Decision to prohibit use of leaded fuel hailed

The Institute for Development Policy Analysis and Advocacy (IDPAA) at Proshika on Sunday welcomed the government decision to prohibit the use of leaded fuel by automobiles and phase out two-stroke engines (three-wheeler auto-rickshaws) by the 2001 instead of 2003, reports BSS.

"These are extremely encouraging steps," said Md Shahabuddin, head of IDPAA and director, Proshika. In a statement he said building a future pollution-free and environment-friendly Dhaka City depends largely on the implementation of these decisions," he added.

To protect the city from continued environmental degradation and save the citizens from its adverse impact, IDPAA, Coalition of Environmental NGOs (Cen), Association of Development Agencies in Bangladesh (ADAB) and other organisations dealing with environmental issues have long been advocating for the formation and implementation of such policies.
