The Documentary

The Butchers Of Boxgrove
Horizon on BBC World at 6:30 pm
 In 1993, a mysterious fossil was unearthed near the sleepy English village of Boxgrove. It was the shin-bone of a human ancestor, half a million years old, christened Boxgrove Man. The Press went wild. He was truly the "First Englishman". But, as with the discovery of any body, the evidence raised more questions than it answered. Who was Boxgrove man, and how did he live?

The Feature

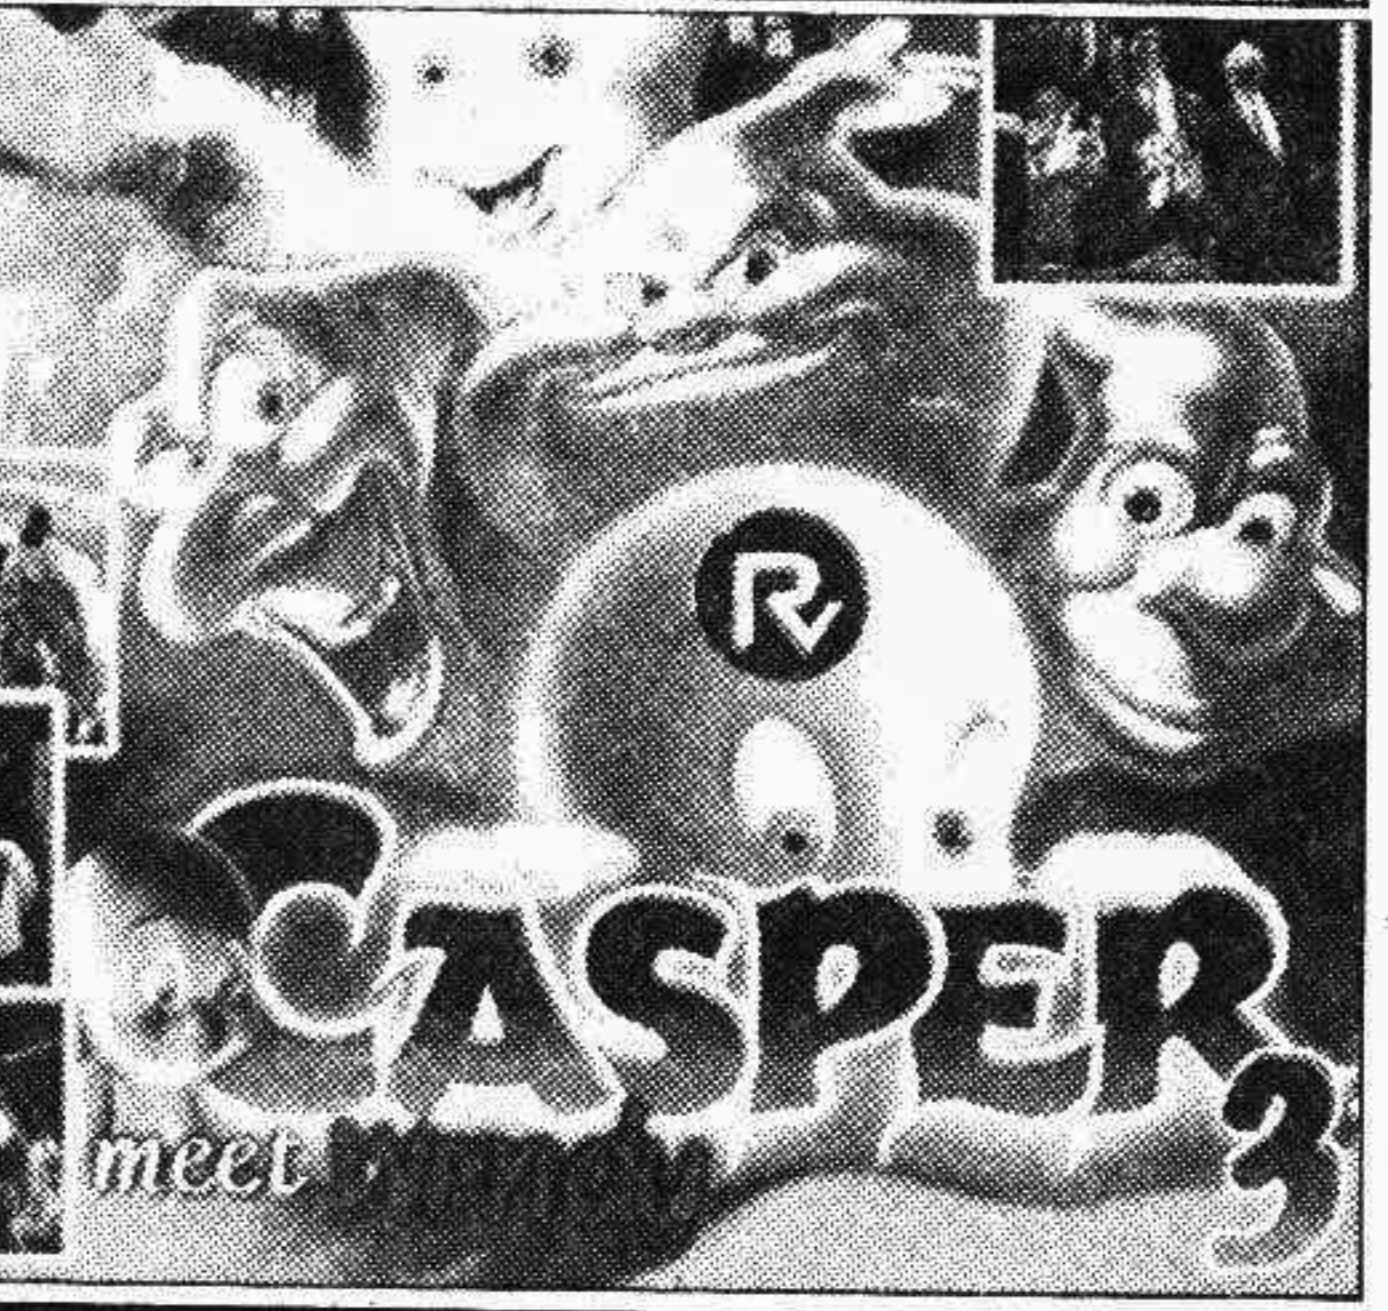

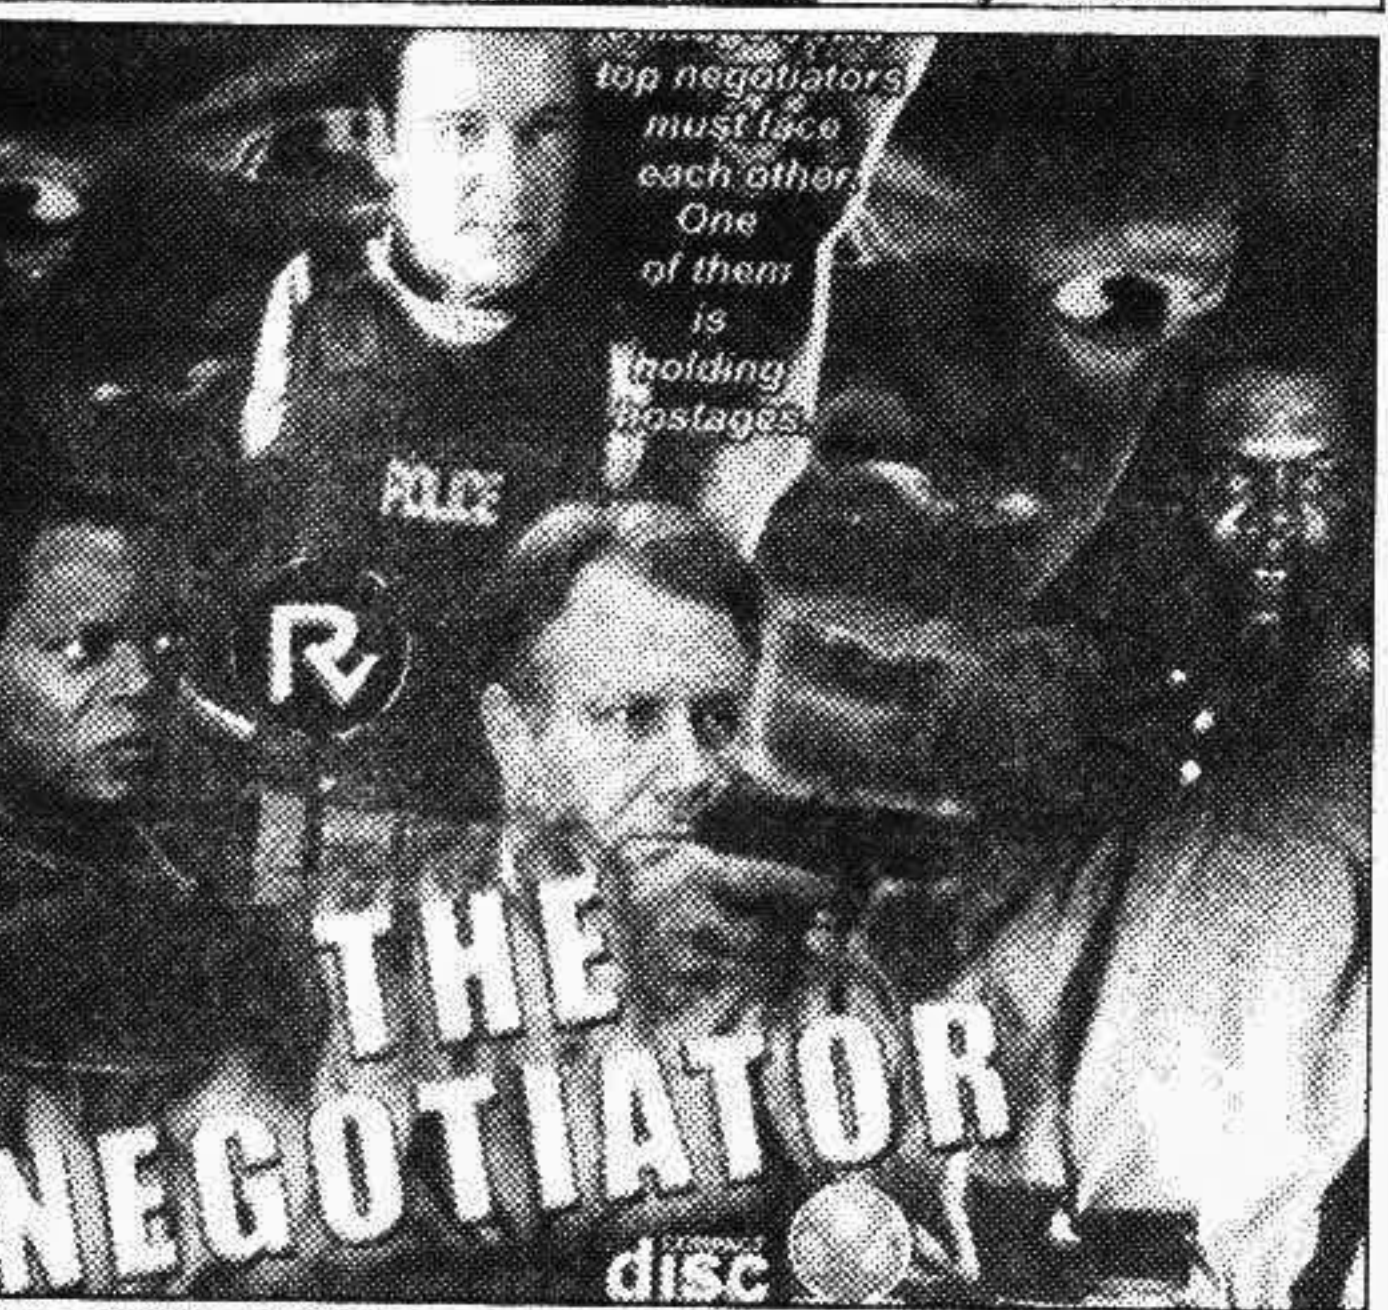

Moneywise on BBC World every Thursday at 10:30 pm
