

Joint operation today to fix damaged gas pipe under Turag

By Staff Correspondent
The Fire Brigade divers and a Titas gas technical team will conduct a joint operation today to repair the damaged 12-inch diameter gas pipe under the Turag river near Mirpur bridge.

The gas line, connecting the capital with Aminbazar main supply line was damaged when a mechanised boat carrying huge stone chips hit it on Tuesday.

Managing Director of the Titas Gas Transmission and Distribution Company (TGTDC) yesterday visited the spot and gave direction to take steps to avert any accident.

"There is no chance of accident as we have closed the valves at the both ends of the pipe," the Titas MD said.

"However, we are supplying a little amount of gas in the line so that water could not enter through the leaks," said Sekendar Hayat, the MD of the Titas Gas company.

The bubbles were still rising up from the pipe, but these are negligible.

Titas gas authority has deployed four guards in the area to ensure security.

'AL starts game of hijacking leaders to prevent fall'

Sadeq Hossain Khoka, MP, president of BNP Dhaka city unit, yesterday termed the present government as a "totally failed, servile and hijacker government" and called upon the city dwellers to build up a mass movement against it, reports UNB.

"Awami League has started the game of hijacking opposition political leaders. It reflected the desperate effort of the party to prevent its imminent fall," Khoka said while speaking at a meeting of Bangladesh Railway Sramik O Karmachari Dal in the city.

He said the residents have been passing a miserable life with vexing traffic jam, garbage and mosquito menace and unabated rise of crimes like killing and hijacking.

But, Khoka said, the government and the Mayor are not taking these problems into their serious consideration, rather they are busy with making their own fortune.

Referring to the abnormal price hike of essentials, Khoka said Commerce Minister Tofiq Ahmed had declared in Parliament that he would resign if the price of onion goes beyond Tk 50 per kg. Though only a day after that speech by the minister, onion was sold at Tk 65 per kg, he did not resign.

Price hike of essentials have been forcing the poor people to fast in the month of Ramadan without any food, he observed and warned the government of serious consequences if it failed to arrest the price hike.

Grameen Court Bill to be placed in JS soon: Khasru

Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs Minister Dr Abdullah Omor yesterday said the government have taken steps for establishing Grameen Courts to ensure easy access to justice at the doorsteps of the poor, report agencies.

"Access to justice is a precondition to ensure fundamental rights of the people. If the vast majority of masses, owing to poverty or remoteness of judicial institutions, cannot avail the opportunity of seeking redress against wrongs, then the fundamental human rights will be denied to them," he said.

The law minister was inaugurating a day-long workshop on "Access to Justice: Towards a People-friendly Legal System" at the British Council in the morning.

Visiting Law and Justice Minister of South Africa Dr Abdullah Omor was the guest of honour at the workshop, organised jointly by the British Council and the Law Ministry.

Justice Dilip Kumar Basu, a former judge of Calcutta High Court, presented a keynote speech on "Dispute Resolution Through Pre-litigation Counselling and Resolving Litigation Through Non-formal Mechanism."

The Law Minister said the government has taken initiative for establishing Grameen Courts as a pre-trial settlement forum throughout rural Bangladesh to ensure easy access of poor people to institutional judicial forum to seek justice in respect of petty civil and criminal disputes. "I hope, I will be able to introduce a bill in the House (Parliament) soon in this regard."

He said the proposed Grameen Court with wider jurisdiction, in lieu of village court with limited sphere of action, would bring the justice delivery system closer to the common people without much cost and delay.

Taking a question from the audience, Khasru said the proposed Grameen Court would be headed by one assistant judge nominated by the respective district judge.

"At present, the lowest stratum of the judiciary is at the district level," he said. "But for most of the population, it is very difficult to come to the district headquarter for justice embracing proverbial lengthy procedure, cost and harassment for years together."

He said Grameen Court is going to be established at the villages with an ambitious hope for dispute resolution through conciliation and arbitration.

It is mainly a concept of compromise between parties who wish to live as good neighbours settling their disputes locally avoiding the troublesome, expensive and time-consuming legal formalities in traditional court, the Law Minister said.

"People in the legal profession should be sensitised to the pulse of the society. If the individual in the system can become people-friendly, legal system is no barrier."

The Law Minister said pre-trial settlement of disputes is an important aspect of the American judicial system, where about 80 per cent cases are disposed of by amicable settlement.

Also in Philippines, he added, this system of pre-trial settlement of disputes has been working well towards minimising the load of cases to a great extent.

He said the provision of pre-settlement of disputes contained in Section 10 of the Family Court Ordinance is a new innovation in the legal system of Bangladesh.

Providing legal aid to the poor and the needy in securing redress of their grievances in courts is also a major requirement for ensuring human rights of the people, the Law Minister said.

He informed that his ministry has already finalised a legislative bill in this regard and hoped the bill would be placed in the next session of parliament.

Addressing the inaugural session, South African Law and Justice Minister Dr Abdullah M Omor said they were facing a major problem of social discrimination as the country had been colonised for more than 350 years.

He said the family court has commenced functioning in South Africa to remove the burden from formal courts.

In his keynote paper, Justice Dilip Kumar Basu said "Lok Adalat" (people's court) and "Samjotha Adalat" (arbitration court) in India are resolving many disputes through conciliation, negotiation and mediation.

He said the main strength of Lok Adalat and Samjotha Adalat is the participation and spirit of the society. A culture of settlement has been created through the activities of these courts.

These courts have a success rate of nearly 70 per cent. The Lok Adalat deals with pending cases while the Samjotha Adalat both pre-trial and pending cases," said the former judge of Calcutta High Court.

Law Commission member Justice Naimuddin Ahmed also addressed the inaugural session as special guest.

Tom Cowin and Farah Kabir of British Council took part in the discussion.

Anti-govt campaign

BNP adopting falsehood to find issues, says Zillur

KISHOREGANJ, Dec 26: LGRD and Cooperatives Minister Zillur Rahman today accused the main opposition BNP of adopting falsehood in its 'desperate efforts to find issues' for its anti-government campaign, reports BSS.

Since the 1996 elections the BNP has been desperately trying to find issues for its anti-government campaign," he told a public meeting at Bhairab MP High School ground here.

He said the opposition has now put in its all out efforts to mislead people and tarnish the image of the independent and neutral election commission towards that end.

Rejecting the opposition demand for mid-term polls and city corporation and upazila elections under caretaker government he urged the people to be united against the "conspiracy against democracy and development."

"There is no scope to create any artificial issue through raising the demand for mid-term polls and city corporation and upazila elections under caretaker government," he said.

The minister, later, distributed prizes among meritorious students of the school and urged the teachers and guardians to extend their hands for ensuring congenial atmosphere eliminating terrorism and violence from the educational arena.

He said the government has laid emphasis on the promotion of technology and science and technology-based education to prepare the nation for the challenges of the 21st century.
