petit is now suspended for the Lens game. Arsenal coach Arsene

Wenger, who revealed the devel opment on Saturday, also said that Dennis Bergkamp would miss the Netherlands' international against Germany on Wednesday. "He was not even fit enough to take a fitness Test this morning, said Wenger explaining Bergkamp's absence from the Arsenal team which drew 0-0 with north London rivals Tot-

American Todd Martin Johansson may overcame Tim Henman 4-6, 6-1, 6-2 in the other semifinal but the Briton had already secured a place in the eight-man Hanover event.

Johansson broke Rusedski in the third game of the first set. The Canadian born Briton was unable to counter until the ninth when he broke back with a perfectly executed volley.

The temperamental Swede threw his racket in anger but quickly calmed down and broke Rusedski in the following game before serving for the set.

Rusedski seemed to recover in the second, tight set. His renowned power service was back and Johansson had to fight for every point.

But the expected breakthrough never came and the pair went into a thrilling tiebreak. Both had their chances but the Swede proved the stronger, winning 9-7 when Rusedski volleyed out. "It only came down to one or two points today so it's obviously very disappointing because it was a match I could have turned around," said Rusedski. He said his game was affected by an injury on Friday.

Henman broke Martin's serve in the first game and controlled the set with fine returns and passing shots.

But in the second set Henman's form vanished and Martin broke him three times. The American's solid play carried him through the decider in similar fashion as Henman piled up the errors.

Henman said: "I wanted to perform better. Just because 1 qualified for Hanover does not mean that I wanted to end the tournament here like this.
