

JU administrative activities suffer for want of new Treasurer

By JU Correspondent
Jahangirnagar University (JU) faces difficulties in its regular administrative activities due to the government's delay in appointment of a new treasurer, officials of the university said. "Important files are getting piled up for vacancy of the post," said a source talking to The Daily Star yesterday. The post fell vacant since August 13, when the tenure of former treasurer Prof Abdul Bayes ended.

"Teacher's politics and their factionalism were identified as the vital reasons for the delay in filling up the vacant post," another source indicated.

"Ever since the post fell vacant, two influential groups have been actively lobbying for appointment of two different persons for the post and still are rigid about their candidates," one source said.

Development programmes, appointment and upgradation of teachers and officers are now being delayed in the absence of the Treasurer of the University. Besides the bills of ongoing construction work, transport are getting piled up before the Finance Committee.

Govt believes in free flow of information: PM

Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina yesterday urged for united endeavour of all political parties, professional bodies and the people to lead the nation to progress and prosperity overcoming all odds, reports UNB.

"We would like to see Bangladesh free from hunger and poverty... We must work together to face the challenges of the new millennium," she told a national conference of Bangladesh Public Relations Association this morning.

Hasina said a lot of works are still to be done to bring the nation to the right track after the devastating flood. It will require huge money and concerted efforts to implement the post-flood scheme and prevent such natural disaster in future.

"We're working hard having trust of the people for their economic welfare," she said. Underlining the importance of the public relation profession, the Prime Minister said the Public Relation Officers could build a bridge between the government and the people.

She said information and mass communication profession could contribute significantly to motivate the people in national development activities and enhance the country's image at regional and international forums as well.

"We believe in free flow of information," said the Prime Minister, adding "We will have to move forward to face the 21st century keeping abreast with the revolutionary progress in the field of communication technology."

Telecommunications Minister Mohammad Nasim, State Minister for Information Prof Abu Sayeed and Chairman of Parliamentary Standing Committee on Information Ministry Abul Kalam Azad, MP, spoke at the opening session at Hotel Sheraton.

BPRA president Khaleque Bhuiyan made the welcome address and general secretary Mostafa-e-Jamil gave vote of thanks.

The Prime Minister said mass communication is recognised as a specialised profession here as it is in all developed and developing countries.

She said mass communication is a very powerful system for motivating people in mobilising resources and utilising those for quick development of a developing country like Bangladesh.

"You can play a role in establishing a good understanding between the government and the people by removing any confusion and misunderstanding about any activities of the government or institutions," Hasina told the conference.

Besides, a proper coordination of social, economic and administrative activities with proper social infrastructure and development projects is essential for development and it is possible through mass communication.

The Prime Minister was happy to know that BPRA has undertaken an initiative to a build mass communication forum among the SAARC states. If the initiative succeeds, it would contribute to creating more understanding among the people of the region.

Hasina said her government would actively consider establishment of a Public Relations Institute and other demands for development of this profession.

She said the government has undertaken extensive plan for post-flood rehabilitation and prevention of future flood permanently.

"We want to implement the rehabilitation programmes through concerted efforts. Public Relations Officers can play a specific role in motivating the people to join these activities," the Prime Minister said.

Earlier, the Prime Minister awarded gold medal to Zahurul Islam for his dedication to the profession and contribution to establishing the Public Relations Association.
