Stockholm Open Martin's

STOCKHOLM, Nov 16 (AP): Todd Martin feels right at home in Stockholm. For Thom-Johansson, the home-court advantage didn't help. "The weather is a lot like where I grew up in Michigan," the American said after beating the Swede 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 to win the Stockholm Open on Sunday. "To see the snow when you wake up in the morning and have to bundle up a little bit to go outside for dinner, I love it! "The city is beautiful, the people are as friendly as any place in the world and it doesn't hurt that they all speak English very well."

Martin became the first American winner of one of the world's oldest indoor tournaments since John McEnroe's fourth triumph in 1985. Many people get depressed in Sweden because of the short days at the time of the year. "But unlike everybody else I love when it gets dark early," Martin said. "I think it provides a lot of atmosphere in the hall, maybe it's because the Swedish fans can have a beer a little earlier than usual."

The Royal Tennis Hall, with its narrow well-worn wooden bleachers, is a cramped place with only 4,500 seats and a past. It was built during World War II and the first indoor arena built expressly for the sport. King Gustav V — known as "Mr. G" — loved to play. Bill Tilden played there. So did Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall, Arthur Ashe, Jimmy Connors, Bjorn Borg and today's biggest names, led by Pete Sampras. In this hall, Borg led Sweden to its first Davis Cup title in 1975. And only two months ago, Johansson made his Davis Cup debut before his own club members, and became a hero when he clinched the 11th final berth for Sweden since 1975. But Johansson, a member of the Royal Lawn Tennis Club, played his worst match in a long time against Martin. Normally a big server, the Swede lost half of his 14 service games in the final.

"I had a good week, but it was a pity that I couldn't play better in the final," he said. "It was my worst match this week. But he played very well and deserved to win. If you want to lose to someone, it's against Todd because he's such a good guy." The 28-year-old American, who lost the final two years ago to another Swede, Thomas Johansson, didn't serve well either in the first set. It featured five service breaks, including four in a row. But Johansson only managed to hold his serve once in the first set. "It was a very strange match," Martin said. "I started off very well and Thomas started off very poorly. He was nervous. And the fact that he was a little nervous made me a little nervous."

"I was very confident, because I've played very well in this arena and in the past few weeks," added Martin, who beat world No 3 Patrick Rafter and No 5 Andre Agassi in the Paris Open a week ago. "And I was fortunate to start every set early with the break." The ATP tour is now over except for its annual World Championships, featuring the top eight players, later this month in Hanover, Germany. But the season is not over for Johansson, a non-qualifier for Hanover. He'll try to get one of the singles spots for defending champion Sweden in the Davis Cup final against Italy early next month in Milan. For Martin, it was the second ATP title this year. He also won a tournament on clay in Barcelona in April. "I felt like I have played better than I ever had in the past five weeks and even before that," Martin said. "It's thrilling for me and I hope to continue to improve and enjoy some more success like this."

Asari clinches Tokyo marathon TOKYO, Nov 16: The 1993 world champion Junko Asari put the disappointment of the Atlanta Olympics behind her to win the Tokyo international women's marathon in a thrilling finish on Sunday.

Asari, who raced a shoulder-to-shoulder battle against fellow Japanese Ari Ichihashi in the last five kilometres, surrendered the lead briefly in the last 100 metres at the National Stadium. But she stormed ahead to cross the finishing line in two hours 28 minutes 29 seconds, only a half a step faster than Ichihashi, who also clocked the same time. "I know she (Ichihashi) was just behind me. I just tried to get ahead even by a second and wanted to win the race. I once went behind, but I was sure I would be able to regain the lead at the finish," said Asari, 29. "I really wanted to win today... that kept me running and running," she said in a trembling voice.

Sino shuttlers baffle hosts

LONDON, Nov 16: Chinese shuttlers had an overwhelming domination on the court with a 5-0 victory over their English rivals in the final match of a six-match series in Stevenage, England Saturday night, reports Xinhua. Deng Chuang and Lu Ying, who paired for the first time in their badminton careers, met a strong challenge in the first set of the mixed doubles, a curtain raiser of the night's match. After losing the first set 1-15, Deng and Lu, winner of the event in the junior worlds in 1996, geared up to claim the following two sets 15-11 and 15-12, making it 1-0 for the visitors.

Women's singles player Dong Fang needed only a little more than 10 minutes to wipe out Tracey Hallam 11-5, 11-1. "I did not play to my best," said Dong Fang, bronze medalist in the World Junior Championships. Men's singles player Xiao Hui, the only national player in the Chinese group, also had an easy work with a 15-8 and 15-2 victory over Robert Nock, who made China have a commanding 3-0 lead in the day's competition.

Chinese shuttlers also won the women's and men's doubles through Lu Yung/Gao Ling and Xia Xuanze/Cai Yun. Lu and Gao defeated Gail Emms and Jo Goode 15-10, 15-6 in the women's section while Xia and Cai sealed China's 5-0 victory by defeating Anthony Clark and Ian Sullivan 7-15, 15-9, 15-6.

Chase on for No. 1 spot

NEW YORK, Nov 16 (AP/Internet): Besides the season-ending title and a pot of money, there will be a little extra on the plate at this week's Chase Championships: The No. 1 ranking. Lindsay Davenport, the U.S. Open champion who is ranked No. 1, will be among the 16 women at Madison Square Garden. As will Martina Hingis, the Open winner who lost the top ranking on October 12. "Getting to No. 1 was such a huge step in my career after winning the U.S. Open," Davenport said. "To try and finish the year No. 1 would be amazing." Others will be aiming at different targets in a tournament Jana Novotna calls a "fifth Grand Slam." The winner's check is $500,000, which should come in handy for Christmas shopping. The Championships begin Monday and conclude next Sunday with a best-of-5 set final, the only time during the year women play more than three sets. "Staying at No. 1 is probably going to be the hardest thing that I've ever tried to do in my tennis career," Davenport said. "But I'm going to try. Once you get to No. 1, it's definitely not satisfied and giving up now. I'm going to try even harder to try and stay there, try and make the most of everything that I've been able to do the last year. "It's tough, I mean, everyone is gunning for you, you're never supposed to lose, you're always the favourite. You kind of have to deal with that kind of pressure in a different way." Standing in Davenport's way could be Steffi Graf, who has been unbeatable since undergoing wrist surgery after the U.S. Open. Graf has won her last two tournaments, including Sunday, when she defeated Davenport 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 in the Advanta Championships title match. "I'm right where I want to be," Graf said in Philadelphia. "I didn't think I'd be here two weeks ago. Winning these last two tournaments shows I'm much further along than I thought I'd be." Davenport, who dominated the Corel WTA Tour this summer, will begin by facing Sandrine Testud in their opening match on the carpet. Testud rarely wins tournaments, especially against Davenport. The American holds a 6-2 edge but Testud won the last time in Germany last month. They split their last four matches. "You definitely have to be ready for the first match," Davenport said.

"You're not going to get a qualifier. You can't really work your way into the tournament. "That's a difficult thing because whoever you play is going to be in the top 16 and one of the best players in the world... At the same time, you kind of look at it like there's not too much pressure. I mean, you can't really have a bad loss here." In one of the most open years in women's tennis, Hingis was the only woman to play in more than one of the four Grand Slam tournament finals. She lost to Davenport in the U.S. Open. Also in contention for the Chase title are French Open champion Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario and runner-up Monica Seles; Wimbledon winner Jana Novotna and runner-up Nathalie Tauziat and Australian Open runner-up Conchita Martinez. "It's great for women's tennis; it's great for the players," Novotna, the defending champion, said of the strong competition. "There was a period when a player dominated — Steffi, Monica, Martina Navratilova, Chris Evert... Now it's wide open. Anybody can win any tournament. Anyone can win a Grand Slam."

Brunei won't play in Asiad soccer?

BANGKOK, Nov 16: Brunei has asked permission to withdraw its football team from next month's Asian Games here, organisers said today, reports AP. Brunei officials said there were problems with the team but didn't give further details, Sports Authority of Thailand (SAT) governor Sakchye Tap-suan said. Thailand has asked the Olympic Council of Asia (OCA) to negotiate with Brunei to keep the team in the December 6-20 Games as their withdrawal would cause problems in the draw for the football event, the SAT governor said. "I hope we will receive the answer from Brunei in the next few days," he added.
